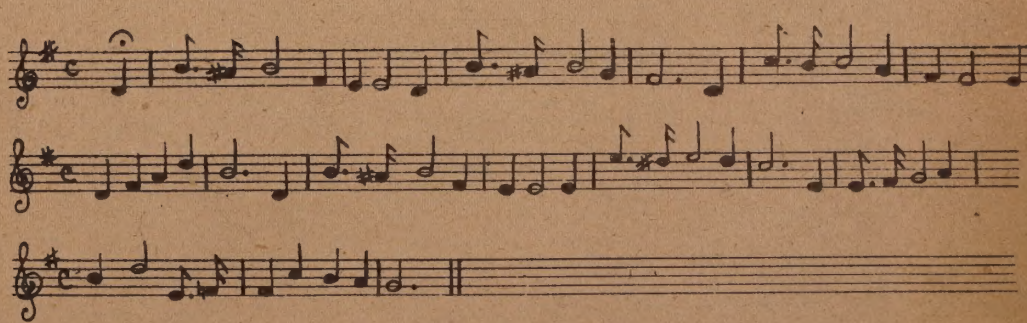
THE 19TH COMPANY'S WAR SONG

Sept. 13, 1917.



WE'LL HIT THE TRAIL OF THE KAISER.

We'll hit the trail of the Kaiser,
We are Yankees through and through,
We'll show the sons of Germany
What the U. S. A. can do;
We come from Massachusetts,
It's victory or die,
So we'll give a great big cheer, boys,
As the Grand Old First goes by.

When the boys from Massachusetts
Lead the line, by gee,
There will be something doing,
And done by the C. A. C.;
The O. D. outfit that we wear
Will show that we are brave.
And the red cord on our hats will tell
That we'll stick right to the grave.

In the trench of battle
Or wherever duty calls,
We'll show that we are soldiers
'Till everybody falls;
And when the foreign legions
Are passing in review,
The troops from Massachusetts
Will be there with them too.

And when the war is over
And the boys come marching home
The boys from Massachusetts
Will shine like the "Golden Dome;"
Then our mothers, wives and sweethearts
Will be some proud to say
That the boys from Massachusetts
Were the first to lead the way.

Our regiment's a good one,
Artillery is our game,
And on the field of battle
We'll honor our good name;
Massachusetts is our home,
For her we'll fight and die;
So we'll give a great big cheer, boys,
As the Grand Old First goes by.

—Words and music by Private Searles, 5th Co.

CHAPIN HAD INFECTED HAND

New Bedford Man Has Been at Hospital in England.

Writes That American Troops Are Making a Big Hit Abroad.

Dec 20-17

Word of another New Bedford man in a hospital in England reached here today when a letter from Regimental Supply Sergeant Charles E. Chapin formerly of the fourth company, C. A. C., was received, stating that he had just been discharged after having been confined two weeks, eight days of which period he spent in bed. Sergeant Chapin was suffering from an infected hand, but is now discharged, and presumably at the present time is in France, for he stated in his letter that he had been placed in command of a detachment of American soldiers recently discharged from London hospitals and was to take them to the American base in France the next day.

Sergeant Chapin went out of here with the fourth company in July, was transferred to the 101st ammunition train at Westfield, and on October 2 sailed for France. His letter of today is the first that his family has received from him since his departure from America.

He says that the American troops are making a big hit abroad and that they are referred to as the "American Shell Eaters," because in the few actions in which they have participated they have shown a daring that has won the admiration of all the other troops.

NATIONAL WAR WORK COUNCIL

Drive in This City Underway for One of the Finest War Aids.

Letters from Nurse Now Abroad Gives Idea of Work of Mercy:

The Women's War Work Council, realizing that the women of America must help the women of the world, are this week conducting a campaign to raise $4,000,000 in America. New Bedford's small share of this amount ($10,000) should be quickly contributed.

How Money Will Be Spent.

The money that will be raised will be spent according to plans drawn up by the national board of the War Work Council. First, come the "hostess houses"—the first of which has been opened at Camp Devens, at Ayer,

...girls to support it.
These "hostess houses" are to be built to the number of 46, in all the cantonments and concentration camps throughout the country, and at a cost of $900,000. A "hostess house" is a home—takes the place of the homes the soldiers have left behind them. Here there are motherly women in charge; here the soldier may meet his sister, sweetheart, mother; here he can write home; here he can have his torn sweater sewed up, a lost button replaced; here he can get almost any kind of help and comfort that he could get from his own mother at home.

Second, the fund will provide for the construction or the taking over of "hostels"—a name given in England to better boarding houses. These "hostels" will be for the use of women who are at work in the city where the new cantonments. Hundreds of girls flocked to Ayer, for example, to work in the many new places of business. There were no acommodations; moral and health dangers surrounded them, almost over night. Now these "hostels" will provide lodging at a low cost, cafeterias where good food may be had at low prices recreation of the right kind, rest rooms, and the comforts that girls require.

Third, there are, it is said, soon to be 2,000,000 girls and women working in the munition and other plants in the country under practically the same conditions as those working in cantonment cities. They must be cared for in the way of "hostels", food, recreation, rest and care; the war work council fund plans to do it.

Cafeterias in Europe.

Fourth comes the plan of establishing similar "hostels" and cafeterias in Europe, where women badly need them, especially in the great munitions plants, where the girls have to wait in "bread lines" for their rations. Cafeterias are urgently needed, and the fund will supply them.

Fifth, the fund will follow the heroines of the war—the Red Cross and other nurses, who are often amidst scenes of carnage and blood and too often are without even the smallest degree of physical comfort. The war work council plans to supply the nurses with "rest huts."

In connection with the plan of the women's war work council to supply nurses abroad with "rest huts" it may be interesting to read a few extracts from letters written by Miss Edith L. Meates who was graduated from our own St Luke's hospital in 1906 and who is now a Red Cross nurse 'Somewhere in France." She says:

This is the beginning of the third week in our temporary barracks but we are packed up ready to move on short notice.

The remount station has been called the show place of the Ayer cantonment, the prettiest, the most restful, the nattiest part of the big military camp. This is the place where horsemen, picturesque riders from the west, men of independent means, many of them, enlisted men who have been attracted to the cavalry branch of the army, are being molded into form to "carry on" as a unit in America's big war machines.

MINIATURE AEROPLANE MODEL RECEIVED FROM NEW BEDFORD SOLDIER

April 28. 1918

John J. Bouchard of this city has received a miniature aeroplane, a faithful reproduction of a type of battle plane now in use, from Toby E. Mendes, a former patron of his barber shop, and now a member of an aero squadron on the western front in France.

The model is about nine inches in length from propeller to rudder, with wings one foot long. It is made of wood and wire and painted battle gray.

Flyers abroad spend much of their spare time in carving models of their planes, this being encouraged by their superiors, who appreciate the amount of unconscious study of the machines this sport entails.

DE MELLO ON A U-BOAT

New Bedford Boy Was Rescued When Jacob Jones Was Torpedoed.

Parents Received Telegram from Washington Last Evening.

News was received in this city early last evening that Albert DeMello, who was supposed to have been lost when the U. S. destroyer Jacob Jones was torpedoed by a German submarine on Dec. 6th, is alive.

There were 110 men on the Jacob Jones when she was sunk, and the news sent out soon after the incident stated that about half were saved and half lost.

As the news of those saved reached this side, the parents of Young DeMello, Antonio V. DeMello, of 121 Hathaway street, eagerly waited to hear that their son, who was a seaman on board the craft, had been saved, but until yesterday they waited in vain.

Last evening Mr. DeMello and his wife were overjoyed at receiving the following telegram from Washington, D. C., dated yesterday:

"Bureau just learned through the medium of the Red Cross, that the enlisted man from the Jacob Jones taken on board the German submarine and made prisoner, was your son, Albert DeMello, seaman, 2d class. He has probably been taken to one of the prison camps in Germany, and it is quite possible that more detailed information as to his location will be secured later. The bureau congratulates you on the good news that your son is alive.

It will be remembered that at the time the news came of the sinking it was stated that one man from the Jones was picked up by the U-boat.

Albert DeMello enlisted in the U. S. navy at Newport on October 9, 1916. Previous to enlisting he was employed at the Beacon mills in this city as a weaver. He is 20 years of age.

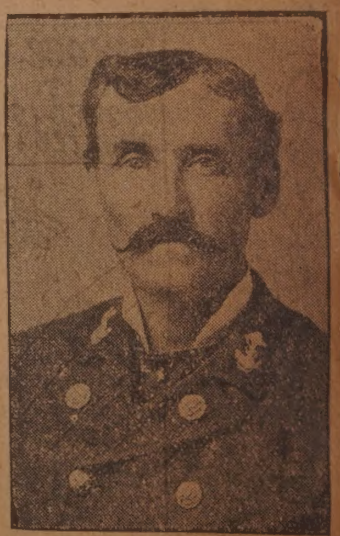
BENJ. W. TAYLOR IS 75 TODAY

Veteran of Civil War Served in Army and Navy---Observes Event at Home on North Street With Family.

Benjamin W. Taylor of 188 North street, this city, is today observing the 75th anniversary of his birth. Mr. Taylor was born in Nantucket but came to New Bedford when he was five years old. His early years as a young man were spent whaling and in 1864 he enlisted in the United States navy for Civil war service. Later he enlisted in the army as a member of the 23rd infantry. He is now associated with the Cumberland Association Sons of Veterans.



Benjamin W. Taylor.

Mr. Taylor returned to New Bedford at the close of the war and he has been here practically all the time since. Today, due to poor health, he is not receiving a large number of friends but the members of his family are helping him to celebrate the occasion.

OLDEST ACTIVE SHOEMAKER IN THE CITY

Nov. 1, 1917.

FIXING SHOES IN 79TH YEAR

But With Leather at a Dollar a Pound "It Takes All the Goodness Out of Shoe Fixing."

The oldest active shoemaker in New Bedford is probably Elijah W. Dickson, of 12 Lombard street, who in his 79th year, still repairs shoes in his shop at 321 County street. Mr. Dickson is in the best of health, his grip is still strong, and his step elastic. And he declares that he can still repair shoes "better than any machine."

He was born in Nottingham, England, and came to this country in 1899. He has been a shoemaker for 65 years, learning his trade when he was only eleven years old. He has had a shop on Wing or on County street for the last 18 years.

Business, he says, is good, but with leather at $1 a pound, "it takes all the goodness out of shoe-fixing." He still works six days a week. He used to sew ladies' shoes, 18 stitches to the inch, with silk, before there were any machines. At that time, paper was never used in shoemaking.

Mr. Dickson, until last summer, wore a long beard, which he had never cut. He has never shaved in his life, and his beard is soft and fine as silk, and as white as snow.

JOINS STAFF OF CHILDREN'S AID

Miss Marion Jenkins Has Recently Been Appointed in This City—Will Help in Preparation of Food.

Miss Marion Jenkins of this city has recently been appointed a member of the staff of the Children's Aid society workers. Besides being Miss Edith Terry's assistant at the children's clinic, Miss Jenkins will introduce a new phase of work into the society's social service by going into the homes of children under care at the clinic and teaching mothers how to prepare the foods prescribed by the doctors for the little ones. Her particular instruction will be baby feeding but she will also give lessons in how to feed under-nourished children or others requiring certain kinds of food to supply mineral matters lacking in their bodies.

Miss Jenkins is a graduate of the household arts department of the Framingham Normal school and she has had two years' experience as a teacher.

Seven Former High School Students In the List—Dudgeon Is a Sub On Varsity Squad at Bowdoin—Kirschbaum Candidate for Manager at Bates This Year.

Frank Ormerod.

J. Maxham Ryder.

Charles Kirschbaum.

Harold A. Dudgeon.

New Bedford is well represented in the Maine colleges, no less than seven graduates of New Bedford High being in attendance at various of the higher institutions of learning in that state. Bowdoin claims four of these men, Thomas Taber, N. B. H. S. '13, Frank H. Ormerod, '16, and Harold A. Dudgeon and J. Maxim Ryder, '17, being students at the Brunswick institution at this time. Taber is at present in Portland at the Medical School of Maine which is under the same organization as Bowdoin. Ormerod, Dudgeon and Ryder are all members of this year's freshman class in the college proper.

Dudgeon is already making himself known on the campus, his work with the football squads, this fall bringing him to the attention of the undergraduate body. He substituted at center for the 'varsity squad all season and got into several games; next year he has an excellent opportunity of making the first team as a regular. He starred at center for the freshman team, which defeated the team from the sophomore class last Saturday, 19 to 14. Dudgeon formed the backbone of the freshman defense and his work was favorably commented on by those who saw him play. Ormerod is working out this fall in preparation for trying out for the track team in the spring. Ryder is a candidate for the board of the Bowdoin Orient the college weekly. All three men are members of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

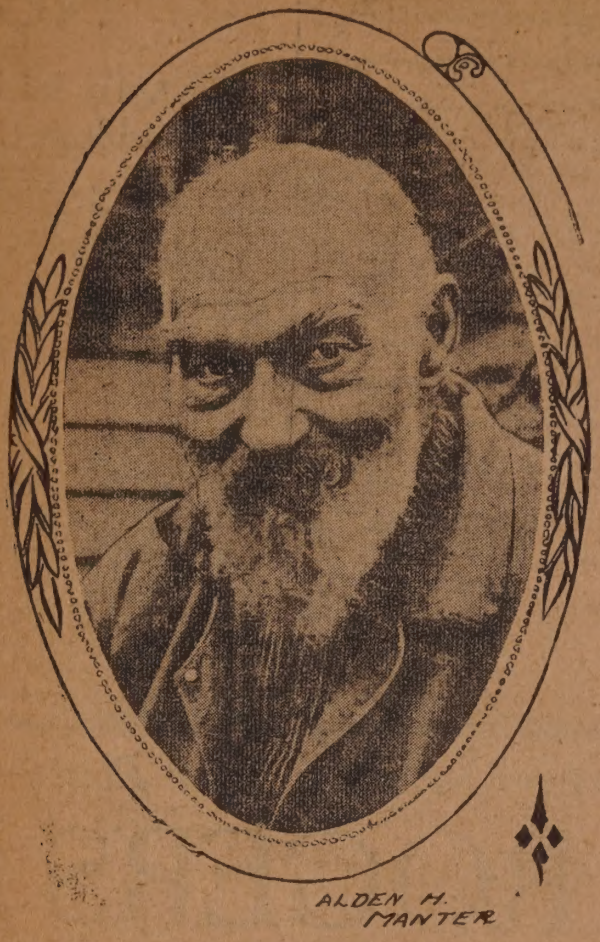
AGED LONG PLAIN MAN IN WRECK OF BARK CANTON DIES AT 85

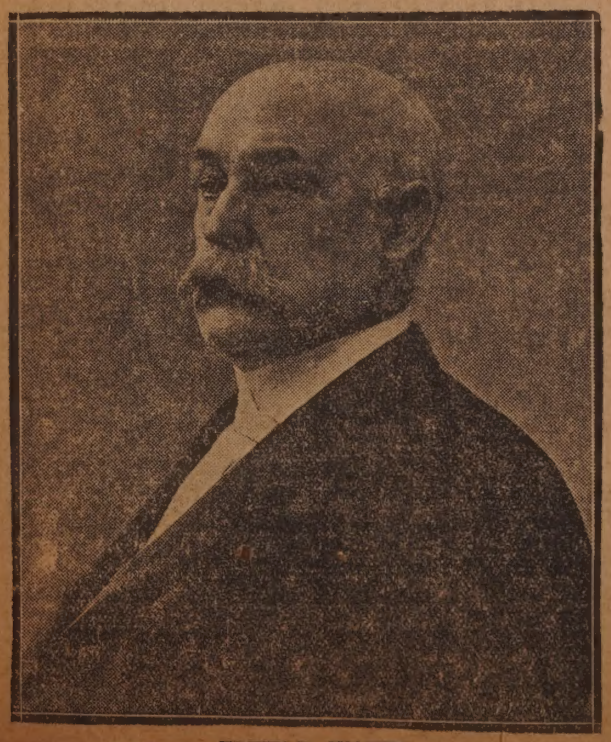
Nov. 8, 1917



THE LATE ALDEN H. MANTER.

DEATH OF EDWIN P. SEAVER, FOR MANY YEARS A GREAT EDUCATOR

Dec. 8, 1917.



EDWIN P. SEAVER.

OLD WHALEMAN IS DEAD AT 85

Alden Hathaway Manter, One of Three Survivors of Bark Canton, Wrecked on Island in 1853.

Alden Hathaway Manter, one of the three survivors of the ill-fated bark Canton and for many years respected resident of Long Plain, died Tuesday at the age of 85. The bark Canton on its last cruise in 1853 had on board from Long Plain besides its captain, Andrew J. Wing, Thomas E. Braley, still living, Mr. Manter, Wm. A. Ashley and William Bisbee. It was a thrilling experience to hear Mr. Manter tell of the Canton's shipwreck on an island in 1853, when 33 men sailed for 45 days in open boats under a tropical sun a distance of 3800 miles.

Mr. Manter was on deck, as it was his watch, when the bark struck a coral reef in the Micronesian sea. When he retired from the sea he became a farmer in Long Plain. The only survivors of the Canton's crew now are Thomas Braley of Long Plain and S. S. Longley of Greenleaf, Kansas.

SOLOIST AND PIANIST SELECTED FOR THE CONCERT OF HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

DEC 18 '17

Miss M. Elma Igelmann.

Miss Elizabeth Perkins.

The New Bedford High School orchestra will give its seventh musicale, Monday—tomorrow—evening at 8 o'clock in the High school auditorium. The orchestra will be assisted by Miss Elma Igelmann, soprano; Miss Rae Kilmer, harpist, and Miss Elizabeth Perkins. Miss Perkins is a talented young pianist of this city.

Miss Igelmann is already well known here as the possessor of a beautiful lyric, soprano voice. She is one of the soloists at Unitarian church and sings with exquisite clearness and sweetness.

Miss Kilmer appeared with the New Bedford Philharmonic orchestra last season and at that time her attractive personality and her music made her welcome here tomorrow assured.

Little need be said of Miss Perkins's ability in this, her home city. She is recognized as one of the most promising of the city's artists. Her well developed musical temperament is remarkable in a child of thirteen years. Miss Perkins has studied for six seasons with Miss Florence Forbes.

The High School orchestra is the most advanced of the school orchestras which are features of the public schools of the city. In the grammar departments, opportunities are given pupils with musical ability to become members of orchestras and when they reach the High school age they are eligible for membership in Orchestra II, which is a "prep" orchestra at the New Bedford High school. This orchestra plays Monday evenings.

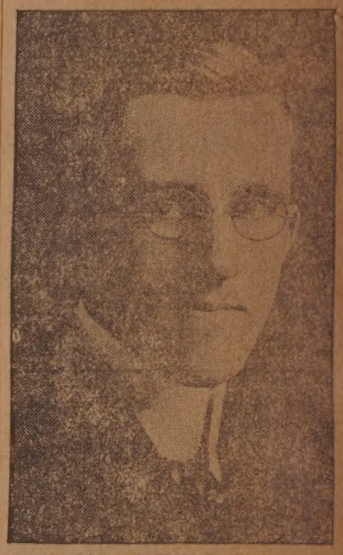
The advanced orchestra is composed of players who have received careful elementary training and the grade of work it does is skilled and of high class.

LIEUT. MAHONEY VISITS HIS HOME

Officer of Medical Reserve Corps Was First Physician in City to Volunteer Services---Has Been in West.

Dec. 20 '17

Dr. John F. Mahoney of 164 Chestnut street, who is now a first lieutenant in the Medical Officers' Reserve corps, U. S. A., and who since Oct. 17 has been at Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark., has been home on a brief furlough. He came home on Friday night, Dec. 14 and went back to duty on Sunday, Dec. 16.



Lieut. J. F. Mahoney.

Lieutenant Mahoney was sent east with a train load of troops bound for Camp Upton, L. I. After he left the troops, he was given liberty to return home for a short visit. On his way east, the train was stopped by a heavy blizzard, and the train crew had to shovel it out of the drifts.

This was Dr. Mahoney's first visit home since last July. He was born in this city, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Mahoney, and graduated from the New Bedford High school in 1911. He was the first New Bedford physician to volunteer his services, applying for his commission in April, when the United States first recognized that a state of war existed between this country and Germany, and received his papers on June 1.

Mrs. John F. Sullivan of 8 Studley street has received an interesting letter from her son, Private J. Frank Sullivan of Battery D, 102d field artillery. Private Sullivan tells in his letter of being "peppered with shells and gas" by the Huns, and of how the New Bedford boys retaliated in like manner on the morrow.

The letter follows:

Dear Mother:

THE PLACE DRAMA SHOULD HOLD IN THE COMMUNITY LIFE OF CITY

Discussed By Mrs. C. E. P. Thompson With Standard Writer —Looks Forward to the Production of Worth While Plays in Woman's Club.

BY MARY RYAN.

The dramatic committee of the New Bedford Woman's club, Mrs. C. E. P. Thompson of Fairhaven chairman, has made plans for two distinctive dramatic events within the coming months. The first will be a lecture given by Prof. George P. Baker of Harvard university on the "Development of the One Act Play in This Country." The address will be composed of parts of a series of lectures given by Prof. Baker at Boston university last winter. It will be remembered that this notable teacher of drama spoke in New Bedford about a year ago. The lecture is to be given in the First Baptist church on William street.

The second affair will be a comedy, "The New York Idea," which will be played by talent from the Woman's club. The cast has not yet been chosen. The play will be under the direction of Mrs. Thompson. The executive committee comprises: Mrs. Stephen H. Taylor, Mrs. Theodore Tillinghast, Mrs. Charles Macomber. The assisting committee includes: Mrs. Walter H. Bassett, Mrs. Elmer E. Robbins, Jr., Mrs. Percy I. Fletcher. The date for the performance has not been decided upon, but it will be given some time in February.

Has New Play Completed.

Mrs. Thompson who is known here as a playwright, has been a student of Professor Baker and for many years associated with Luther B. Anthony, the editor of The Dramatist who directed her early dramatic efforts and with whom she is now collaborating, and has been from time to time during the past years. Before her enrollment as a student of drama at Radcliffe, she wrote the play that admitted her. It is called "The Hurt That Heals" and the New Bedford public is conversant with its plot. This play was later taken up by Christabel Whitney Kidder who read it with much success for a season. The play which Mrs. Thompson wrote during her first year of study under Professor Baker is now being revised for a New York actress and it is expected that it will be produced in the near future. Mrs. Thompson spends a great deal of her time at present reconstructing plays of other authors in order to give them certain essential qualities which they lack or to adapt them to the choice of managers or players.

MRS. C. E. P. THOMPSON.

To Promote Drama In New Bedford.

Certainly there is no worker more zealous for the success of her work or more anxious to promote a knowledge of the art she loves among other people than Mrs. Thompson. As she expresses it herself, the study and the creation of drama is the most absorbing two-fold subject in the world. When the New Bedford Woman's Club was organized and Mrs. Thompson was elected chairman of the dramatic committee she dreamed of making the club a dominant factor for the promotion of drama in New Bedford. "I believed that the dramatic depart-

SEEKS REVENGE AGAINST HUNS

Private Turekian of New Bedford Asks Transfer to Fighting Unit.

Family Has Been Wiped Out by Turks Under German Officers.

(Special to The Standard.)

Camp Devens, April 10.—Private Vaughn T. Turekian, of New Bedford, an alien enemy attached to the 2d quartermaster's corps it was learned today is seeking transfer to a line company that he may take active part against Germany and avenge the outrages wrought on his own family.

Private V. T. Turekian.

His father, an uncle, and a brother who was a naturalized American citizen, were hanged by the German soldiers, and another brother and his mother were put in confinement more than two years ago and he has received no word of them since.

"Germany and her allies are my enemies," said Private Turekian today, "and I want to fight them. As it is now, I can do nothing as they consider me an alien enemy. Give a chance and I'll show that I mean it."

Turekian came to this country in 1909 at the age of 14. He is 23 now and has resided in New Bedford during the nine years he has been in this country. He was employed as a shoe worker by the E. E. Taylor Co and took out his first naturalizati papers to become a citizen of United States in December, 1916.

An older brother, Karofp Tur who was hanged by the Turki diers at the German orders, naturalized American citizen sided in New Bedford for

He returned to their birthplace, Ourfa, Turkey, in 1914.

The last news he has heard from his family was from a friend in Switzerland informing him that the ranch where he lived in Ourfa, Turkey, was attacked by Turkish soldiers under the command of German officers.

For 15 days his father, uncle and brothers defended the ranch and were forced to give up. Upon orders from the German officers his father, uncle and brother Karofp were hanged and another brother, Karaklan, and his mother placed in confinement.

He has never heard from his relatives since and feels his mother and brother have met the fate of his father and brother.

Private Turekian is a sturdy built soldier. He is well liked by his New Bedford comrades at Company E, 302nd Infantry, to which company he is seeking to be transferred. By many he was considered the best bayonet man in the company. He says:

"I am an Armenian by having been born in Harput, Armenia-Turkey, and in theory a Turkish subject. But I am an American through and through. All I want is a chance to prove my Americanism and get in active combat with my German enemies."

Officers at Camp Devens are taking interest in his case and Private Turekian, instead of being forced to remain in the non-combatant units of the army, may some day have his wish.

DARTMOUTH GIRL IS BRIDE OF A SOLDIER

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE HAMER. Dec. 30, 1917.

MISS WHITTAKER BECOMES BRIDE

Is Married to George Hamer at Her Home in Dartmouth —Groom Left to Join Company for Active Service.

A pretty home wedding of the week was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Whittaker, 16 St. Johns street, Dartmouth, when their daughter, Miss Mabel Whittaker, was united in marriage to Private George Hamer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. H. Kershaw of the Primitive Methodist church of this city who used the single ring service. The couple stood under an arch of the Allied flags which gave a military touch to the wedding. The wedding march was played by Miss Marjorie Talbot.

The bride was gowned in white voile overhung with shadow lace. She carried a bridal bouquet of roses and lilies. Mrs. Wilfred Green of Connecticut attended her as bridesmaid. Mrs. Green wore a gown of champagne colored taffeta silk and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Thomas Whittaker, a brother of the bride, served Private Hamer as best man. Immediately following the ceremony Private Hamer left to join his company which has been ordered into active service.

Among the many guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. James Hamer, John Whittaker, Mrs. Alfred Clarkson, Robert Wholley, James Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. David Emerson, Marjorie Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland, Miss Mary Harwood and Mrs. Hoefner.

STORM UNCOVERS HIDDEN BUILDING

Purchase Street Structure, Used as Storage, Comes to View.

Served as Backstop to the Billboard for Years.

When the recent storm blew down the billboard on the east side of Purchase street, just south of North street, it disclosed to view a small building which had been hidden from the gaze of pedestrians for many years. Now, the pedestrians who passed the place are asking of storekeepers in the vicinity: "When was that old building moved on to that spot?" or "Where did that little building come from?"

The fact is that the building has served as a backstop for the billboard for years. Originally the building was used as a photographer's studio and during recent years, hidden behind the board, it has served as a storage place for the owner. The observant citizen, who saw a door in the board, wondered for what purpose it was used. It served as an entrance to the building, connecting with the door on the building itself. It is proposed to hide the building with another board.

FOUND DYING BY HIS WIFE

Thomas W. Ramsden Taken Seriously Ill During the Night.

Well Known Organist Had Been Suffering from a Slight Cold.

Thomas W. Ramsden, organist at the Church of the Ascension, Fall River, Star in the East lodge, A. F.

Thomas W. Ramsden.

and A. M. of New Bedford, and one of the most widely known musicians in this part of the state, died suddenly this morning at 7 o'clock at his home at 8 Plymouth street. Because of a slight cold Mr. Ramsden did not fill his place at the lodge organ last evening, but remained home and went to bed early. When Mrs. Ramsden went to his room at 7 o'clock this morning she found him breathing very heavily and apparently sinking rapidly. She summoned Dr. David D. Pratt immediately, but Mr. Ramsden died before his arrival.

Mr. Ramsden first complained of feeling ill while playing at the Fall River church Sunday, believing then that he was suffering from tonsilitis. He continued his playing throughout both services, however. Last night he did not consider his condition at all serious, and both he and his wife felt that a good night's rest might bring him back to normal health.

Mr. Ramsden was 40 years of age and had been a resident of New Bedford ever since he was five years old, he was the son of John and Jane Ramsden and was born in Lonsdale, R. I. At an early age, Mr. Ramsden began his musical training, taking up study of the piano under Josiah Eaton, H. Winifred Goff and Miss H. E. H. Forbes, and the organ under Allen W. Swan, of this city and W. A. Locke and W. Spalding of Boston. In order that he might become more familiar with choir teaching, he took a special course in "boy choir" training under G. E. Stubbs of New York and as a honeymoon trip, took his bride to England, where for three months they visited cathedrals and studied the methods of organists and choirmasters. This training fitted him for the splendid service he performed later in New Bedford and Fall River churches.

Mr. Ramsden was connected with St. James Episcopal parish nearly 25 years, singing in the choir as a boy under Miss Forbes and succeeding her in 1895. After being organist for two years, Mr. Ramsden secured the position of organist at the Trinitarian church, staying there less than a year and left to become choir master and organist of St. James.

During this time, Mr. Ramsden was the organist of the Unitarian church, Fairhaven, covering nearly three years up to the time when their services was changed from afternoon to morning. He also had charge of the chorus choir and organ in the Congregational church, Marion, for two seasons and filled the position of pianist at the Sippican Casino, Marion, for seven years. Mr. Ramsden played the wedding music at the marriage of the late Richard Harding Davis and Miss Cecil Clerk of Chicago in Marion some years ago. Mr. Ramsden also went west to Oklahoma for some time.

Later, Mr. Ramsden became organist at the County Street M. E. church and in 1914 resigned his place there to again take up the Episcopal church work at the Church of the Ascension, Fall River.

Mr. Ramsden was organist at Star in the East lodge and was also a member of other branches of the Masonic fraternity, the Chapter, Council, Commandery and Shrine.

In 1903 Mr. Ramsden was married to Miss Blanche Maud March, daughter of James March of North Fairhaven. He is survived by a widow and two children, Beatrice and Willis, as well as by three brothers, George, Albert and Irving, and by two sisters, Edith Ramsden and Mrs. Richard Caldwell. The funeral arrangements had not been completed this morning.

T. W. KELEHER DIED TODAY

Well Known North End Man Victim of Long Illness--- Was Active in Local Labor Circles. Jan. 18, 1918.

Thomas W. Keleher died at his home at 1760 Acushnet avenue early this morning at the age of 49 years. He had been ill eight months. The deceased is survived by a widow in this city and three sisters and two brothers in Lowell.

Thomas W. Keleher.

Mr. Keleher was one of the best known men of the north end, where he had resided and had been concerned in various business enterprises for the past 15 years. He was at one time secretary of the Carders' union and late vice president of the Bartenders' union.

He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Independent Order of Red Men and the Foresters.

He was born in England, but came to this country with his parents and settled in Lowell while a young child. He removed to New Bedford 15 years ago.

He immediately became interested in fraternal and labor organizations and maintained an active part in all questions of organized labor almost until the time of his death.

MISS YVONNE DESAUTELS.

Miss Yvonne Desautels, daughter of Stanislaus Desautels, formerly of the overseers of the poor, is one of the city's prominen motor car enthusiasts. She has just purchased a new Peerless Seda Model 56 and the accompanying photograph shows her at the wheel o the new car. She is a skilled driver, the result of having operated severa different makes of automobile and to make a run of a day or a week is no unusual occurrence for the attractive young woman, who has many friends in this city.

Miss Desautels believes that there is no exercise so refreshing or s helpful to the health and complexion as automobiling and the advant age of being able to drive one's own car adds to the interest of riding

Silvero Brodeur Enlisted in Aviation Corps, Taken Ill, Now Doing Well--Telegram Received by Relatives.

Silvero Brodeur, son of Joseph Brodeur of 276 Nash road and formerly employed as a machinist at the National Spun Silk company, enlisted in the aviation corps two weeks ago and had hardly arrived at his destination, Camp Sam Houston, Texas, when he was taken ill with appendicitis and operated on. A telegram received by relatives here yesterday stated: Silvero Brodeur operated on today for appendicitis. Condition apparently good."

Silvero is not the only member of the Brodeur family in the service for his brother Clement, better known here as "Bob," is somewhere in France as a member of the Michigan truck unit and is probably in the thick of the fight. Clement is a sergeant. He lived here until two years ago when he went to Detroit and while employed at the Ford plant he was included in a unit which was be- made up. No word has been re- from him for six weeks.

TO WEAR GREY AT THE FUNERALS

Miss Moriarty Is One of Eight Licensed Undertakers in Entire State---Likes the Work and Is Enthusiastic.

To Miss Elizabeth Geils Moriarty belongs the distinction of being registered as New Bedford's first woman undertaker and embalmer. Miss Moriarty received her certificate from the state board of embalming a few days ago and she is to begin her work immediately with the assistance of another young woman. Some weeks ago she was given a diploma from the New England Institute of Anatomy, Sanitary Science and Embalming. In order to become eligible for admission to this institute, Miss Moriarty was required to have two years of experience in undertaking work. This she acquired with her father, John Moriarty of this city.

She will specialize with women and children's bodies and her first year in the business will be under the supervision and direction of her father, who has spent more than 25 years in the same work. When she directs a funeral she will dress in grey.

Asked if she did not find the work creepy at first, she answered: "No, not a bit. I guess I was born for it."

Khalil A. Totah, minister of the Friends' church at Central Village, Westport, has been ordered to report at the Red Triangle headquarters, New York, before going to France. He will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday morning.

Mr. Totah, although only 32 years of age, has already had an adventurous and thrilling career. He is a Syrian by birth, who came to this country to study, worked his way through Clark college, Worcester, and Columbia University. He left Columbia to become principal of an American boys' school near Jerusalem,—an institution maintained by the Society of Friends in New England.

During his second year there, he was snatched from the class room, as he described it, to serve in the Turkish army. He escaped from this unpleasant service by bribing a superior officer, and returned to the United States. He was for a time connected with the Young Men's Christian association, here.

He is enthusiastic over the new opportunity for adventures in Europe, where he will be given charge of a Red Triangle hut. Mr. Totah is married.

James J. Miller.

Here is the picture of James J. Miller, the Camp Devens man who has recently become the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Kelley of this city. Mr. Miller's home is in Hartford, Conn., and he went to Devens some months ago. A sweater knitted by Mrs. Kelley was the medium which led to the young man's adoption. A tag bearing the maker's name and address brought a letter of acknowledgement from Mr. Miller and this led to a correspondence between the young man and his present mother and later developed into adoption.

Mr. Miller is 24 years old and his parents are dead.

Private Pallatroni, in a letter to his mother here, states that in the course of the tour he has visited his native town of Filatierra, where he was born and lived for two years. At the age of two years, he came to this country and made his home in New Bedford until last April, 1917, when he enlisted in the 16th company, fifth regiment of the United States marine corps. He went to France soon after enlisting and saw 10 months fighting with the marines on the French front. He was then sent to Italy, where has now been a little less than two months.

He writes that he has seen many of his relatives over there. His aunts Marrying Parson," as, of course everybody knows, is Rev. Charles S. Thurber, of Seamen's Bethel. He has now married more than 550 couples,—more than any other pastor in the city and probably more than any other pastor the city has ever had.

The record of marriages shows the following:

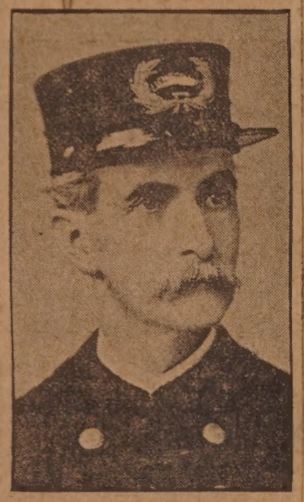
1915	82
1916	72
1917	98

The youngest person for whom he has performed the marriage ceremony was only 13 years of age; the oldest was 82. In no year has he had more curious adventures in this work than in 1917. On one Saturday morning, when he had a wedding at the south end scheduled for the latter part of the day, he invited relatives who were at his home for a sail down the bay. The wind died down toward noon, and the tide was making ebb fast. He thought of the young man and woman who expected him that afternoon to make them man and wife. He sent his boys out in the tender to tow them in. Off Crow Island, they ran into a stiff northwester, and arrived home at 3.45. He was able to get a bit of dinner and supper at the same time, and reached the south end of South Sixth street in time to perform the ceremony.

JOINED POLICE 37 YEARS AGO

Chief T. J. Taft Reminded of His First Night on Beat by Friday's Snow---Has Found Steady Promotion.

Jan. 6, 1918.



Chief Thomas J. Taft.

Just 37 years ago Friday night, Chief Thomas J. Taft of the police department stepped out of the police headquarters, made his way up Union street and for the first time walked a beat as a patrolman. His territory extended from Union street to Allen street and from County street west. He was reminded of this first experience as a police officer when he saw a flurry of snow fall Friday, because on that night 37 years ago he had to plod through heavy snow in going over his beat. It was a heavy storm and the snow fell straight downward. It was a comparatively warm night and the chief remembers well how perspired he was when he returned to headquarters after his first session.

He was later transferred to the Liberty hall beat at the center and later to the beat around police headquarters. From that time on he rose rank by rank and added stripe after stripe to his coat sleeve until today he occupies the highest office in the department and wears seven stripes on his arm, a record to be proud of.

SOME FIFTY YEARS AGO

LOCAL SOLDIER VICTIM OF WAR

Private George Mulligan Left New Bedford About Three Years Ago.

Had Previously Been Wounded in Action---Leaves Wife and Daughter Here.

Mrs. Mary Alice Mulligan of 1103 Acushnet avenue has just received word by cable from Blackburn, England, announcing the death of her husband, Private George Mulligan, who for the last three years has been serving in the army service corps of the British army. The deceased was wounded some time ago in a trench raid on the western front, and was invalided home to a military hospital in Lanarkshire, Scotland.

Private Mulligan developed pneumonia following a chill contracted while recuperating from his wounds, and died at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Barton, who resides at Blackburn. He died on Monday of this week, and will be buried in the Blackburn cemetery.

Answering the call of his country, he left this city in February just three years ago, returning to his old home and enlisting his service under the union jack. He was 46 years old at that time, and being too old for the fighting ranks, was content to accept service in the army service corps. Previous to leaving New Bedford he was employed as a bricklayer, and his last job in New Bedford was on the New Bedford storage warehouse. In addition to leaving a widow here, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Crowther, also of this city.

WHALING LANDMARK SOLD YESTERDAY

COMMERCIAL STREET BUILDING WHICH HAS COME DOWN THROUGH WHALING DAYS.

Passers-by the west wing of the Municipal building on Wednesday afternoons seldom fail to notice the attractive sight which the women employes of the building make as they sit in the assessors' room which faces on Sixth street, wearing their Red Cross rigs and working busily upon surgical dressings. These women decided to give one afternoon a week up to the work about four months ago, and they held their first meeting January 8th. Since then they have made splendid progress under the direction of Mrs. Charles T. Bonney and Miss Gertrude Smith. The average attendance each week numbers about nineteen. During the month of January they completed 1,132 surgical dressings, in February 1,581, and 2,015 in March.

GREEN PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

Stalwart Stone Building on Commercial St. Becomes Property of Charles E. and Wilhelmina A. Beckman.

One of New Bedford's landmarks changed hands yesterday when Haskins & Gibson sold for the estates of Hetty H. R. Green, Edward Mott Robinson and Sylvia Ann Howland to Charles E. and Wilhelmina A. Beckman property on the north side of Commercial street, extending from Front street to within 32 feet of Water street. The property contains 30.82 rods of land, on which is the stone building now occupied by the store and sail loft of Briggs & Beckman, and which also contains a wooden building, located at the easterly end of the property at the corner of Front street.

The stone building extends from 21 to 35 Commercial street. It was known formerly as the sail loft of the late Simpson Hart, and is now occupied for the same purpose with store and north rooms by Briggs & Beckman. The building is one of the landmarks of this city and stands as one of the monuments to the whaling industry, reaching back to the prosperous days of I. Howland, Jr., & Co. down through the time of Edward Mott Robinson, Sylvia Ann Howland to Hetty H. R. Green. For a half century or more it has been the leading loft for the making of sails for the whaling ships, and there today sails are made that are shipped to many parts of the world. Russia is one of the countries for which sails have been made.

Portions of the property were owned by each of the three estates and it represents part of the property which is being sold for the distribution of the Sylvia Ann Howland estate.

The land first came into the possession of the Howland family back in Revolutionary war days. About the year 1777 Isaac Howland erected a woden building on the land and this was used as a distillery until burned by the British when they raided this vicinity. A second building was erected. Because it was painted yellow, it became known as the Yellow Store, although it was, like the first building, used as a distillery. This building was removed to make way for the stone building now existing, which was built by I. Howland Jr. & Co. The money made from the distillery was the real foundation of the Howland fortune, which is now being distributed.

OFFICER GOES BACK TO ARMY

Patrolman Hammersley Has Returned to His First Love.

Was in U. S. Forces for Seven Years and Had Excellent Record.

One of the earliest and most noticeable effects of the war is the rapid depletion in the ranks of public servants. Whether this is because, having derived their living from the country, this class of citizens is more patriotic than his brother or whether his going to war is more noticeable because of the obvious and readily remarked vacancy which he leaves cannot be determined. Among the many municipal departments that have sent their men into military service in New Bed-

SERVING AS COOK

William E. Cranshaw Writes of Safe Arrival in France.

William E. Cranshaw, who is serving as cook with the 55th regiment, Battery D, has written his wife at 130 Fair street, announcing his safe arrival in France with the members of the old Fourth Company of this city. He spent some time in England previous to arriving at his present camp, and states that the majority of his chums have very unpleasant recollections of their rough crossing of the English channel.

Mr. Cranshaw speaks enthusiastically of the life in France, and likes the country first rate. On their first day he was one of four cooks who were called upon to prepare breakfast for 1645 men, and states that he welcomed the rest which followed his arduous duties. He sends his regards to his many friends in New Bedford.

Transport Did Everything But Turn Over and Sink, Collins Writes.

New Bedford, Texas, Canada, France, has been the itinerary of Joseph Collins of this city since he enlisted last April in the United States army, and a letter received from him today states that despite his unpleasant experiences he is well and happy and anxious to get into real action. Private Collins is now a member of Troop H, 3d cavalry, American Expeditionary Forces. He went from New Bedford to Fort Slocum, then down to Texas for training, then to Canada, later embarked on a transport and is now "pulling through mud ankle deep" somewhere immediately behind the fighting lines in France.

Joseph P. Collins.

On the way over, the transport had an unusually rough trip and for three days, the men wore life belts day and night. "The ship did everything but turn over and sink," writes Collins and it was a mighty sick lot of soldiers aboard of her.

The men in France are well fed, he writes and well cared for in every way, the only drawback being that there is no "chance to go to dances such as we used to do in the good old north end of New Bedford," he concludes.

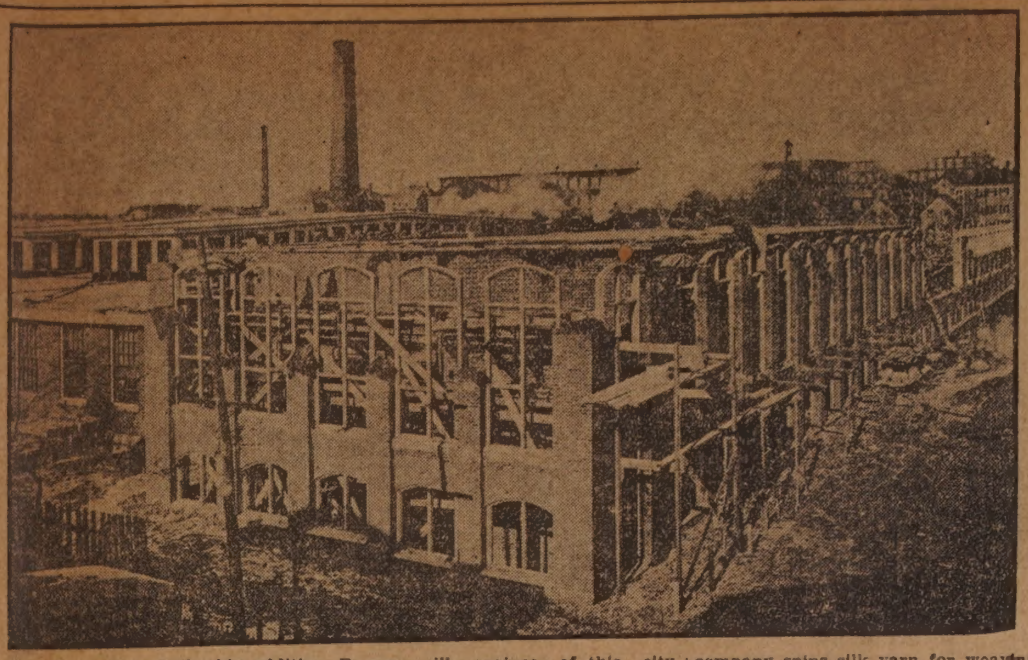
BIG ADDITION TO SILK MILL HERE

Jan. 13, 1918.



Here is a view of the big addition to the plant of the National Spun Silk company which is now under construction. While almost every one in this city is watching the growth of the cotton mills here, the fact that New Bedford is soon to have one of the biggest silk mills in this part of the country is being overlooked. The former Oneko mill plant has been equipped to its capacity with the most modern of silg manufacturing machinery, and now this large four-story addition is underway. The new structure was designed by Charles W. Fraray, mill engineer of this city, who has planned many of the newer mills in this city and elsewhere in New England.

This addition to the National Spun Silk company's plant is 340 feet long by 60 wide, thus providing additional floor space of over 80,000 square feet. It will probably be completed in March, and will be equipped as soon as possible. When the enlarged plant is in full operation, the company will employ about 1200 operatives, which is equal to the working force in the Potomska or Holmes mills. The company spins silk yarn for weaving or sewing thread. On account of the fact that there are thousands of operatives in the cotton mills here who are trained in handling silk, it is believed by many that the growth of the National Spun Silk company forecasts the development of New Bedford as a silk manufacturing as well as a cotton manufacturing center.

The National Spun Silk company is a subsidiary of the Klots Throwing company, which has 14 mills scattered through Pennsylvania and various parts of the south.

HAILE R. LUTHER IS DEAD AT 79

Former State Senator Succumbs After Several Days' Illness.

Was Veteran Member of the Dartmouth Club and a Staunch Republican.

Feb 19, 1918

Haile R. Luther, ex-senator, ex-representative, ex-councilman and a veteran member of the Dartmouth club, died in this city this morning after an illness of several days. Mr Luther was 79 years of age, and although he had been up and around had not been in good health since an attack of pneumonia which he suffered last spring.

Mr. Luther, who was familiarly known as "Senator," was born in this city Feb. 7, 1838. He attended the Grove public school and completed his education at the High school. after graduating he worked as clerk for George Tappan, a crockery merchant, and was employed there for 20 years. He worked for S. G. Nye, a grocer, for 12 years, and later went into business for himself in Purchase street. Subsequently for many years he was a clerk at the old Mansion house.

Mr. Luther was a member of the city council two years under Mayors Howland and Dunbar. He was in the house of representatives of the state in 1890 and 1891. Mr. Luther was always a staunch Republican. He had a host of friends around town, and his popularity never seemed to wane even with his increasing years.

Robert H. Andrews.

a telegram from Washington last evening.

Andrews was last heard from in February, when he was well. His only mischance in the service occurred when he was kicked by a horse some months ago.

He was a registrant in division 3, and, so far, he is recorded as the first New Bedford registered man to be killed in action. Several selected men have died of disease since June 5 of last year, the registration day, but none is known to have been killed in service.

Private Andrews enlisted in Battery D, then a Massachusetts organization, May 31, of last year. He trained with the battery at Boxford, and went across early in the winter for the training in France as a member of the 102d Regiment, 26th Division, 51st Brigade, A. E. F.

Before enlisting he was employed for five years by his brother, Thomas W. Andrews, as clerk in charge of the grocery store at the corner of Kempton and Ash streets, where he made many friends. He was well known in that section of the city, where he boarded with his sister at 323 Mill street, and also with his brother, Frank, on Kempton street.

He was son of the late Rev. Stephen M. Andrews, a Congregational minister who died about a year ago, having been pastor of churches at Cannonville in this city, Hixville and Smith Mills, in this section, and also in other New England towns, and Hannah Andrews, who is now living in West Wareham. He was born in Windsor, Conn., April 25, 1896, and went to school in Millington, Conn. There were 12 children in the family, six boys and six girls, and Robert was the youngest. He is the fourth of the family to die, the mother, four brothers and five sisters surviving him. He was single. The news of his death caused much sorrow among his friends.

Thomas W. Andrews received the following telegram at his home, 25 Rotch street, last evening:

"Deeply regret to inform you that Private Robert H Andrews, field artillery, is officially reported as killed in action on April 12. McCain, adjutant general."

TESTIMONIAL REACHES HERE

French Government Appreciative of the Work of American Ambulance Drivers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Baylies Receive Parchment in Honor of Son, Frank.

In appreciation of the services of their son, Frank Baylies, as a driver in the American Ambulance corps in France, the French government has forwarded to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Baylies of this city, an elaborate illuminated parchment, which can be framed, and which will be one of the cherished possessions of the Baylies family in the years to come. The parchment is over two feet square, and is beautifully engraved and printed.

At one side are figures of French and American soldiers of the Revolutionary war; on the other side are figures of a French soldier of today and a driver in the American Ambulance corps. The lettered inscription, which is in French, reads as follows:

"Frank L. Baylies served as a volunteer in the American Ambulance Field service from February 26, 1916 to May 11, 1917. Faithful to the ancestral friendship of France and the United States, he devoted himself in the French army to bring aid on the battle line to the wounded in the War for Right. Before entering the service of the United States later on, he served in the Somme, at Verun and in the Argonne as a driver in the American Sanitary Sections No. 1 and No. 3. He was cited in the orders of the 57th division."

Now an Aviator.

Mr. Baylies, since leaving the ambulance service had trained as an aviator and is now flying regularly in France. At first he was attached to the French air service but will be, if he has not already been, transferred to the American air service.

Philip A. Green Was Toastmaster For Waste Men

Jan. 13, 1918

Philip A. Green.

Philip A. Green, treasurer of the William C. Jones Company of this city, did the honors as toastmaster at the annual banquet of the American Cotton Waste Exchange at the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, on Tuesday evening of last week. With 200 members and guests present, and patriotic support of the nation in the present crisis the keynote of the post-prandial speeches, the gathering was most inspiring.

Not the least of the events of the evening was the contribution of $400 for the purchase of tobacco and cigarettes for the boys in France, and the vote to send a message to the secretary of war asking that tobacco be made a part of the ration of the American soldier.

The speakers of the evening included Ex-Governor David I. Walsh, Joseph Conry, Russian consul, Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and three young men who have seen service in the war in Europe, Sergeant H. E. Feeney, Brigadier Charles B. Flammond and Sergeant Ashland. The banquet room was profusely decorated with American flags.

LIEUTENANT ALFRED S. MILLIKEN,
April 12-1918 KILLED IN ACTION IN FRANCE

LIEUTENANT ALFRED S. MILLIKEN.

Lieutenant Milliken was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Milliken of 39 Sycamore street. He was born in this city 26 years ago and educated in the public schools, graduating from the High school with the class of 1909. He attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and graduated in 1914. He was employed on the staff of the office of the U. S. engineer at Newport and worked here for a time while the river was being dredged. Later he entered the employ of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey and worked sweeping Buzzards bay. After that he entered the employ of a private contractor at Providence. He attended the officers' training camp at Plattsburg during the summer of 1917.

He entered the regular army soon after the outbreak of the war, and was transferred to the western front in France late in November last year.

Lieutenant Milliken was well known in this city and was a member of the North Congregational church. At the time of his enlistment he was employed as an engineer by a Providence firm of contractors, by whom his brother is at present employed in the same capacity. An older brother, Dr. James Milliken, died a few years ago.

MRS. TRACY HAS UNUSUAL RECORD

Widow of Civil War Veteran and Mother of Soldier in War Rebellion Had Grandson in the Spanish War.

Patriots' Day, April 19th, Mrs. Mrs. Nancy A. Tracy of Highland avenue, Onset, will observe her 93rd birthday. It seems especially fitting that Mrs. Tracy's birthday should come on Patriots' Day, for she is the widow of a Civil war veteran, the mother of a Civil war veteran and the grandmother of a veteran of the Spanish American war. Her husband, John R. Tracy, served in the second Wisconsin cavalry, her son, Major George E. Tracy, now of Wareham, was a member of the Wisconsin 32nd volunteer infantry and her grandson, William E. Tracy, fought in the 22nd company of the regular army in the Spanish war. Mrs. Tracy as would be expected takes a keen interest in the part that the United States soldiers are taking in this present war. In spite of her years, Mrs. Tracy enjoys good health and her mind is clear and active. She is an honorary member of the General William T. Sherman Woman's Relief Corps of Wareham and of the S. Delano Circle of the Ladies Grand Army of this city.

Walter Rawcliffe is another member of the New Bedford camp of Spanish War Veterans to answer the call to service. As a young man he entered the service as an apprentice, and after nine years' service he was honorably discharged with a rating of first class gunner's mate. He now answers the call when men of experience are needed.

During his previous service he graduated from the gunnery school at Washington, D. C., and from the torpedo station at Newport, R. I., and also qualified as a diver. In 1902, while attached to the U. S. S. Mayflower he was detailed as orderly to Ex-President Roosevelt. He did duty on all classes of vessels and has been with the flag in all parts of the world.

He is now at the torpedo station at Newport for a few weeks, when he expects to be transferred to sea duty with a rating of chief gunner.

of brick. The fields are rather small and one hardly sees a wire fence here, all the fences are built of stone or hedges. I have got used to the English money.

As we are not allowed to write much you will have to wait until my return home, then I will tell you a great story. Give my respects to all my friends and tell them I would be pleased to receive letters from them. I certainly will never regret that I enlisted to do my bit for democracy, and I will at all times give to this righteous cause my best efforts. Then, when we have won the great fight (which we most surely will) you will be proud to think that you had a son who did his duty and who sacrificed all his future ambitions to serve his country in time of trouble.

Rev. W. S. MacIntire Believes He Has Been at Pleasant Street Church Long Enough.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Pleasant Street Methodist Episcopal church was held last evening, presided over by District Superintendent J. I. Bartholomew, with a good sized attendance.

In his report, the pastor, Rev. W. S. MacIntire, told of a year of progress in church work, and that all the societies were in good shape. He referred to the success of the recent evangelistic campaign held in the church. He stated that in his judgment the time had come for a change in pastors, he having finished his fifth year. He referred to the fact that only one pastor in recent years had served a longer pastorate.

A committee of five was appointed to confer with the district superintendent in relation to a pastor.

The following are the officers elected and the standing committees of the church for the coming year:

"survivor of the Boston fire." The badge is attractive, bearing above a fireman's helmet, and the inscription on the face, "Survivor of the Boston Fire." In the center is the face of a fire alarm box, bearing the number 52,—the box which sounded the alarm for the great fire.

Only three of the original members of this company are living: Joseph B. Wing, John C. Emery and Mr. Gibbs. Benjamin C. Groves was what was then called a "torch boy," or substitute, and went to Boston with his company. There were sixteen members of the company which left New Bedford on the 2 o'clock train and arrived there about six. The fire began on Saturday night. Abraham H. Howland, Jr., was chief engineer and Alfred M. Chapman assistant.

DEATH OF S. W. GODFREY

Was Civil War Veteran and an Officer at House of Correction for 27 Years---A Victim of Pneumonia.

Seth W. Godfrey, a veteran of the Civil war, and an officer at the house of correction for many years, died yesterday, of pneumonia. He had been in poor health for several years.

during the Civil war served in the Fourth Massachusetts regiment.

He came to New Bedford shortly after the war, in 1865, and became affiliated with the firm of H. G. O. Cole, carriage manufacturer. He afterwards took over the business under the name of Godfrey & Howland, but in 1878 sold out the business.

He was elected to the common council in 1880, when Mayor Wilson went into office and served during 1881, 1882, 1883, and 1884. In 1886-1887 he served as represetnative in the legislature from the sixth Bristol district, and in 1887 was appointed an officer at the New Bedford house of correction, where he served for 27 years.

Mr. Godfrey served six years on the school board, being elected in the fall of 1890, and retiring at his own request in January, 1897.

At one time he was very prominent in temperance work in New Bedford.

On Jan. 1st, 1917, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, at their home, 429 Union street.

Mr. Godfrey was a member of Post 1, G. A. R., and a past noble grand of Acushnet lodge, I. O. O. F.

Deceased leaves a widow, and one daughter, Miss Eva B. Godfrey.

MRS. EARL WOOD DIES.

Wife of Edmund Wood Closely Connected with the Friends.

Margaret Earl Wood, wife of Edmund Wood, died yesterday after a brief illness. Margaret Earl Wood was the daughter of Oliver V. Earl and Margaret Morris Collins of Worcester, and by birthright connected with many leading Friends of this country. She was closely connected with Friends in Philadelphia and was the fifth in descent to bear the name of Margaret Morris. Her Earl ancestry connected her with old Dartmouth, where the Earls originally of Portsmouth, Rhode Island, were prominent in the early days. Her exceptional environment and her wide experience of travel in this country and in Europe gave her a broad knowledge of the world and its people.

Mrs. Wood was married in 1895 and has made her home in New Bedford since, adopting this city as her own and forming enduring friendships here. Her life was one of great fullness of joyful interests, yet much of it was spent in the enforced inactivity of serious invalidism. Her courage and her constant helpfulness to others made her widely known and dearly loved by a large circle of friends both in New Bedford and elsewhere. Her tact as a hostess and her ever ready humor made her home life one of constant pleasure to herself and to her friends. She has rendered much charitable service in this community and during the past year has been one of the leading workers of the local Red Cross activities.

Battery D Bugler Writes to His Parents of Life in France

Bugler Len McDonnell.
Nov. 8, 1917.

Bugler Len McDonnell, who is now a bugler in Battery D, and formerly a member of the Y. M. C. T. A. bugle band, John Welsh leader, has written home from "somewhere in France." A card bearing the inscription "On active service" has been received by Mr. Welsh. It reads:

"Well, Jack, how's the old bugle band getting along? Wait until all the boys come back!

"Some speed then.

"Best wishes,

"Len."

To Mr. and Mrs. John F. McDonnell of 116 Rivet street, his parents, he wrote that he is in the best of health.

"This country is much different from the U. S. in style—that is, what we have seen of it; and as I look around, it looks just like Ireland to me, with its small brick houses with straw roofs, and the peasants with their wooden shoes and baskets, and the buggies and teams with only two wheels. The weather here is much different, too,—one minute it's raining and then the sun shines, and the wind does certainly blow. It's pretty cold over here.

"I have not been out on pass yet. I'm afraid of getting lost, and when you ask anybody how to get back to camp, they can't understand you; so I think I'll stay in and hang around the Y. M. C. A., where there is music all the time. All kinds of tobacco are high over here, like Prince Albert 14 cents a can, gum two cents a stick, candy about 15 cents for 5 cent stick, and cigars—I haven't seen any that I like.

"At this writing, we haven't received any mail for three weeks, and may be you won't receive this letter for a month from now, but we've got to make the best of it."

THE NEW BEDFORD CLUB AT CAMP GORDON, ATLANTA

Jan. 16, 1918

The New Bedford Circle Club, composed of New Bedford boys in military service at the national army cantonment at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., now has well over 150 members. Edward F. Souza is president, Abram Ofstrock vice president, Edward Dutra secretary and Hy Cohen treasurer. The club was organized by Souza, who is a leader in the activities of the men stationed in Atlanta. Business meetings are held every Monday night, and there are entertainments of various natures every evening. The headquarters of the association is at one of the numerous Young Men's Christian Association buildings at the camp.

said Mr. Walmsley. "It is a very painful subject to me and I'd rather not be asked to go into details regarding it. To say it was "hell" would be putting it far too mildly. I had my share of it, perhaps more than my share, and I want to spend the rest of my life trying to forget the terrible things I heard and saw. I've had enough—and more."

The gas attack by the Germans that finally put Mr. Walmsley out of the war was launched some time last September. "I have forgotten just what day it was. For a long time I could remember nothing, and now only a part of it has returned to me," he said. "I was going about my duties as usual. I was not actually in the trench with a gun at the time, my particular job being general duties in the vicinity. I was attached to the King's Shropshire Light Infantry, and although transferred from time to time, most of the time I was in the service was spent with that regiment. It was a 'pioneer battalion'—that is, our duties called upon us to lay rail and do all sorts of jobs like that, oftener than it did to help hold a trench—although there was nobody

MET LOCAL BOYS IN FRANCE

Ulric L. Gregoire Back in This City on Orders to Washington.

Has Been Serving as an Interpreter With American Forces Overseas.

"Don't write to your soldier boy in France that his absence is making you lonesome and that you are longing for his return but tell him, instead, that you are glad and proud that he is there and that he is to stay there until the Kaiser is licked good and plenty," is the message brought home to this city by Ulric L. Gregoire who is here on an indefinite leave direct from France and who is to report to Washington shortly.

Gregoire said yesterday that he felt that he should give this information to mothers and sweethearts here as the result of chats with several New Bedford boys outside an American camp in France. These boys, while cheerful and happy, gave Gregoire the impression that messages of encouragement would help out a lot.

Gregoire left this city last May, arrived abroad June 10 and next stepped on American soil on January 8. During that time, he acted in turn as an automobile driver and then as an interpreter and his story is a most interesting one. It is interesting in spite of the fact that all but the comparative little must be kept under his hat. As an interpreter he learned much of the "inside" information and he is bound to secrecy.

Many different types of uniforms are seen on New Bedford streets these days and that worn by Gregoire appears different to all others that have preceded. Although he holds no rank, he is tendered the courtesies usually given a lieutenant.

Feeding the Guns.

When he got down to business after his arrival in France, he found himself driving a big truck in the transportation department. Feeding the French 75's was his task for two months. There were 20 trucks in each convoy. On each truck was loaded 52 cases of nine shells each. Each shell cost $15. The men would rise at 5 in the morning, wait until their trucks were loaded and then start off toward the battle lines. They would proceed about halfway and wait until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Then they would resume their journey, arriving at the park about four miles

DRAFT SOLDIER NOW IN ENGLAND

D. Dester DuBois Left Here for Camp Devens Sept. 19 and Is Now Abroad.

Connected With Truck Co. of the 101st Supply Train With 26th Division.

The first letter from a draft soldier from New Bedford to reach Europe has been received in this city. It came from D. Dester Du Bois, a son of Dosithee Du Bois of 161 Deane street and a brother of Mrs. Dora D. Demers of the same address. Du Bois writes the letter to his sister from Southampton under date of Oct. 13, and like all the soldiers' letters that come from abroad he writes of the heavy rainfall there.

Du Bois was registered in division one and went away as one of the draft men from that division on Sept. 19, with the quota going to Camp Devens. He was at the national army cantonment for five days, when he was transferred to Westfield, and in a short time he was on his way to Europe as a member of the first truck company of the 101st supply train, attached to the 26th division of the American expeditonary forces. Before leaving the city he was employed at O'Neil's garage. Du Bois writes as follows:

Dear Sister:

Hoping this letter finds you all in good health. As it leaves me now I am enjoying the best of health, only a slight cold. In this country it rains for a while and then stops and the sun shines and dries your clothes on your back. It will rain hard and the sun will shine at the same time.

Well Dora six weeks ago I did not think I should be so far from home as I am now. In the last four weeks believe me I've seen some country and some sights. I did not think I would ever in my life see so much and we've got a lot to see yet. Above all I hope that some day I'll be able to sit down and tell you all about it. Tell father that I'm getting along pretty good and I think of you both every minute of the day and pray that I may see you both again. Send my regards to Fall River to grandma and all the folks there; also to my godmother and tell her to write to me. Believe me, it's lonesome at times, and we have not been paid yet. That makes it worse, no cigarettes, no tobacco and no money to buy anything with, not even matches. I wish I could have my cigarettes now, but I suppose I'll get them some time and when I do

Battery D Boy Proud and Happy To Be a Soldier

An interesting letter has been received from Chester W. Chase, one of the Battery D boys. He writes as follows:

"Since I wrote last we have moved to another camp and it is sufficient to say that the boys are all happy. It is strange how many rumors that peace has been declared have spread through the camp. I wish you could see some of the village scenery here and especially the French soldiers. Santos and I are still hitting the trail together.

"This war is certainly a great game of Life and Death but I should hate to be physically unfit so that I could not do my bit. When I come back I shall certainly have something to talk about. Tell mother not to worry and that some day we will come marching up Purchase street with out heads up in the air and our chests as big as balloons."

Wants Cake Like Mother Used to Make Writes Montgomery

DEC 18'17

Joseph Montgomery.

Joseph Montgomery was in particularly happy mood when he wrote a letter to his mother in this city recently from his post at Chickamauga Park, Georgia. He told of the Thanksgiving dinner which had been provided for the men of his company, and he told of his fellow soldiers being invited out to dinner by Chattanooga citizens on the day after writing the letter. He asks that his mother send him a nice home-made cake for Christmas, because Joe has remembrances of the cake that mother used to make. He reports being well and adds that he hopes to be home for a 10 day furlough soon. Montgomery enlisted July 5.

transferred to a camp in New Jersey. About a month ago, a number of his north end friends went down to New Jersey to visit him, as he expected then to leave any day for across. No letter has been received from him since that time, and his friends imagine that he has gone across and is now too busy to write. Karalekas has one brother in the army, and two others have enlisted in the navy, making four sons in the service.

FAIRHAVEN SCHOOLS' HEAD GOING TO FRANCE

Charles F. Prior Elected for Three Years and Given Year's Leave of Absence—Place Will Be Taken by Oliver H. Toothaker.

April 2 - 1918

Charles F. Prior, superintendent of schools of Fairhaven, Mattapoisett and Acushnet, was re-elected for a three-year term at a meeting of the joint committees held at Fairhaven. The committees also granted Mr. Prior a year's leave of absence, beginning

Charles F. Prior.

May 1, to allow him to engage in the duties of Y. M. C. A. secretary for overseas work. Mr. Prior expects to leave about that time to begin his new duties.

The board also voted to engage Oliver H. Toothaker of Fitzwilliam, N. H., as substitute superintendent until Mr. Prior's return to school duty. Mr. Toothaker is now superintendent of a four-town district in New Hampshire and makes his home at Fitzwilliam.

Mr. Prior has a wife and child, who will continue their residence in Fairhaven. Mr. Prior has been engaged in schoolwork for about 20 years. Much of his early school official life was spent in Vermont. Twelve years ago he came to Massachusetts, first going to the western part of the state, then to Grafton and then to Fairhaven. He looks forward to his work enthusiastically, realizing the hardship and the danger that a Y. M. C. A. war secretary is expected to run up against.

CAPTAIN THOS. H. WILSON DEAD

Old-time Whaling Master and Member of Police Force in This City for a Great Many Years.

Captain Thomas H. Wilson, one of the old time whaling masters and for many years a member of the New Bedford police department, died at his residence yesterday corner of Summer and Middle streets after a short illness aged 81 years.

Captain Wilson in his younger days took to the sea, and like all the young men of the age went whaling. He rose gradually through the grades and in the early '60's assumed command. He was master of ships Milton, James Arnold and several first class whalers of the day, retiring in the early '80's from the sea. He was appointed a member of the New Bedford police department as patrolman on March 7, 1885, and day housekeeper at the Willis street police station on June over there who didn't get all of that that was coming to them. I was busy about my duties when the gas attack was launched. I can't describe the sensation,—nobody could. I just began to feel kind of funny inside. I didn't know what the matter was and it was three days before I got so bad that the evidences showed I was a victim of the gas. My internal organs, particularly my heart, were affected badly. I went to the hospital and was shifted from hospital to hospital until I eventually landed back in Blackburn, England, which is my native home. I spent six weeks there and then came across, discharged as physically unfit to perform further duties for 'king and country.' I am mighty glad to get back. I have seen enough war to last me as long as I live."

Mr. Walmsley is 40 years old. He left New Bedford on Aug. 22, 1916, for Blackburn, England, where he enlisted in the infantry. Nine months of his 20 months' service were spent at the front in France. He was discharged from the British army on March 26 of this year. He has left his uniform behind in England, but wears the yellow stripe on his civilian clothes that proves he has done his bit, and also a small round silver pin, presented him by Great Britain and engraved, "For King and Empire: For Services Rendered." The monogram "G. R. I." constitutes the center of the pin, which is open.

He was employed in the Whitman mill before enlisting, having come to New Bedford from Blackburn about four years ago. He saw many Americans in France, mostly in the hospitals where he was sent. As far as seeing Germans is concerned, Mr. Walmsley remarked that he had seen thousands of them and can "live happily if I never see another again!" He is a member of Manchester Unity, I. O. O. F. He came to this city on the 2 15 train yesterday and was met at the depot by a group of his old friends and his wife, who has made her home here since his departure.

BUILDS MODEL BATTLE TANK

Milton Heap, 14 Years Old, Makes Creditable Miniature of "America" in Spare Time.

Among the present popular indoor sports that are keeping the younger generation busy is the manufacture of miniature tanks made from wood. Some very creditable models have been built by the boys. Milton Heap of 15 Brigham street has one that is particularly praiseworthy. It is about six inches high, 12x8. Painted a battleship gray with four prominently displayed cannon on it, the model presents a decidedly warlike appearance.

Milton Heap. May 6, 1918.

Milton is 14 years old. He left the R. C. Ingraham school recently and is now employed weighing yarn in the Sharp mill. He built his model tank, which he has quite appropriately designated the "America," during his spare hours after work. It is made of lumber removed from an old doll house. The black cannon were once bobbins on twisters in the mill, while the round turret above is another bobbin from a bigger twister. Small tacks replace in appearance, at least, the steel rivets on the real tanks, and skillful use of a paint brush and black paint furnished a window and treads. The treads are cut into the wood, then painted. A small white sign on the front of the tank bears the admonition, "Crush the Prussian."

PROCEEDS FOR WAR BLINDED

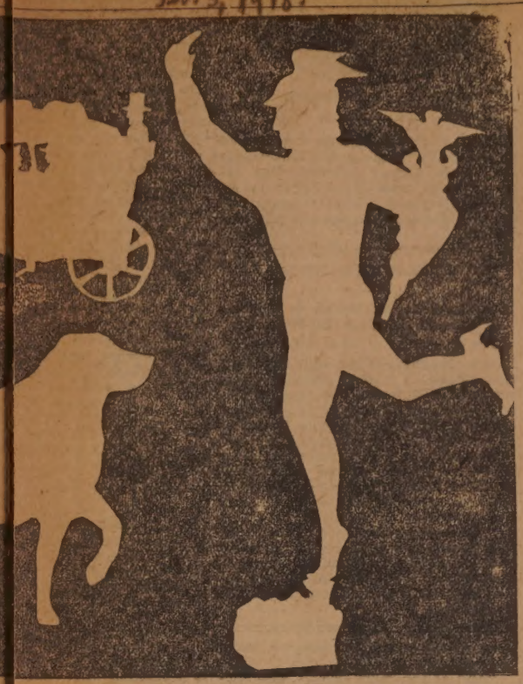
War Blinded. The number of men thus afflicted is large, and unless means are taken to teach these victims how to readjust their lives to the great loss which has overtaken them, they will be burdens to themselves and the world. Each country has long since seen the necessity for preparing to meet this emergency, and every line of work which they can possibly engage in is being taught these blinded men. Yet to make this teaching possible means must be provided, and the English people of New Bedford are making this occasion to raise funds to help carry on the work. A similar affair held last year procured $400 for the cause, but there are many more needing assistance this year, therefore the committee is making every effort to increase the proceeds by a substantial figure.

In choosing the kind of an event which they have, the committee feel confident that their plans will meet with success. At 2 45 the participants of the festival will leave the Washington club to parade to the park. The little May Queen will ride in a landeau with her retinue at the head of the procession. She will be followed by

A BOY'S REMARKABLE DISPLAY OF FREE HAND CUT-OUTS

Feb. 3, 1918.



Before the advent of the camera, the silhouette was the popular form of expression for the portrait maker's art. From time to time ever since these queer black outlines first appeared on colonial walls there have been discovered men and women with extraordinary talent with the shears. A few decades ago, this reached its height, and silhouette pictures were common in the magazines.

Then for a time the art of the silhouette was forgotten. Recently, however, there has been a revival of the old art,—and curiously enough at this very moment of its renaissance, there has appeared a boy of fifteen gifted with this exceptional talent.

The writer happened to me in an office the other day, when several pictures, or groups, of the silhouette type were passed around. Inquiry showed these to be the work of Holden Durfee Wetherbee, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Brown Wetherbee, of 239 Hawthorn street. The work was so ingenious and clever, that Holden and his parents were soon seen and asked to allow the writer to describe the work for the Sunday Standard, and today this newspaper is able to show its readers a new-old art which under this boy's rembarkable fingers bids fair to attract wide-spread attention.

Holder was only four years old, when he began to cut out of newspapers pictures of the ducks, geese, turkeys, chickens, cows and horses he saw on his vacation. His work rapidly improved, and he was soon imitating with the scissors the illustrations to his Peter Rabbit books and a little later cutting out castles and Indians and soldiers.

A Wonderful Gift.

The scrap books which his mother has kept of his work show from the first a wonderful gift. At eight, he was cutting out decorations for Hallowe'en parties, cutting out silhouette ornaments for place cards at his mother's social events,—and very soon he was entertaining himself by illustrating with scissors his favorite books.

He has, in this manner illustrated Ivanhoe. He has cut out pirates and Captain Silver to illustrate "Treasure Island" and Captain Hook to illustrate Peter Pan as well as the children in their beds asleep, their flight through the window and their various adventures in Never-never land, Mr. Pickwick's ride has been a fertile source of amusement for him. Gods and heroes, prehistoric monsters, animals, knights, ladies, kings, nobles, fools, ragged men, knights in armor, heralds, men of all ages and nationalities, he has shaped. He has come in time to derive a deep source of enjoyment from the mediaeval times, studying books on armor that his mailed warriors might be rightly clad.

The writer saw him at his work the other afternoon.

"Tell me what to cut for you," he said.

"Cut me a stage-coach and horses," he was directed. The sharp-pointed scissors began to move rapidly through the paper. He operates them with his little finger and the one next to it, holding the scissors exactly opposite to the common mode, and upside down. He turns the paper rather than the scissors and moves with great speed at his pleasant task.

He has developed much interest in drawing, and is beginning to do some color work. He, himself, says he wants to be a cartoonist. Meanwhile, he is turning out an inexhaustible collection of cut-outs.

Among those he made for the writer recently were: a winged Mercury; a bear; two knights in armor; a coach and four, and other scenes as interesting. One of his most spirited compositions is a hunting scene.

He is now in his second year at the High school. The eyes of many art lovers are on him, for the question now is, what will Holden do with his

WHALER VIOLA NOT REPORTED

Sailed for Brava on Way to River Plate on September 10, 1917.

Theory Held That Deported Bravas May Have Joined Crew and Gone Whaling

The Viola, however, was not reported from the Cape Verde Islands Nor has she been reported by any vessel upon the sea. At first, there was a disposition to lay this fact to the war conditions, and the fact that there are few whaling vessels at sea. As time went on, however, and no word came from her, men interested in the whaling industry began to fear that the Viola, too, may have fallen a victim to the German submarines.

When, after an all too generous interval of time she was not heard from at Brava, the theory was adopted that after getting to sea the deported Bravas decided to throw in their lot with her crew (these natives all shipped as members of her crew) and she continued directly to the whaling grounds, to visit the C. V. I. on her way home. It is now felt, however, that if she is still afloat, word should be received from her shortly.

Among the whalers which have been reported are the Greyhound, full with 950 barrels; the Wanderer, with 1400; the Valkyrie, with 90; the Woodruff with 170; the Nicholson, reported early with 70.

The Viola is owned by the Cook Whaling company. Her agent is Captain John A. Cook. Her master is

The Viola is now the only vessel of the whaling fleet which has not been reported. The Viola sailed for Brava, C. V. I., on Sept. 10, 1917, intending to land there several natives of the Cape Verdes who were ordered deported by the United States government. She also had some furniture for the islands in her hold. After a brief stop at Brava, she was sailing to sail for the River Plate, where she was to hunt for whales. Captain Louis

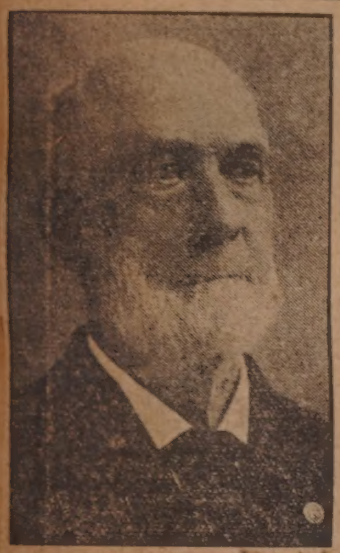
WILLIAM ALMY DIED TODAY

Life Long Resident of This City Was 81 Years of Age.

Served 33 Months in Civil War and Was Given Commission.

William Almy, Civil war veteran, and a lifelong resident of New Bedford, died at his home, 188 Court street, this morning, in his 82nd year.



William Almy. Mar. 16'18

Mr. Almy was born in this city on April 7, 1836, and was for forty years in the employ of Hatch & Co., following his discharge from the army, retiring from business a few years ago on account of failing health.

After graduating from the High school while the late John F. Emerson was principal, he entered the employ of the late William F. Dow, who carried on a wholesale dry goods store on South Water street, at the head of Commercial street. After that he was in the employ of the late E. B. Whiting, who at that time had a dry goods store on Purchase street. He then entered the employ of the late George Macomber, who kept a grocery store on the corner of Purchase and Union streets, also at the corner of Union and Fifth streets.

Went "Over the Top" with the Boys in Patrol Fight.

Former Curate at St. Anthony's First New Bedford Man to Be Decorated.

For distinguished bravery in No Man's Land, Rev. Osias Boucher, chaplain, a former curate at St. Anthony's church in this city, has been decorated with the War Cross by the French government, news of this distinction being received here today in cable dispatches from General Pershing. What the nature of his brave acts may have been is not definitely known here as the last letter received from Father Boucher was dated over eight weeks ago. But it is assumed, as hes tated then that he was constantly in the front line trenches, that the priest "went over the top" with the boys in a patrol fight and administered comfort and aid to the wounded.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS

MR. AND MRS. JAMES SCHOFIELD. Feb. 9, 1918

Mr. and Mrs. James Schofield celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home, 231 North street Thursday. They were married in St. John's church, Cohoes, N. Y. Feb. 7, 1868. Mr. Schofield came to New Bedford from England when No. 4 Wamsutta mill started. At that time there were only four mills in the city. Now there are about 60. He was employed as a mule-spinner. Upon the completion of the Potomska mill, he went to work there as the mill was using English looms instead of the Masons that were operated in the Wamsutta. Mr. and Mrs. Schofield have one daughter, Mrs. L. F. Reynolds of Dorchester, and five grandchildren.

MOTHER OF REGIMENT IS A SIGNAL HONOR

Mrs. Alice S. Weeks of This City and Boston Has Title Offically Voted To Her By the Foreign Legion, Famous Fighting Organization of France.

MRS. ALICE S. WEEKS.

The Foreign Legion has officially voted Mrs. Alice G. Weeks of Boston and New Bedford as "Mother of the Regiment". This signal honor from this great fighting organization came to her after two years of untiring devotion to American boys in the Foreign Legion. During that time she has given them a mother's care. They have lived in her Paris home when on leave, and while in the trenches have received underwear, candy, tobacco, gas masks and other comforts.

It was the death of her idolized son, Kenneth Weeks, who early joined the legion, that decided his mother to carry out her plan. She had followed him to France in 1915, had taken a house in Paris; but before her boy could secure a furlough to come to Paris he was killed; she never saw him again. To Mrs. Weeks, as "having lost a splendid son in the French army, and who is now giving to a great number of us other Americans in the war the tender sympathy and help of a mother", James R. Mc Connell has dedicated his war book "Flying in France". Kenneth Weeks was a brilliant young architect and his book "Driftwood" is his literary memorial.

Friends of her son in the Foreign Legion, aviation corp and ambulance work came to Mrs. Weeks when on leave in Paris. Her home and its influence expanded into a sort of club, and her extraordinary understanding of young men found a large field without losing its personal character. She wrote to them at the front and sent them necessary comforts. They got depending on her as if she were their mother. The folks back home also depend upon her to keep them informed as far as possible.

As the number increased she was obliged to form a little society under the name of "The Home Service for American Soldiers Abroad". Among its directors are Theodore Roosevelt, Bishop William Lawrence, Dr. Morton Prince, Major Henry L. Higginson, John J. Chapman of New York and Ralph Adams Cram, the noted architect. American headquarters were opened at 13 Newbury street, Boston, and the executive committee includes some of Boston's best known persons.

When the Americans went to France, Mrs. Weeks secured a villa at Aix-le-Bains. In the both units of the Home Service for American Soldiers Abroad the number of men are limited to 1000. More cannot be taken, for intimate, personal home-loving care would otherwise be impossible. It will require $40,000 to finance the Paris and Aix-le-Bains "homes" for a year. The association hopes to make them self sustaining although up to a few months ago the entire expenses was borne by Mrs. Weeks.

Forty dollars will care for one soldier boy for a year. This will give him a home and a mother's attention when off leave and as far as possible while at the front. Many parents keep a sum of money on deposit with Mrs. Weeks to be expended upon their boys as they need it. Courtney Baylor, chairman of the executive committee, 13 Newbury street, Boston, is receiving the names of soldiers to be cared for. The enrollment charges are $40.

New Bedford and Fall River Recruits Photographed in Front of Headquarters in Providence.

GO TO CANADA FOR TRAINING

New Bedford and Fall River Men Have Joined the British Army.

More Men Are to Leave Providence on Monday Evening.

Three New Bedford men were included in the record breaking batch of recruits for the Canadian Expeditionary Forces who left Providence just a week ago today on the long trip which will eventually bring them to the front line trenches. These men will be noticed in this picture, which was taken outside the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, 186 Washington street. On that day 22 men were examined and many New Bedford men were included in that number. They are John Marsden, George Partington and Walter Dickinson.

Six Fall River men were in the batch of recruits and are shown in the picture. They are, Harold Crapper Law, Frederick Boyd, William Paul, Arthur Arden, Oville de Pontbriand and Thomas Cartin. John J. D. Crook of South Dartmouth, was also in the recruit party.

A party of recruits leaves Monday from Providence for Canada and among the number are two New Bedford men, Thomas Robinson and Eli Southworth and also four Fall River men, John Cuthbert, William Burgess, James Murray and Phillippe Roy.

The scene at the railroad station when the men left last Monday was an unusual one. It will be noticed there are several children in the picture. These are children of some of the men who were leaving to take a hand in the great battle for democracy.

With the Union Jack waving, the 29 men, some accompanied by their wives and children, marched to the railroad station. On the station platform they sang the national anthems of America and Great Britain and were cheered heartily by spectators.

There were many tears shed by those who saw their loved ones leaving, but notwithstanding that they were happy and serene in the knowledge that their loved ones were doing their duty, the duty that faces not only every British subject in Great Britain, but every British subject in the United States to fight for

CHECKER TABLES

Vocational School Completes Five for Army Camps.

The Vocational school is once again coming to the front in providing amusement devices for boys in the camp. This time they are in the form of checker tables of knockdown type, five of which are now completed and ready for shipment to the army camps. The specifications called for painted checker spaces but the boys went one better and inlaid the spaces. It was only recently that the boys made up several dozen padded "billies" for the use of the soldiers in swatting one another during their games.

Manuel Limas of Mattapoisett is the master workman and has made five tables. The mahogany, for dark spaces was secured from the old yacht Nautilus. The other wood is North Carolina pine. The tables are 2x3 feet.

Mar. 8, 1918.

One of the most active Red Cross auxiliaries in the city is the one which has recently been formed among the girls at the Holmes Mill. Although the auxiliary has been formed but a short time the members have turned a large amount of work into headquarters. The auxiliary holds a social once a month, and one of the first of these gatherings was held last Tuesday. Light refreshments were served and an impromptu program of musical selections given. The officers of the auxiliary are Miss Florence Sykes, Miss Edith Hindle and Mrs. Lily Dolby.

NEW BEDFORD BOY HAS BROUGHT DOWN HIS THIRD GERMAN AIRPLANE IN A FIGHT IN THE AIR NEAR COURTECON

Washington, March 23.—Two American fliers are named in an official dispatch from France today as bringing down German airplanes. Lieut. Larner downed a German opponent in the Champagne region and Sergeant Baylies brought down one near Coutecon.

This makes the third German machine which Sergeant Frank L. Baylies of New Bedford has brought down. His first was behind enemy lines and he got no official credit for it. His second was dropped about three weeks ago, and since then he has been cited in orders and awarded a war decoration by the French government. The dispatch of yesterday afternoon shows that Baylies is still continuing his "winning streak."

He is the son of Charles Baylies of 9 Mill road, and before entering the French aviation service was an ambulance driver in France. Sergeant Baylies has risen to the highest rank which he can attain in the French army for no flier can hold a commission unless he is a citizen of France. Sergeant Baylies has been endeavoring to secure a transfer to the American army, but apparently has not been successful in this as yet.

The place where Sergeant Baylies scored his victory of yesterday is on the French front, removed about 100 miles from the scene of the German drive. No details of the fight are given, but Baylies for some time has had one of the small fighting planes and his business is to pursue and attack any German machines he can find. Dispatches from the front during the past two days have told of unusual air activity on both sides.

German machines especially have been reported on scouting expeditions over the Allied lines. For a French aviator to get credit for a victory, he must drop the German plane within the French lines.

Sergt. Frank L. Baylies.

TO MAKE CORN MEAL GOODIES

Southern Mammy to Teach New Bedford Women How to Conserve Wheat Flour and Find Substitutes.

Feb 19 1918

Portia Smiley, a real Southern Mammy, is coming to New Bedford next Friday afternoon to teach the women of the city how to make the delicious corn breads and other delicacies which make such fine substitues for white breads and cakes. Portia is coming here at the invitation of the domestic economy committee and the civic federation. Mrs. Andrew G. Pierce, Jr., and Dr. Anna W. Croacher are in charge. She has spent some time in many of the larger cities of the country teaching women the secrets of her cookery in order to so tempt appetities of their families that it will be a pleasure rather than a sacrifice to conserve wheat flour. Portai has received in addition to a great deal of experience gained in her southern home, a short course of instruction at the Pratt institute in New York. She will be at the Star Store at two fifteen. Those who have already seen her at work say it is a great pleasure to watch her. She prepares her ingredients with no apparent effort and her genial personality radiates smiles and she sprinkles bright remarks out among the spectators as she chats while she works.

This mistress of her art will make and distribute recipes for polenta, "everlastin' gingerbread" pie crust and South Carolina corn loaf on Friday.

War Veteran Died Here Tuesday at Age of 80

Joseph Duprey.

Joseph Duprey, Civil War veteran, died at his home, 25 Nye street, yesterday morning in his 81st year. He had been a resident of New Bedford for the last 24 years, and leaves one son, William Duprey, and four daughters, Miss Bella Duprey, Miss Emma Duprey, Mrs. John Garry and Mrs. Pierre Male, all of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Lippitt, of Mansfield.

Joining the army at the age of 24 years, he served almost three years with Company H, 34th regiment of the Massachusetts Infantry. Enlisting on the 16th of July, 1862, he was discharged on 16th of June, 1865, and saw much service during the campaign. His discharge papers show that he took part in the following engagements: Halltown, Berryville, Winchester, Fisher's Hill, Stickney Farm, Cedar Creek, Hatch's Run, Fort Gregg and Appom-

mar 23 1918

New Bedford is well represented at Camp MacArthur, Waco Texas, according to a letter which has been received by The Evening Standard from Corporal William Bessette of Battery F of the 80 U. S. F. A. During the time which has elasped since Corporal Bessette enlisted last May and the date of writing he has seen an unusual amount of travel. This is his second period in Texas.

After his enlistment he was stationed at Fort Slocum and from there was transferred to Fort Sam Houston and from there he was transferred to Fort Olgethorpe, Ga. He is now back in Texas and is happy as he is fond of Texas. He writes an interesting letter all of which follows:

"Just a few lines from a New Bedford boy who left there last May. I enlisted on May 3 of last year and I have done quite a lot of travelling since then. This is my second trip to Texas. I was sent to Texas last May from Fort Slocum. I went to Fort San Houston, left Fort San Houston for Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., was in the 11th cavalry in Georgia and then we joined the 22nd cavalry and now they turned us into artillery. I stayed in Georgia for eight months and now I am in Texas again, this is a God's country toward Georgia. I was just reading The Evening Standard of March 9th and I see that Demers is still climbing the ladder of fame. I always look for the sporting page first. Believe me it makes a fellow feel good to read papers from his home town, especially The Standard. I get The Standard twice a week. I could not do without it, for it drives the blues away.

"Waco is the best town that I have struck yet. There are quite a lot of New Bedford boys here in different camps and a fellow certainly feels good when he meets one. Well, sir, I know that this is not a very bright letter but I am not much on writing and I am sending you one of my pictures if you care to put it in your paper. It is taken with my bunkie, Corporal Newman. I am on the right in the picture."

SOLDIERS' LETTER BOX March 1918

Private George A. Woodridge.

A New Bedford man who is serving with the Canadian expeditionary forces is George A. Woodridge, formerly of Salisbury street. He writes as follows:

On the Atlantic, in the Irish sea, or somewhere many weary days from the Washington club.

I am writing in the hope that with your usual courtesy and discretion you will edit, publish or do otherwise with this epistle (or whatever it may turn out to be) for the edification of my friends (I have no others) who have been afflicted with my past presence for lo, these many years. You must bear in mind and patience that I have to pass the censor or censoress with these notes, so have to be circumspect in order to avoid aiding or abetting the enemy. I arrived in Adanac (this is a code of my own, read it backwards) in time to see snow and 32 below zero. Until two weeks or more ago I have seen little else. Eggnog snow, milkshake snow, dirty snow, white snow and damn snow. So much snow I wonder any escaped to New Bedford. We have never yet been held up for snow on this voyage. I forgot to say I have been in a ship for the past 10 or so days. I couldn't find out our course so can't tell where we are now. You see I was never allowed on the gun deck and could not shoot the sun. After leaving New Jerusalem, somewhere on the coast of America, because we couldn't get it on board, we had a terrible storm and an epidemic of vomicus (Latin is right), and then I found that the kaiser is most unpopular on this line. He was vomicussed in wild, weird, terrible, diverse and several other languages, and if he was ever democratic enough to be amongst us his port flipper would shrivel several degrees more. When we (i. e. F. Co.) received orders for embarkation one of our old veterans said that the kaiser, when last heard of, was in despair. "Why so." queried the first lieutenant. "Sink all boats. F Co. is coming," was the K's last words. After the vomicus we were introduced to fatigue work and detailed to boats, etc. The sea soon got tired and lay down to sleep, and has been slumbering ever since, but the language up above makes up for that.

I was lucky in the fatigue work, having only one table to wait on and wash up after, three times for breakfast every morning on the voyage and my wife could never hire me to be a kitchen mechanic. However, I haven't broken anything yet without throwing it overboard. We eat and drink out of our own tin cans (canteens) now. Last night I discovered a dark bottle, containing about a pint, of what appeared to be amber fluid, sealed with a tinfoil capsule, so being curious, and not having the judgment of a general, major or lance corporal to appeal to I decided to take all responsibility and conduct an inquiry as to the contents myself. I was perfectly justified in opening it as there were no orders pasted on it anywhere. I did not sleep well afterwards. I suppose my mind was doing a flank movement subconsciously, to find out where there were more capsule bottoms. All on board are well and hearty and, after training, will no doubt give a good account of themselves. There are here New Bedford people. I know the following: Lance Corporal William Bond, Walter Geary, Dan Higgins, William Costello, —— Lancaster, H. Kelly, J. Harvey, J. Inchcliffe, J. Cocker. Excuse pencil as someone decided that my pen, safety razor, soap and several other articles were misplaced in my kit bags and removed them to parts unknown. We are all broke or badly bent and anxiously await pay day and shore. There is no tobacco on board now and most of us are glum and irritable just on that account. Everyone is hoping to get some from home as it is very dear to buy out of a soldier's pay. A home paper is a luxury, and but for the Red Triangle we would have had no reading matter to help relieve minds often anxious about loved ones, forlorn and forsaken for a necessary duty (often arduous and nauseating to many) in order that life may be worth living again, out of a world of chaos caused as we all believe by the vanity and ambition of the Hohenzollerns and the militarism of Ger-

Phillippe Belanger.

Private Thomas J. Taffe.

Private Taffe is serving with Battery D in France and has written the following letter to the folks at home.

Since writing you last, I have been very busy. As I told you in my last letter about moving to another camp there is no need of my writing about it again. I was left behind to take care of the surplus luggage so I only arrived at the camp where the rest of the boys are last Saturday. Travel, well you bet clear across France. Then I had to take another route and retrace my journey half way back, leave my baggage there and then come back to the front to join the battery. The boys are doing splendidly, all are feeling fine and all want to get a crack at the Kaiser. I cannot tell you what sector we are in as it is not allowed, but it will make all the more to tell you about when we come home after we get the Kaiser.

In traveling over the country I saw some beautiful cities. You would never think that you were in a strange city. The railroads are the same. The cars are different and you see a lot of soldiers of different nationalities. You see German prisoners working at all kinds of work. You also see armed guards at the bridges and canals and aeroplanes flying everywhere, especially over Paris. There are always four or five in the air at once circling over the city. One would no sooner go down to the base then four or five more would arise. It is a pretty sight to see them.

Where we are now is not what it should be, all you can see is a mass of ruins. There is not one house standing for miles around. There is one city of 75,000 people with not a single house in it that was not hit by shells. Churches were not spared as they too are in ruins. You could read about these devastations all your life and then not realize how terrible it is until you see the scene for yourself.

Imagine this if you can. Imagine a crucifix in the road at the corner, and as you walked towards New Bedford all the houses knocked down; not wooden houses, but good stone houses, and when you go down to St. Anthony's church and St. Kililan's church both steeples knocked through the roofs, perhaps killing a lot of people that had gone there to worship. Just continue this picture throughout New Bedford and Fairhaven and perhaps you can gain some idea of the conditions as they are here in France. Graves are everywhere in the yards and fields and along the roadside. We do a lot of work at night, and we go through quite a few villages to our position at the front. We meet a sentry every once in a while. Soldiers are coming out of the ground, not one living on top of the ground but in caves and dugouts.

Talk about caves, some of them are wonderful, housing as many as 200 men. There are others which will house as many as a thousand men with their horses.

One of the strangest things about it here in France is that the Man on the Crucifix is looking with all his sufferings at the so-called 20th century civilization. The grim mockery of it all, and yet people will boast about justice.

I hope to see the day when the kaiser will be made to suffer for what he has done. Then we can have peace. Some say that the German people are good, but away with such thoughts. They must suffer in order to be taught that there is a more powerful monarch than the kaiser. If you heard the stories of treachery used by them to accomplish their aim you would have no more sympathy for them than the Americans who are over here have. The Germans have driven the people before them with a bayonet so that the French army could not fire at them, and when near the French lines the Germans mowed them down with bayonets, and then laid down so that their machine guns could play hell with the French troops. Another thing the Germans did after sacking a French village was to gather all the farming implements from the surrounding towns soak them with kerosene and set them afire so that the unfortunate people had to leave for other parts or else starve. The only people you see in the villages are old people.

Philippe Belanger's Farewell.

Philippe Belanger, of 302 Sawyer street, was recently given a farewell surprise party by his friends. Mr. Belanger leaves the city next Thursday with the next quota for Camp Devens.

Mr. Belanger was given a wrist watch and a handsome bouquet of flowers, Miss Mary Anne Belanger read the address. The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Desire Cote, 302 Sawyer street. Refreshments were served, and a musical program was given during the evening.

Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Cote, Mr. and Mrs. Belanger, Philippe Belanger, Miss Josephine Cote, Miss Anne Marie Belanger, Miss Dora Rouseau, Emile Lamontague, Miss Laura Cote, Felix Poire, Miss Bella Beaupre, Miss May Ayotte, Albert Boudreau, Miss Cecilia Belanger, Emile Belanger, Miss Lucile Charest, Wilfrid Auger, Miss Marie Anne Cote, Arthur Theberge, Miss Alice Lantin, Leo Belanger, Omer Gagnon, Miss Luciene Ayotte, Miss Clara Cote, Miss Rose Lantin, Miss Rose Bazinet, Damase Gognette, Miss Brisson, Joseph Houle, Sinai Houle, Mr. Monbleau, Mr. Martin, Mr. Benoit, Mr. Jean, Baptiste Belanger, Miss Ernestine Belanger.

Sergeant Bertram Morency.

Bertram Morency, formerly advertising manager of Steiger-Dudgeon's, is now supply sergeant of 624th aero squadron, an organization which is now under a 10 day quarantine at Morrison, Virginia. The squadron has come up from Kelley Field, Texas. Sergeant Morency left here December 12 for Fort Slocum, and then went to San Antonio. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Morency of 35 Robeson street.

Manuel Furtado.

Manuel Furtado, private of Battery D, 102nd regiment, United States field artillery corps, 26th division, 51st brigade of the American expeditionary force to the western front in France, writes relatives here that at last the climatic conditions of the American sector have changed for the better and spring has come to stay. There is still plenty of mud, he says, but grass and flowers have begun to grow, and not even terrific artillery fire has prevented the birds from paying their usual visit to the men at the front. And the spirits of the men of his command have risen greatly since winter has broken up, which omens ill for the Hun.

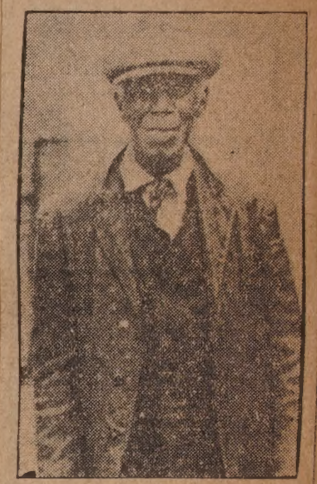
WORKS ON HIS 94TH BIRTHDAY

William Ferguson Up at City Barn Enjoying Spring Weather.

For Great Many Years Was Familiar Figure as the City Messenger.

May 8, 1918

William Ferguson, New Bedford's oldest city employe, celebrated his 94th birthday today by working, and when a Standard reporter visited the city barn this morning, he found Mr. Ferguson at his labors, apparently well and enjoying the spring weather, although, of course, a little bent and a little slow of movement. But it might truly be said that his years set lightly upon him, for he laughed and chatted and said that he was entirely able to work, despite his 94 years. Mr. Ferguson makes his home with his daughter on Liberty street, and he works from choice, preferring to be out each day and up around the city barn with the other men, where there is always "something going on" to quote his own reason.



William Ferguson.

Mr. Ferguson is best known, perhaps, for his long years as city messenger, having served with various mayors. He was first appointed in 1874, serving throughout that year. In 1877 he was again appointed and served for three years. In 1885 he was appointed again and then for several years in succession was a familiar figure around the old city hall. During the term of the late Morgan Rotch he was not reappointed and since then has worked at various trades and at different times has had light work with different street gangs.

Mr. Ferguson has for many years been prominent in Union Lodge of the Masons and is a deacon of the Union Baptist church.

REED TO HEAD SCOUTMASTERS

Chosen in Place of F. C. Hill at Special Meeting Last Night.

May 4

Signalling Instructor in the British Army to Aid in Scout Work.

1918

Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Rogers Memorial church of Fairhaven and scoutmaster of the Boy Scout troop one of Fairhaven, was elected president of the Scoutmasters' association of New Bedford and vicinity at a special meeting of the association last night. The election of a new president was made necessary by the resignation of Frederick C. Hill, who has gone to Camp Devens to take charge of the Young Men's Christian association work there.

Rev. George Hale Reed.

MRS. IDA R. JANELL HONORED BY THE COMRADES OF POST ONE

MRS. IDA R. JANELL.

POST 1 HONORS MRS. I. R. JANELL

Pays Visit to Woman's Relief Corps to Present a Portrait to Its President at the Last Regular Meeting.

The members of the Women's Relief corps, No. 53, were surprised by a visit paid to them at their regular meeting on Thursday night at their hall by the comrades of William Logan Rodman post, G. A. R., whose mission was for the purpose of congratulating and presenting to Mrs. Ida R. Janell, the president of the relief corps, a large portrait of herself, handsomely framed, as a token of the friendship of the comrades of Post 1 and appreciation of the many acts of kindness and attention paid to the comrades of the G. A. R.

Past Commander Andrew J. Smith in behalf of Post 1 made the presentation speech and told of the many acts for the relief given to comrades and entertainments for their pleasure by the ladies of the relief corps and of the honor and pleasure it gave him to be selected to make the presentation.

Mrs. Janell, who was taken by surprise, replied with great feeling of appreciation and told the comrades that they felt the Relief Corps had only done by the comrades what they should do, and very much regretted they could not do more to make the declining days of "the boys" as pleasureable as possible and promised to continue the good work to the end.

forward and after a few remarks presented a large bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Janell as a token of his respect for her and the relief corps.—which was feelingly replied to. Mrs. Janell has recently been elected to the executive board of the state department.

This was followed by a singing and musical entertainment. Refreshments,—ice cream, cake, &c., were served, and after a few remarks by other ladies of the association the comrades withdrew to their rooms to let the corps continue their interrupted meeting.

It is not generally known how patriotic Post 1 has been in doing their "mite." They voted at their last meeting to subscribe an additional $200 to the new Liberty loan, having already subscribed $300 to former loans,—making a total of $500 for Post 1.

FAREWELL CHURCH RECEPTION FOR REV. S. R. CHUBB

Apl. 28. 1918

Many pastors of New Bedford and a large number of the parishioners of the Weld Street P. M. church gathered at the church Saturday evening to say "Goodbye" to Rev. S. R. Chubb, who is to leave the church shortly, after a temporary but highly successful pastorate in this city.

ONE OF ROCHESTER'S REAL SHOW PLACES

Upper picture shows the old Waldron farmhouse as it looks today. Lower left shows the barn built by the present owner. At left is a picture of the house which was formerly a Methodist meeting house.

REMODELLED OLD HOUSE

Peabody Summer Home at Rochester a Comfortable Old Mansion.

Wide Purchases of Land Have Enhanced Value of the Place.

Nestling some distance in from the shore of the now snow encrusted Sniptuit pond in North Rochester, "Sniptuit Farm", once known as the Waldron farm, is now a large rambling red and white house, the country home of George Peabody of Commonwealth avenue, Boston. This old country homestead was built in 1816 by Hiram Thatcher and the date of erection put on one of the northwest chimneys. It passed into the hands of the present owners about fifteen years ago, who have since bought other houses and their adjoining lands in the neighborhood.

"Sniptuit Farm" is about fourteen miles from New Bodford. For a period of two or three years before the Peabodys bought it it was unoccupied. Its last inhabitant was Dr. George Lincoln and after his death the windows of the empty place became targets for boys for miles around who stoned them until there was hardly a jagged bit of glass remaining in any of them.

The original farm house lacked the big, spacious ell that today characterizes it as a rambling house. And it lacked also the modern touch given it by the porch extending across the full length of its eastern side and upward on a level with the eyes of the house making a section used for outdoor sleeping quarters. Otherwise the exterior of the house has been changed very little. The same high, abundant fir hedge bordered the lawn in front. A new flagged walk was laid to reach from this to the low stone step of the simple doorway over which an arched trellis was built.

Use Only Horses.

Across from the homestead a large barn has been built by the present owners. Here the horses and carriages of the family which consists of Mr. and Mrs. Peabody and their daughter, Amy, are kept. It is an unvarying custom of the Peabody family to use no automobiles in the country hence the motor that conveys them from their Boston home goes into the garage once they have arrived and seldom comes out until they are ready to return. Miss Peabody is extremely fond of horses and spends much of her time when at "Sniptuit" in riding over the surrounding country.

The Peabody estate embraces six hundred acres and two other farm houses used to accomodate the help. Placed in trees at short distances from each other near the home are tiny red bird houses and off to the side, also near the home, a number of small red hen houses extend in double rows. Hidden almost from the view of the passerby on the road, a brooder has been built. A stone pumping station is equipped with machinery which supplies the house with water. This is placed at a short distance from the main house.

Once Methodist Church.

One of the houses of the estate, about a quarter of a mile to the west of the farm house, was built for a Methodist meeting house in 1830. Philip Crandall was the first minister. The building served this purpose until the Methodist church was built in Rochester when the congregation at North Rochester amalgamated with that of the new church. The meeting house was converted shortly after into a dwelling house and although unoccupied at the present time serves that purpose now. A beautiful spreading fir tree has grown to massive height at the very northwest corner of the former meeting house. Firs form much of the grove section in the immediate territory of the Sniptuit farm house. A dense thicket of them reaches from the rear of the ell to the pond.

Another of the houses of the estate has the distinction of being one of the oldest farm houses in North Rochester. It was originally the homestead of the Shaw family and was bought from one of their descendents. The approximate age of the house is one hundred and fifty years. It, as all other of the buildings on the Peabody estate, is painted red with white trimmings, and is located near the road, only a short distance from the old meeting house on the opposite side of the road.

Live There Two Months.

The interior of the former Waldron house is said to remain much the same as in the days of the old occupants. The beautiful old fireplaces have been preserved and the greatest changes have been made in the original ome are those which paint, wall papers and furnishings have accomplished. The Peabody family spends on the average of only a few months a year there and the interior of the house could not be seen the past week because they are not there at the present time. "Sniptuit" is but one of many homes which Mr. Peabody owns. The family's summer home is at Marblehead Neck.

with soldier life that up to the time of his death he talked of camp life and of his companions who left this city with him Lincoln's Birthday from division two.

Guinn had a cold, in camp, the day before he came to this city on his first furlough, and after arriving here developed pneumonia and was taken to St. Luke's hospital. The funeral arrangements have not been made as yet, although the family has sent a telegram to camp asking if it will be possible to have his four colored companions come to this city to attend the funeral, which may take place Saturday.

Private Guinn was born in this city April 9, 1894, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Guinn, and lived here all his life. He attended the public schools and has for a number of years assisted his father, who is a druggist. He is survived by a mother, father, three sisters, Dorothy C., Rosamond A., and Elmira E. Guinn, and by one brother, Stanley.

Miss Sullivan and Miss Eldredge Have Been Elected by the School Board---Former Already Employed.

Miss Irene A. Sullivan and Miss J. Irene Eldredge have recently been appointed school nurses. Miss Sullivan has been doing this work for some time previous to her appointment and Miss Eldredge has been engaged as a visiting nurse here.

Miss Sullivan is a graduate of the Rhode Island State hospital and she has given most of her time to the nursing of children since her graduation. At one of the registries for nurses in Providence, Miss Sullivan's name was listed with a special recommendation as a nurse for children's contagious diseases.

Miss Irene A. Sullivan.

Miss Eldredge is a graduate of St. Luke's hospital. She was a member of the class of 1911. For three years she was president of St. Luke's Alumnae and is at present secretary and treasurer of the Bristol County Nursing association of which she was previously a councilor. Miss Eldredge is in Chatham.

ARRIVES SAFE IN FRANCE

Winston Cushman Barker Is In Aviation Section of the Signal Corps.

Made Speedy Trip Across---Will Get His Training in France.

Word has been received here by Mrs. Louise Cushman Barker of 75 Campbell street, that her son Winston Cushman Barker has arrived safely in France. The young man enlisted in the aviation section of the signal corps immediately after his eighteenth birthday in December. He was assigned to Camp Hancock at Georgia first, where he spent two months acquiring military training. His trip across must have been made speedily because although the exact date of his sailing is not known, he was in this country March 2. His aviation training will be received in France.

Winston Cushman Barker.

The Taber property is much the older of the two, having been built just a hundred years ago. It remained in the family of Sampson Perkins until 1902 when it was purchased by Silas Taber and later came into possession of the son, Silas S. Taber.

Middle street, which is the connecting link in the road to Cape Cod, appears to be the coming automobile center of New Bedford. Already there are several garages and auto salesrooms either on this street between the bridge and the Federal building or are in the immediate vicinity, and present indications are that before the summer is over, there will be but few pieces of property on Middle street but that will be "in the business." It is reported that there is an option on the Hervey property at the southeast corner of Acushnet avenue and Middle street by people who would erect a garage on the site of several old houses now standing. The northwest and southwest corners are now occupied by a garage and a salesroom. Plans are underway to remodel the old gas company plant on the north side just east of Purchase street into a salesroom, while just across the street, Thomas E. Potter is putting in two stores beneath a dwelling house and has already let one of the stores for automobile purposes. Farther down the hill, a tire dealer has opened a store and a stone's throw away is another large garage.

The belief that the proposed store in the Reed house will be used as automobile salesroom would further substantiate the general idea that Middle street is planning to get the trade to and from Cape Cod.

A CENTRE FOR AUTO BUSINES

Much Property on Middl Street Remodelled as Salesrooms and Stores.

Taber and Reed Properties to Be Raised to Allow for Stores.

Slowly but surely old landmarks in the center of the city are giving way to the march of progress and are being remodeled so as to accommodate one or more stores. Among the houses which are to be remodeled in the spring are the two-family dwelling house on the northwest corner of Pleasant and Middle streets and the old cottage house at 920 Pleasant street, just north of Hillman street. The former is owned by Mrs. Elizabeth W. Reed and the latter by Silas S. Taber. The Reed property is to be remodeled so as to allow for a large store in the first floor and modern improvements in the upper apartments and the plans indicate that the store will be suitable for an automobile supply store. In all probability, the same change will be made in the Taber house.

The Reed house was part of the old Robert Tuckerman estate erected early in the last century and when Pleasant street from Elm to Kempton streets took place in 1884, it was necessary to move this building. The property was acquired by Mrs. Reed in 1885.

RICKETSON'S STABLE.

Another of New Bedford's landmarks will give way to a modern structure when the Ricketson stable on the north side of Hillman street between Purchase street and Acushnet avenue is torn down to make way for a 50x100 foot garage to be built for Mr. Ricketson.

The stable buildings were erected by Gideon Wilcox, who had a stable there 50 or 75 years ago, and the property was held by the Wilcox family until 1888, when it was sold to Rodolphus Beetle and Roland Ashley. For 15 or 20 years the late J. V. Bancroft was proprietor of a stable in the buildings, and in 1912 Mr. Ricketson acquired the property and has since used it as a stable and garage.

INSISTED ON JOINING ARMY

Mar. 1, '18.

Herbert W. Bucklin Discharged from Fort Banks — Underwent Operation and Is Again Made Happy.

Herbert W. Bucklin, of 128 Purchase street, is a case in point of a young man insisting on being taken in the army, and if all the young men in the country were of the same manner of thinking as the local youth, the draft boards would have to shut up shop owing to lack of business. Bucklin was a former member of the 4th Company, coast artillery, and left for Fort Banks last June with the detachment which left this city last June.

Herbert W. Bucklin.

After serving several weeks at Fort Banks the medical authorities discovered that the young man was physically unfit for active service and he was honorably discharged on Aug. 3. He immediately went into hospital with a view to having his physical defect remedied, and the operation was successful in turning him out sound in body and limb, and furthermore ready for action.

Appearing at the local recruiting station, Bucklin endeavored to join the regular army, but was unable to do so owing to being a "drafted" man. He then made application to division four and asked that he be examined for immediate service with the forces although he was not liable to be called for many months.

He was examined by the medical authorities, pronounced fit, and was inducted into the drafted army. He will leave Monday for Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., and is immensely pleased at the prospects of being once again placed in a position to render his patriotic duty as a representative of Uncle Sam's government.

Visit to England Determines John William Lee in His Intentions.

New Bedford Man Describes Conditions Abroad During War Times.

William Lee

John William Lee of this city is a typical case of what Britishers are doing in their response to the call of the mother country for men and more men for the British and Canadian armies. Mr. Lee has just completed the trip from England in order to enlist his services with the cause of the Canadian army forces, arriving in this city last week after paying a visit to England for four months. His observations on the other side convinced him that his place at the present time was with the army, but he decided to return to this city to talk the question over with his family before he threw in his lot with the fighting forces over in France.

Mr. Lee is a married man with one child, and last November paid a trip to England to visit several relatives in Ashton-under-Lyne and other towns in Lancashire. He returned on the Cunard liner Orduna, leaving the other side on February 26 and arriving safely in this country 10 days later. For four days the vessel on which he was traveling was convoyed by British cruisers and war vessels through the submarine zone, and was one of four on its way to this side.

morning in the Fenway hospital, Newbury street, Boston. "Pat" Barrett, as he was familiarly known among his big circle of friends in New Bedford, was one of the most popular liquor dealers who ever was proprietor of a saloon in this city. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Barrett was born in Ireland, the son of Patrick and Catherine Barrett. His parents brought him to this city when he was only two years old, and he was educated at the Parker street and the High street grammar schools. He was employed at the Morse Twist Drill before he went into the liquor business.

Mr. Barrett was past exalted ruler of the New Bedford lodge of Elks and the district Deputy grand exalted ruler. He was one of the only two men of the New Bedford lodge ever to be honored so in the history of this order,—the other being Stephen D Pierce. He was a charter member of the Plymouth club and a member of the order of Eagles.

His love for dogs, horses and birds was well known. His charity, also was great. Many was the friendly stranger whom he befriended. It is well remembered how, on one occasion, a stranger was taken very ill in his saloon. It was found that the man had no money. "Pat" Barrett went out, found him a boarding place, and not being satisfied with the room shown him, insisted upon a better one, declaring a sick man should have a good room. The man died. It then was evident that the stranger, leaving no money, would have to be buried in a pauper's grave. But he was not. Mr. Barrett bought him a cemetery lot. This is only one of the many incidents in the man's life which showed the bigness of his heart.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Atta McIvor Barrett, and by a sister, Mrs. A. J. Murray.

NEW BEDFORD BOYS LEFT FOR DEVENS

NEW CATCH BASIN CLEANER IS PROPOSED FOR NEW BEDFORD

MACHINE WILL CLEAN SEWERS

Mayor Thinks Purchase of Eductor Will Save City Money.

Removal of Dirt from Catch Basins Cost More Than $14,000 Last Year.

Believing that by the purchase of an auto "eductor" for the cleaning of sewer catch basins, the city can save thousands of dollars a year, Mayor Ashley will recommend to the board of aldermen tonight that they take a trip to Providence to see one of the machines which is in operation in that city. The eductor has given such satisfaction in Providence that an order has been placed for another one. Mayor Ashley believes that the use of an automatic cleaning machine in this city would save enough money during the first year to more than pay its cost.

Last year the street department spent more than $14,000 for the cleaning of catch basins. There are 1,700 sandcatchers in the sewer system, and most of them have to be cleaned more than once a year. Some have to be emptied three times. The cleaning of each basin requires the services of four or five men and a team of horses and dump cart. Only three men are needed to operate the eductor, and the cleaning of the basins is accomplished much quicker than in the old way.

Another favorable feature of the eductor is the fact that it eliminates the necessity of heaping up the piles of sewer muck in the streets, where it soon becomes offensive to the residents of nearby houses. The eductor flushes out the basin, sucks up the sediment and stores it in the metal truck to which the mechanism is attached. As soon as the sewer is cleaned, the machine moves away under its own power, carrying the muck with it.

The machine can be purchased for $7,000. It is estimated that it will save more than that amount during the first year of its operation. The mayor hopes to be able to buy the eductor in time for the street department's spring cleaning.

CITY'S FIRST WOMEN ELEVATOR OPERATORS

Feb 24, 1918

MAKE A HIT WITH PUBLIC

Women Elevator Operators at Steiger's Courteous and Efficient.

Husband of One of Them Is Serving His Country in France.

"Look! Women are running the elevators."

This exclamation has been ever on the lips of the members of the crowds that surged about the elevators in the Steiger, Dudgeon store yesterday. For the passenger elevators in this store are now run by women and the sight of these women operators has made the New Bedford public realize that what they have been reading for the past six months about women's invasion in other cities of the occupations once held to be sacred to man is not mere fiction.

The drafting of some of the elevator operators and the liability to the draft of many of the applicants for the positions are the reasons for the management's decision to employ women for the work. The New Bedford store is not the only one of the Steiger chain which has women elevator operators as several are now employed in the Springfield stores. The operators in the local store are New Bedford women, Mrs. Grace E. Eddy of 43 Cedar street and Mrs. Irene Latham of 909 South Water street. Added interest is given to Mrs. Latham's employment by the fact that her husband, Artimus L. Latham, is serving as regimental supply sergeant in the 101st ammunition train. He has been in France since September 1.

Both Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Latham like the work and if one can judge from remarks overheard in the crowd they are making a great hit with the public. Mr. Dudgeon says that the experiment is proving a success and that the women are handling the work as well as men. As yet the uniforms for the women have not come but they are to wear natty blue suits cut in military style, and will wear aviation caps.

"Now that we have women elevator operators we will probably have women street car conductresses within a short time," said one man as he stepped from the elevator yesterday afternoon. Who knows but will will within six months or so.

GETTING HIS MAPLE SUGAR HERE IN NEW BEDFORD A LA VERMONT

SUGAR BEARING MAPLES ON ROCKDALE AVENUE.

AS GOOD AS VERMONT OFFERS

So Says "Bill" Caswell of the Maple Sugar Sap He Gets Here---Pail a Day from Each Tree.

March 31 1918

As good maple sugar as is produced in Maine or Vermont is being made right here in New Bedford by "Bill" Caswell of 982 Rockdale avenue. Mr. Caswell, who is a native of Maine and knows the sugar industry from A to Z has three maple trees in front of his home which he has tapped and he is obtaining and has been for the past two weeks, a pailful of sap from each tree every day. These trees are white maple, and although maple sugar is usually made from the rock maple trees the sugar that Mr. Caswell makes is excellent in quality. Mr. Caswell says that the weather at present with the cool nights and warm days is splendid for sugar making.

FORMERLY AT ST. MARY'S DIES VERY SUDDENLY

3/2-8 1918

Rev. James W. Conlin was Rector of St. Patrick's Church, Somerset—For Thirty Years of Life was a New Bedford Priest.

Rev. James W. Conlin, for some thirty years a New Bedford priest, either as assistant pastor of St. Lawrence church or chaplain of St. Mary's Home, died suddenly at Somerset last night, in his 60th year. Father Conlin had been pastor of St. Patrick's church, Somerset, since July, 1915, having been transferred to that parish from St. Mary's Home as successor to Rev. George F. Maguire, who became pastor of the Immaculate Conception parish at Whittenton.

Father Conlin was born in North Easton, Mass., about 60 years ago. He was educated in the public schools there. He received his higher education at Boston College and at Montreal Grand Seminary. He was ordained at Montreal in 1882, and in January, 1883 became assistant pastor of St. Lawrence's church, in this city.

After four years' service at St. Lawrence's church, Father Conlin, in 1887, was transferred to Howard, R. I., where he became chaplain of the various state institutions there. In 1910, he returned to St. Mary's Home where he remained until 1915. That institution grew in strength and popularity during his chaplaincy.

Just at the close of the big campaign for St. Mary's Home a writer applied to him the oft-quoted lines of Sam Walter Foss, "he lives in a house by the side of the road and is a friend to man. The grown-ups of the town, Catholic and Protestant too, respect and like the chaplain of St. Mary's Home. He has a pleasant way of making you feel that he knows all about you and is interested in you, even when he passes you on the street with the briefest of greetings."

Feb 17, 1918

Mildred Shephard.

Mildred Shephard, eight years old, of 109 Tallman street, wanted to join the Junior Red Cross. Furthermore, she wanted to become a member through her own self-denial, so rather than accepting the money to do so from her relatives she started in some time ago to save the pennies and nickels she had been in the habit of spending for candy and moving pictures, and in a surprisingly short time was duly enrolled in the society. Now she asks every other girl and boy of her age to follow her example.

NEW BEDFORD SMITH COLLEGE GIRLS ON WAR WORK

MANY COLLEGE WOMEN IN WAR

Graduates of Smith College Helping to Reconstruct Shattered France.

Those at Home Are Working Just as Hard to Raise Means for Those Abroad.

Feb 4, 1918

The name of Smith college is destined to figure in the history of France which is being made today with prominence. The college has already a large unit at work in that country doing what means and efforts will allow to relieve suffering and help reconstruct the homes which have been devastated there. And although only a very small percentage of the graduates of the college are so engaged, at least they have the satisfaction of knowing that they have the support and interest of their sister alumnae who are over there. All over the country, Smith college girls are sewing and contributing what money they can spare to buy the materials to furnish garments for the men, women and children who are in dire need.

And the girls of New Bedford are doing their share. Most of the members of the Smith College club here meet every week at the home of some member and give almost the entire afternoon to work. As a result of their efforts garments are being turned out rapidly. The club has been working only since just before Christmas, but about 40 sets of pajamas, several peasant shirts and some underclothing for children have been completed. An electric sewing machine travels from home to home and it is indispensable toward the success of the work. The Clover troop have recently given 17 petticoats and seven dresses which the girls of the troop made to the club, and these will be sent with the clothing now finished.

Besides the members whose pictures appear above, the other people of the club are: Miss Florence Taber, Miss Marion Vincent, Miss Elizabeth Wright, Mrs. Arthur Whitman, Miss Edith Walker, Miss Jessie Fowler, Mrs. Annie Howland, Mrs. David [illegible]man.

PRIVATE PEAT HERE MARCH 1

Noted Soldier Will Speak in This City at the Armory.

Will Be Entertained While Here by George R. Cherry.

Feb 27, 1918

In the coming of Private Peat at the armory on the evening of March 1, New Bedford will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing a distinguished soldier of the Canadian army who has been "over the top" in Flanders, who for two years fought in the trenches against the German Hun, and who has come back with the ability to tell what he has seen. Private Peat was secured by the ways and means committee of the Woman's club, of which Mrs. Ella R. Lamb is chairman, and the Woman's club was fortunate that they made an early start after Private Peat's services, for at the present time it is impossible to secure him save months in advance. But the Woman's club started early to get him and this popular war author ought to provide one of the real interesting evenings of the season.

Private Peat.

Private Peat will be entertained while in this city by George R. Cherry and he will be introduced by Henry S. Hutchinson. Mr. Hutchinson has met him several times, has listened to various of his addresses and says that he has a story which he delivers in informal manner on the lecture platform that is even more absorbing than his book—and his book is one of the really big sellers of the year. In Providence last week, Infantry hall was packed to the doors and Private Peat was given a truly wonderful ovation when he had finished his evening's talk.

The Woman's club at first intended having the rink for Monday evening but Mayor Ashley, Major Gibbs and Charles M. Carroll interested themselves in the matter when it was an assured fact that Peat would come to New Bedford and secured the armory for the lecture. Tickets, which range in price from $1 down to 35 cents are on sale at the present time, and if Peat repeats his drawing power in this city that he has shown everywhere else he has appeared, the armory will be filled. In Lynn last night Peat spoke to as big a crowd as the biggest hall in Lynn would accommodate.

Private Peat is a Canadian, and is now a lieutenant in rank but prefers his old title of Private. He enlisted August 23, 1914, in Edmonton Alberta, Canada, went "through hell for two years and a half," and finally got back again to God's country, minus his right lung and with a paralyzed arm, but cheery and youthful still. "Physically incapacitated, but mentally, and spiritually stimulated," says Private Peat. He has been there and he knows, and his stories of the war and the front trench are the first hand, intimate stories of a bright, inteligent, brave young fellow who could see clearly and remember and tell what he had seen.

ASK CLOSING OF OLD SCHOOL BUILDING

THE MIDDLE STREET SCHOOL. Feb 8, 1918

PARENTS WANT OLD HIGH SCHOOL

Appear Before Board Tonight to Urge Abandonment of Middle Street Building.

Will Present 9 Reasons Charging Present Building Inadequate and Dangerous.

Parents of the children in the Middle Street grammar school will appear before the school board this evening, to urge that the old Middle Street School building be abandoned, and the old High School building be used as a grammar school in its stead. The Middle Street school has 400 pupils. Their parents have for years been seeking to have conditions improved. From time to time, the school board and city officials have received protests from various parents, and nothing has yet been done. They now feel that some concerted action must be taken, and have arranged to appear before the board tonight.

They will argue the following 10 points:

First—The building is obsolete. The building is not adapted to the needs of the present day.

Second—The class rooms are poorly lighted.

Third—The interior and exterior are dingy.

Fourth—The building is not fireproof.

Fifth—The heating apparatus is dangerous, in that it is not properly provided with protection. The big boiler is within one and one-half feet of the class room floor with no protection and no guarded walls.

Sixth—The basement is unsanitary, both regarding fixtures and its general condition.

Seventh—The stairways are dangerous.

Eigth—There has been no improvements in the building for 15 years.

Ninth—There is no assembly hall except one used as a class room, which is also used as a means of entrance to other rooms.

Tenth—This building being obsolete and not fitted for use as a grammar school, and the old High school building being adapted for such use, it is proposed by the parents that this building be abandoned and the old [illegible] building be used as a [illegible]

NORTH DARTMOUTH MOTHER GETS NEWS OF PRIEST'S DEATH ON HOSPITAL SHIP

CAPTAIN REV. J. McILVAINE. Nov. 4, 1918

Young Man Is Photographer in Aviation Corps

Eldon Oliver Anderson. Feb 24, 1918

Eldon Oliver Anderson, nephew of Mrs. O. J. Harvli of Westport Factory, is photographer for the signal branch of the aviation corps. He left Tuesday for Little Rock, Ark. He is only 19 years of age.

FR. M'ILVAINE WAS DROWNED

Chaplain Met His Death in Destruction of Hospital Ship.

Priest Since Outbreak of the War Had Consecrated Life to Service of Country.

A cablegram received by Mrs. Charles J. Hatton of Wilbur avenue, North Dartmouth, today from the war office in London, announced the death on Feb. 26 of her son, Captain Rev. J. McIlvaine, chaplain, who was on the hospital ship Glenart Castle, sunk by a U-boat. The cable was as follows:

"Deeply regret to inform you Captain Rev. J. McIlvaine, chaplain to forces, reported missing, believed drowned Feb. 26, in the loss of S. S. Glenart Castle. The army council express their sympathy."

This laconic message marked the end of a priest's life which since the outbreak of the war had been consecrated to the service of his country. Captain McIlvaine since November, 1916, had been in the English army, had brought comfort to the men in the very front line trenches, had been gassed and invalided home to a hospital, and then partially recovering, although suffering still from a weakness of the heart, had returned to duty as chaplain aboard the hospital ship which was taking wounded Australians back to Australia.

Father McIlvaine was formerly rector of St. Andrew's R. C. cathedral at Glasgow, Scotland. He volunteered as a chaplain and was assigned to duty in November, 1916. He was on active duty in France for about nine months when at Ypres on September 29, 1917, he was caught in a gas attack. He was taken back to a hospital, and after recovering was assigned to the Dublin Fusiliers at Aldershot, England.

He is survived by a mother, Mrs. Charles J. Hatton, a sister, Miss E. McIlvaine and a brother William T. McIlvaine all of North Dartmouth.

KRUGER WRITES FROM THE SOUTH

New Bedford Man at Camp Gordon Says All the Fellows There Praise the Standard—All Eager to Fight.

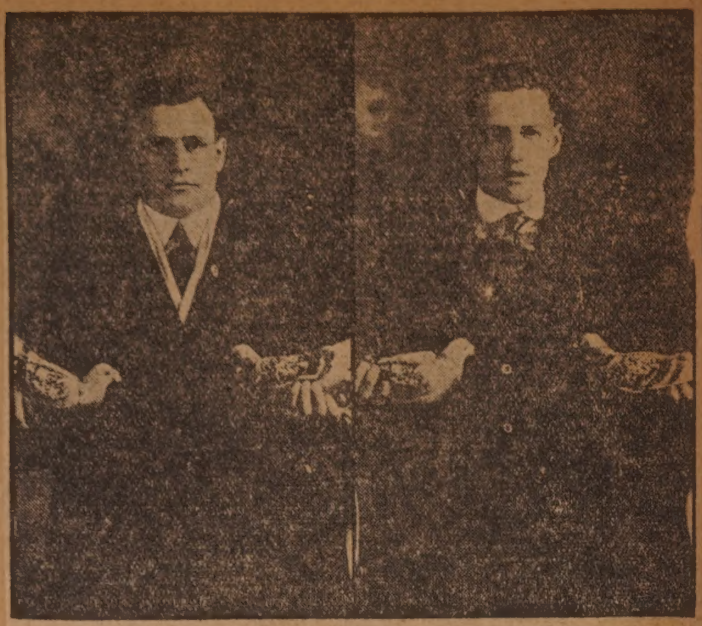
Fred Kruger of Co. M, 325th Infantry, a New Bedford boy whose company is at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., writes:

"The boys down here all praise The Standard. I am sending you a photograph of some of them. In the picture are: Privates Murphy, Sam Foy, Fred Kruger, Dennis Bennett, Sergeant Donovan and Corporal Walsh.

Private Kruger writes that the weather is excellent at Atlanta, and the boys are well and happy. They are busy with the daily routine of getting ready to lick the kaiser, nad there isn't a man in the entire aggregation who does not believe Uncle Sam's army will hang the Stars and Stripes over the kaiser's palace in Berlin.

Kruger wants to be remembered to his New Bedford friends, and hopes that more of them will write to him at Camp Gordon. Meanwhile, he is getting browner and tougher. Pretty soon, he will be writing home from "over there" thrilling stories of adventures in the trenches. Then you will hear some tales!

FLYER OF WINNING PIGEONS JOINS BROTHER AT DEVENS



WAS FORMER COUNCILMAN

William J. Harnish Died at His Home Here Last Evening.

Was Prominent in Textile Unions for Many Years Here

Feb 12/18

William Joseph Harnish, one of the most prominent residents of the south end and a former member of the city council, died at his home, 15 Ruth street, last night after a long illness. He was 43 years old. Mr. Harnish was a native of Halifax and came to this city about fifteen years ago. He obtained employment in the Dartmouth mill, where he remained for some time, leaving there to go to the Gilt Edge Silk mill, where he was employed for a number of years. A few months ago he left there to accept a position in the Butler mill. Mr. Harnish has long taken an active part in the Fixers' and Weavers' unions and served for some time as a member of the executive boards of these organizations. He was always a most enthusiastic member of the Washington club and aside from serving on a number of committees of this club was vice president in 1915. He was a well known Odd Fellow. In politics he was a member of the Fusion party and was elected to the city council as a member of this party in 1916. In 1917 he was the only member of this party to be returned to the council.

Mr. Harnish is survived by a widow and ten children, Mrs. Emily Cook, James, William, Evelyn, Minnie, Lillian, Elizabeth, Joseph, Alfred, and Irving. He also leaves one grandchild.

BATTERY D BOYS WERE LUCKY

Private John J. Coughlin Writes His Mother in This City---Speaks in Terms of Praise of Officers.

Mar. 18 1918.

John James Coughlin, who is serving in France with the Battery boys, writes to his mother, Mrs. Catherine Coughlin, 270 Austin street, under date of Feb. 17. He says:

Am writing you a line to let you know I am well, as it is three weeks since my last letter. I suppose you have heard that our battery is at the front and believe me one is kept on the jump.

Everybody is happy and well. Jim Kelly has been up there about a week having a crack at them; I am about three miles in back of him, but I hear from him every day and he says he is having a great time, so please tell Mother Kelly. You would no doubt find it hard to recognize me in a helmet and gas mask, which we are compelled to carry all the time. We have a fine lot of officers and they take as much pride in us as a father would in his own son. Every time there is any danger they are right on the job to tell us what to do.

I thought when I heard a thunderstorm at home it was a lot of noise but it is as nothing in comparison to the sound of the guns. It is an awful sight to see some of the places our regiment has passed through, families having been driven out of their homes, which have been blown to the ground. It is a common sight to see old women digging the ground, but it is apparently necessary here owing to the men being at the front or in government employ. I have many things to tell you when I get back which are not allowed to be said in a letter, but which will convince you that our battery has been very fortunate.

John J. Coughlin.

NEW BEDFORD ARMY OFFICER WHO WAS ON THE TORPEDOED TUSCANIA

LIEUTENANT FRANCIS J. VINE. Feb 9, 1918

COMMANDED AN AERO SQUADRON

Lieut. Vine Was on Transport Headed for Service in France.

Was for 12 Years a Member of the Regulars Stationed at Fort Rodman.

Great anxiety is felt over the fate of Lieutenant Francis J. Vine of this city who was a passenger on the ill-fated transport Tuscania. Mrs. Vine, who with her two children is staying with her sister, Mrs. Emma Boswell at 136 Campbell street, immediately wired the officers of Camp Mineola, N. Y., where Lieutenant Vine was stationed previous to sailing, regarding his safety when she heard of the sinking of the Tuscania. Yesterday afternoon she received a telegram from Dr. Tibbits at the same camp saying that Lieutenant Vine was alive and well. Later this good news was offset by a telegram from Adjutant General McCann sying Lieutenan.' Vine's name appeared on the Tuscan-'s passenger list, and that no infor-mation had been received concerning him. Lieutenant Vine sailed with the 213th aero squadron.

Lieutenant Vine is well known in this city as he was stationed at Fort Rodman for twelve years, and was only transferred from here to Camp Mineola a year ago last November. While here he was a sergeant in the old 52nd company, now the first company. He was made a first lieutenant last October and at once placed in charge of the 213th squadron. Mrs. Vine is a New Bedford woman and before her marriage was Miss Annie Morr.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

D. H. Gifford Holds a Record Among the Grocery Clerks---Began Work at the Age of 17.

1918

In the Central Union store on Sixth street you will find a genial, white haired old man who is among the veteran grocery clerks of New Bedford. His name is Daniel Henry Gifford, and March 1 he will round fifty years of service as a grocery clerk. He began working in 1868, when he was 17 years old, securing his first position with William Dwight, and today as 67 he is still waiting on customers in the same courteous way that won him so many friends at the outset of his career.

D. H. Gifford. Feb 17, 1918

Mr. Gifford worked for Mr. Dwight for fifteen years and spent 20 years in the employ of David B. Folger. For many years it was a familiar sight to see him driving about with his horse Joan securing orders. Mr. Gifford has worked for a number of different firms, among which, besides those mentioned, are Henry Holcomb, E. B. Anthony, Fred Nye, N. F. Harriman, Hollywood's, Brownell's, William Chadwick, O. P. Phinney, Braley & Duckworth and the Union store.

Needless to say Mr. Gifford cannot recall a time when sugar was as scarce as it is at present, but he can remember when sugar came in large, hard lumps and had to be ground up before it was sold. And he can also recall that the work of a grocery clerk was much harder in the early days because there were no paper bags. "It wasn't very easy to do sugar up in paper," said Mr. Gifford, "and we were all glad when paper bags began to come in."

Mr. Gifford's record as a grocery clerk is closely rivaled by that of his twin brother, Charles Gifford, who is employed by Fred Luce, and who has worked for 46 years as a clerk.

A LIEUTENANT IN AVIATION

Wm. B. Souza, High School Graduate, Commissioned at Kelly Aviation Field.

Went to Plattsburg, Attended M. I. T. Aeronautical School and Then Sent to Texas.

William B. Souza, son of William Souza of 41 Page street, was commissioned a second lieutenant at Camp Kelly aviation field on March 2. He is a graduate of New Bedford High school, class of 1915. He attended the officers' training camp at Plattsburg last May and was transfered to the aviation section at the completion of his course there. He then attended the aeronautical school at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. After graduating from there he went to the aviation camp at Kelly field. He has been detailed to remain there for the present.

O. BELLENOIT WRITES HOME

Only Member of Regiment to Be Retained as Assistant Instructor in the Training School.

Oscar Bellenoit.

Oscar Bellenoit, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Bellenoit of 102 De Wolf street, has written his parents from the training school he is attending somewhere "over there" as follows:

Somewhere in France
Feb. 9, 1918

Dear Ma:

Well, I have some very good news for you this time. I have made good during my course and I have been kept here for the next course as assistant instructor. I feel proud of myself as I am the only one kept over from this last course out of my whole regiment. It is quite an honor for you and you no doubt will feel proud of me as I have put in the best there was in me to make good. Am to stay here for an indefinite period.

I am not going to stay here, however, all my life. I'm going to keep on working hard to see if I can make better. There is no doubt something better still for me if I make good as instructor, so I ask you all to pray hard for me as no doubt your prayers were answered this time as mine were.

I am leaving for somewhere on the British front for the next week and then coming back to take up my class in signal and map work.

You do not need worry over me any more as I am able to take care of myself very well.

You can tell my friends of my good fortune as I will not be able to write to all of them.

I haven't received any news of any of you for a month now, but, I have notified the battery to forward all my mail here at the First Corps School of Artillery as I will get it in a week or so, that is when I come back from the British school.

You cannot imagine what a wonderful experience this war is in a man's life. It certainly is splendid to see how things go on.

Well, I will write you more of my experience here and at the British school in my next letter, so take good care of yourself, mother, and some day I will surprise you.

By the way. I have found my bag that I had lost and I have a few things I want to send home in a few days.

Here is love to all of you.

From Oscar.

Harold F. Openshaw.

The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Openshaw of 16 Bolton road, William E., aged 22 years, and Harold F., aged 20, are both in the naval service of the United States, the former as a second class cook of the United States naval reserve force at the Newport base, and the latter as chief petty officer of an army transport now in France.

Harold was the first to enlist, joining the regular navy early in April of 1917 in this city. He was stationed for a while at Newport, where he rose to his present rank, and later was transferred to the base at Portsmouth, N. H., where he acted as drill master. He was finally put aboard the ship of war Texas, but was recently transferred to transport duty.

William went into active service at Newport, August 11.

Both boys, while in this city, were conductors for the Union Street Railway company.

THREE BROTHERS IN ACTIVE WAR SERVICE

Mar. 17, 1918.

Carl H. N. and Hennig Sundin.

SAW WAR CRAFT SHOT TO EARTH

Sounds a Hymn of Hate Following Sight of Ravages Caused by Germans.

Private H. N. Sundin of Battery D Tells Thrillers in Brief Letter.

View of an aeroplane fight and the shooting down of a war balloon are two of the thrilling incidents of which Private H. N. Sundin has written in a letter to his mother, who lives at 45 Pierce street. Hjalmer is with Battery D, 102nd F. A. in France and with him in the same battery is his brother Carl, who was a member of the police department before enlisting. Another brother, Henning, is at Fort Greble. All three are well known in this city.

The letter, in part, is as follows:

"Being in the kitchen the last two week, I have not had the time to write to you. Well, we are now at it and hope to make short work of it. Have not seen Carl for a few days as he is now at the front. You know he has charge of the machine gun. It seems that the boys would rather be at the front anytime. Saw an aeroplane fight last night and early this afternoon I saw a balloon shot down. It is certainly some excitement. Most of us are still living in barracks but Dan is up in the dugouts and I do not see him often. Tell Hen I met a fellow named Hathaway who used to work with him on the state pier.

"Well, ma, what I have seen in the last week I certainly hate to think that the Germans were so mean. Villages after villages shot or blown to pieces. And the way the old French people try to get along makes you want to kill all the Germans. Only yesterday I was in an old French village near No Man's Land. There was a couple of old French people, about 60 years old, living in a house all shot to pieces, selling candy and were trying to make a half decent living. It made me feel like crying because they had lost five sons and two daughters through the Germans. The Germans have destroyed everything of any value on their retreat. But believe me, we boys from the dear U. S. A. will make them pay up for all they have done. We are now having fine weather, only for the mud, of which there is plenty. We have the first shell Battery D fired at the Germans and we are going to send it back to New Bedford when the time home."

ITALIAN MUSICIAN PLAYED AT CIRCUS SHOWS AND FAIRS

THE LATE GEORGE MOLLEO.

GEORGE MOLLEO DIED TODAY

Played in Italian Orchestra and at One Time for Side-Shows at Circuses and Fairs.

George Molleo, a widely known musician and for years a member of an Italian orchestra here, died this morning at his home, 73 Willis street. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Molleo's most exceptional experience as a musician was when his entire orchestra travelled with a troupe of freaks, showing at fairs and circuses. The troupe consisted of two children gowned in costumes made of birch bark and leaves, with unkempt hair and brown bodies, billed as "The Wild Tots of the Woods," an aged man with a beautiful white beard, nine feet nine inches long, and Millie Christine, the two-headed girl, one of the most extraordinary freaks ever shown. Millie Christine was then only 14 or 15 years old. For three weeks, Mr. Molleo travelled with this troupe. His orchestra played outside before the performance and then went inside to help the announcer. When Millie Christine sang a song, or better sang a duet, for she could do this with her different pitched voices very nicely, she was dignified by an accompaniment of the full orchestra, Mr. Molleo playing the harp and directing operations.

Feb. 24 1916.

William A. Mackie.

For three weeks the orchestra and the show hung together. Then despite Millie Christine's attractiveness as a freak, business went bad, and there wasn't much money coming to the participants in the show. The orchestra was not dependent upon the manager for the necessities of life, so in a small Pennsylvanian town one Saturday night when merely the shadow of the "ghost" flitted by without stopping, the show and the orchestra parted. Mr. Melleo and his musicians toured the country for some little time until he finally reached New Bedford where he was employed for a number of years at the cigar store of F. W. Francis.

While an attendant at the pool-parlors of F. W. Francis, Mr. Molleo had an extraordinary experience with lightning. While he was walking to the electric car line from Pico Beach in the rain, his umbrella was struck by a ball of lightning, and the electricity melted the wires which held the ribs together. The umbrella fell to pieces. Mr. Molleo was unhurt and always thought the umbrella saved his life.

Mr. Molleo had a host of friends in New Bedford, his genial good nature and his never failing courtesy being appreciated wherever he went. His little orchestra of three pieces had great popularity at one time and played at dances and parties in all parts of the city.

HE LETTERED TESTIMONIAL GIVEN SILAS S. TABER

Mar 24 - 1918

Testimonial of
Silas S. Taber
In grateful recognition of the high standard of ability evidenced by the forty five years of continuous service in the New Bedford Post Office by our friend and co-worker,
Silas S. Taber,
we his associates in the service, wish to express our sincere regrets upon his severing his connection with the Post Office Department.
It has been a pleasure beyond the power of words to adequately describe for us who know him, as an official of the department and as a citizen, our long association has resulted in forming bonds of friendship and grateful recognition of his meritorious service to the Government.
His devotion to duty never obscured an occasion manifestation of human frailty among the rank and file, and he was ever ready to extend the right hand of fellowship and goodwill.
Many of us have good reason to be grateful to him for his interest in our behalf, and we feel deeply the loss of a kind and considerate official who always appealed to our better selves.
Therefore Be It Resolved
That we, the Postal Employees of New Bedford, trust that the years in their flight will deal lightly with him, bringing a sense of joy and peace which will enable his finest sentiment to find full and free expression.

FRANK MURRAY NOW IN FRANCE

New Bedford Boy Is an Ambulance Driver with the British Forces on the Western Front.

A New Bedford boy who is serving with the British forces as an ambulance driver is Frank Murray. He enlisted last November. In a letter to his mother he writes:

Dear Mother:—It's a great life if you don't weaken, that's the saying out here, and I think so too; it makes a man out of any individual if they will let it and a bum if they would rather go that way, but it has built me up fine. We have had a few weeks of bright sunshine, and we play football and baseball, quoits, etc., every night, after we've finished our duties, but it started in for a few rainy days, so we must retreat to the Y. M. C. A. or our own huts to parlor games and magazines. We all build our own huts just to our liking, there are three of us in th's one, and we are right cozy. I'd just got nicely home and gotten my supper when Fritz started shelling the last town I drove through so I missed the fun. I would not be allowed to write of what I saw anyway but it is not very much fun being shelled out of camp on a rainy night. We do not mind it on a nice warm dry night but it is the fortunes of war. I have been in France for 10 months now and I would rather be here although I liked the ambulance work I was doing in Blighty. In the Folkstone air raid we did some valuable work.

Your loving son,

Frank.

REV. T. E. BEEBE RESIGNS CHARGE

Is Forced to Give Up Work Here Because of Ill Health.

Church Has Greatly Prospered During His Pastorate.

Feb 27, 19[illegible]

Rev. Theodore E. Beebe has resigned as pastor of the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene because of ill-health. Mr. Beebe plans to go to Southern California where he believes that the climate will be beneficial for his health.

Rev. Mr. Beebe has been very successful in his work here and during his pastorate the church has prospered. He is a strong preacher and has been of great aid to many of the other Pentecostal churches in this vicinity. In addition to his church work he has been active in the Helping Hand mission. Mrs. Beebe, who is a licensed preacher, has been a strong worker in the church and has been of great assistance in building up the church. During their stay in New Bedford both Mr. and Mrs. Beebe have made a host of friends.

Among the several New Bedford young men who are on the stage is Russell Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Ellis, of 6 Tilton street. Mr. Ellis is now in New Mexico with a musical comedy company. He is well known as a musician in this city, having played several seasons with local orchestras. Mr. Ellis has appeared on the stage more or less ever since he was a child, his father having been in theatrical work for many years. The young man is now 21 years old.

The following announcement appeared in a Tucson, Arizona, paper on March 13:

"A Jazz orchestra will be a feature of the Red Cross tea at the Santa Rita next Tuesday afternoon through the courtesy of Messrs. Russell Ellis and Max Pellach, of the Jacobs Musical Comedy company, which is playing an engagement at the Opera House. Ellis and Pellach are two of the cleverest banjo and saxaphone players in the country. They have put themselves at the disposal of the Red Cross, and their appearance at the weekly tea at the Santa Rita yesterday proved a genuine success."

Parents Receive Postal Card with News That He Is Safe in Germany.

Says He Is Being Well Treated and Asks His Folks Not to Worry.

The first word to reach home directly from Albert DeMello, the New Bedford boy who was taken prisoner when the destroyer Jacob Jones was sunk, came to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio V. DeMello of 121 Hathaway street yesterday afternoon in a brief postal card. It was signed by DeMello and state that he had been taken prisoner, was at a camp in Brandenburg, Germany, was well and was being well treated. "Don't worry about me for I am all right," the note said.

It was written on a postal card, had been through the hands of the German authorities and contained no news at all, save the few sentences mentioned.

At the time the Jacob Jones was sunk, DeMello, who is a powerful swimmer, was in the water several hours, when the U-boat which had sent the Jones to the bottom came along and picked him up. He was the only prisoner taken and the first naval prisoner of the war, from the American navy.

Among local boys who have made and are making records for themselves as master marksmen is Private Joseph De Terra of 1 Smith court, who went to Camp Devens with the first draft contingent in division two from this city. At target practice, De Terra hit the bull's eye squarely five times out of five shots, a perfect score. As far as is known, his record has not been duplicated yet. In target practice since then, De Terra had made a number of excellent scores but has not equalled his own record since. He never did any shooting whatever before entering the army.

The Saturday Morning Advertiser of Durant, Okla., says of Mr. Grainger:

"Rev. Grainger has resided in Durant for three and a half years, and has been missionary in charge of eight southeastern Oklahoma counties in addition to having the local charge.

"During his and Mrs. Grainger's stay here they have endeared themselves to the hearts of all with whom they have come in contact, and the friends of both are numbered by their acquaintances.

"Mr. Grainger has been at the head of the local activities of the Boy Scouts and has given much time, thought and energy to this work, in which his success has been attested by the rapid growth of the organization here. Further than that, he has been outspoken as a community builder and booster, and an exponent of saying and doing the things that make for clean living, to an extent that his influence has been felt in a large degree all over his territory, and especially in Durant."

use to the enemy after the British retired. In a letter to his mother he says, in describing the action:

"By the time we had fired the last hut we were at pretty close quarters with Fritz, but we managed to get away all right and rejoin our company in time for another stunt. This other fellow (with whom Bond had accomplished the work) was the one who had been with me for several weeks before this atack came off on a camp construction job, and it seems rather a peculiar coincidence that we both received this medal for doing something exactly opposite. This took place March 25 and the awards were posted in our orders a few days ago."

Of his father, he writes: "Father was still keeping well at the time of writing and, as he says, getting accustomed to army life. He is still in a camp in England and no doubt will be getting leave soon, so expect he will be seeing the folks in Preston soon."

Lance Corporal Bond is with the royal engineers. He enlisted June 9, 1915, in the British army, and during his fighting career has been wounded twice and had trench fever once. He received his first stripe at Ypres for taking a wounded corporal's place. A brother, Alex, is also fighting in the trenches in France, and in his last letter home said that he was in the first big drive and his company gave Fritz all he was looking for and drove him back.

Rev. Frank H. Peters, for nearly nine years pastor of the North Christian church, will announce to his congregation at the morning service today that he has decided to resign. The resignation will take effect about the first of July. Mr. Peters said he did not wish to discuss it last night, believing, he said, that his first public announcement should be made to his congregation. He admitted that he had made his decision known to the officers of the church. Mr. Peters said he did not intend to go to another pastorate—for the present at least.

Mr. Peters came to the White church in June, 1909, succeeding Rev. James McAllister, D. D. He was called by the North Christian congregation from Coshocton, Ohio, where he had held a successful pastorate and at one time he was pastor of the First Christian church of Fall River.

Since he took the local pulpit, the church has expanded considerably, having added new members steadily. Impetus was given to the growth of the church by its consolidation with the Middle street and Spruce street churches. Mr. Peters is known as one of the most successful ministers of the city and his personality as well as his speaking ability has given him hosts of friends.

He has had several calls from other fields and stands high in the Christian conference of the Rhode Island and Massachusetts district. He was elected president of the conference last year.

HORACE P. TOBEY IS DEAD

Wareham's Most Prominent Citizen Reached Age of 80 Years.

Held Office in Many Organizations---One Time Nominee for State Treasurer.

Horace P. Tobey, Wareham's most prominent citizen, at one time nominee for the office of state treasurer, and a leading authority on the tariff, died at his estate in Wareham yesterday at the age of 80 years. In February, 1916, Mr. Tobey was run down by an automobile truck in a Boston street and it is believed that he never fully recovered from his injuries sustained there. Mr. Tobey was a lifelong resident of Wareham. He was born January 4, 1838, the son of Joshua B. and Susannah K. (Pratt) Tobey. He graduated from Harvard university in 1858 and took up the business left by his father, that of manufacturing steel and iron products. The son became president and treasurer of the Tremont Nail company, serving there from 1859 to 1917, and also was a director of the Wareham National bank and the Wareham Savings bank, and a leader in parish affairs. One of his gifts to the town was a tower on the Church of the Good Shepherd in memory of his mother who lived to be more than 100 years old. Mr. Tobey's death took place in the room in which he was born.

He had a marked taste for literature and the study of public questions. He became well known through his advocacy of tariff reforms, especially in the matter of providing regulations that would permit the importing of foreign mined soft coal and crude material by manufacturing states on the Atlantic coast. He was always fortified with statistics and other arguments gathered in painstaking efforts. He was a life-long Democrat and for many years was active in promoting Jeffersonian policies. He never held public office, but when his advocacy of "sound money" brought him into prominence in 1896 he was nominated for state treasurer by the faction of the party that supported that principle. Besides the nail company he was interested in other enterprises.

He is survived by a niece, Mrs. John Hall Jones of New York. The funeral services will be held at the Tobey homestead Friday at 3:30.

MAP OUT CITY FOR EMERGENCY

Mayor's Advisory Board Makes Comprehensive Plan for Relief.

Territory Divided Into 112 Districts, Each to Be in Charge of Committee.

Mayor Ashley's advisory committee of which Major Garry deN. Hough is chairman, and which was organized to prepared a definite scheme of action in the event of a disaster or any grave emergency which might threaten the city, is progressing rapidly with its work. Under the direction of the committee, City Engineer George H. Nye has prepared maps dividing the city into five sections, and these sections are sub-divided into districts, to facilitate relief work in case of need.

The sections are practically the same as those laid out by the Instructive Nursing association for relief work and the districts are arranged according to population. There are about 1,000 inhabitants to a district. The sections are lettered A, B, C, D, and E, and the districts are numbered.

Section E includes practically all of the city which lies north of Maxfield street and east of Purchase street and the railroad to the city line. Section B takes the territory west of Purchase street and the railroad north of North street. Section C includes most of the ground between Walnut and North streets. Section D, roughly speaking, covers the southw[illegible] and Section E the rest.

The object of the committee is to facilitate district relief work if the need arises and district work is considered of vital importance in case of emergency. It is Major Hough's plan to appoint five division supervisors who would have charge of all the relief work within their territory. The district work should be handled by district committees to be composed entirely of persons living within the districts where they are assigned to work. In this way, it is hoped to get persons who are thoroughly familiar with the neighborhood where they would work if occasion required, who know the geographical points and the people, and who would be able to give speedy and effective service. The size of the district committees will depend on the geographical aspect of each individual district.

"We shall proceed slowly and carefully with the appointment of these district committees," Major Hough said yesterday. "We want to get men and women who are thoroughly conversant with conditions in the neighborhood to which they will be assigned. Then in the event of emergency, the collection of information to guide the central relief bureau should be facilitated to a great extent. District committees, we believe, should be able to report within two hours after they started to work, just wh[illegible] relief was required in their distri[illegible] Their reports would be turned i[illegible] the section supervisors who in t[illegible] would communicate with the cen[illegible] relief bureau. In this manner, operations would be co-ordinated centralized."

George Durant Likes Country and People.

A Battery D boy who has written an interesting letter home of life in France is George L. Durant. He has written home, in part, as follows:

"Dear Family:

"We are all quartered and living as guests of the town. I am writing this letter out on a veranda overlooking the town.

"I have often seen the French women washing their clothes, but I never thought I would be doing it, but last night I was out doing it myself right on the bank of a small river on my knees, scrubbing away on a slab stone just as if I always had been doing washing. The houses are very queer, but quite comfortable. A French woman just passed by here with two big rings of bread on a wheelbarrow and it was all she could do to push it along. I carried one myself for about 100 yards and I thought my arm would break, but how good it was, just like ice cream made from meal, so you can see we are enjoying it here.

"I never felt better in all my life, enjoying life great and my appetite is wonderful, always, looking for mess call. Don't worry about me. Have you see Annie let her see this if she comes up. With best of love, from son and brother George.

FRED RIPLEY SAFE IN FRANCE

South End Boy Crossed Over Four Weeks After Enlisting in Navy---Is Rated as Bricklayer.

may 16 1918

Fred R. Ripley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ripley, has arrived safely in France, according to letters received by his parents. Enlisting in the navy as a seaman early this year, he was stationed at Newport for a brief spell, crossing over four weeks later with the rating of bricklayer. He writes enthusiastically of the life abroad, and at present is employed in the building of Y. M. C. A. huts in France.

Ripley is but 21 years of age, and was a prominent member of the baseball and soccer teams of the South Baptist church prior to his enlistment, while he was also connected with the Cove Albion Athletic club of the south end.

THE SUNDAY STANDARD SOLDIERS' LETTER BOX

Little Personal Stories of New Bedford Boys At the Front Or In Training Camps As Told By Themselves In Letters Sent Home This Past Week.

Mathew F. Fisher.

Private Phinney Leighton.

Private Phinney Leighton who is with Battery D somewhere in France has written to friends in this city as follows:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and hope that you are the same. I am "somewhere" on the front and believe me it is exciting. It is some life to be a soldier. I wonder how everything is in New Bedford. Good old New Bedford, I never realized how good it was until now and if I ever hit the old town again nothing will stop me from painting it red. But at present I am glad to be on my way to Berlin and we won't leave until we get the Kaiser and that will be soon. This life is just like a moving picture only it is real not reel. We are at the front but do not let that worry you as we did not come here to die. As I write this letter I can hear the guns booming and the roar of the cannons but nevertheless I feel safe. The boys are playing cards now while the shells are bursting overhead so you see we are not afraid because we know that back home our mothers are praying for their boys and we know that mothers prayers save many of us.

Albert Tetreault.

Private Alfred Collins.

Private Collins is one of the Battery D boys who is right at the front what he has to say gives an insight into conditions there:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and hope that you are the same. It is four weeks since the last time. We have traveled some since then. We are just through firing at the Germans. We have had supper and have gone into our dugouts where we will sleep. We have fine meals here at the front. We see a number of airplane fights. Do not worry about me as we are all right and I am taking care of myself.

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR

Rev. George Crocker Gibbs in France on War Work

Rev. George Crocker Gibbs, a former resident of New Bedford, arrived in France this week and has taken charge of the Technology bureau of the American University Union in Europe. Rev. Mr. Gibbs will be stationed at the parish headquarters of the bureau and will engage actively in the work of caring for American university men, especially those of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who are fighting with the Allies.

His appointment to this important position will be a pleasant surprise for his many friends in this city and especially for his mother, Mrs. Lot H. Gibbs of Lincoln street, Rev. Mr. Gibbs was born in this city in 1878 and after attending schools here entered M. I. T. in 1896. During the eight years which followed his graduation he was in the employ of some of the most widely known engineering concerns in this country and for a while engaged in business for himself in New Bedford. In 1908 he abandoned engineering and entered the Episcopal Theological school at Cambridge. Since his graduation from that institute in 1911 he has been engaged in church work in Oklahoma and more recently in a New York city parish.

Privates Kelley and Flanagan.

M. J. Kelley.

A New Bedford lad who is serving as a wagoner in France is M. J. Kelley of 208 Davis street, this city. He is with Company D, 1st U. S. Engineers. He writes as follows to his parents in this city:

I write you this letter hoping it reaches you safely and that all the good things you have sent have arrived safely. I have the sweater and the socks on. It was certainly some outfit.

Believe me that old feather bed will feel good when I can get in it again. We sleep in barns and under the wagons and some times in houses. At present I am in a millionaire's house with the log blazing merrily in the fireplace.

The sun is shining through the windows for the first time in five months, and the boys are enjoying their second bath in two months.

Gum costs one franc for a five cent piece and cigars are about flying.

I have been up to the front and it is hot stuff. I was in the thick of it for 35 days, and say gas is a good thing to keep away from.

The Salvation Army is doing a good work over here.

Private John S. Costa, Jr.

News of several former New Bedford men who are now in France is conveyed in a letter written to Mayor Ashley by Private John S. Costa, Jr., a member of the motor transportation detachment C. A. C. A. E. F. No. 2. Costa, who was one of the garrison at Fort Rodman, appeals for old newspapers and magazines, there apparently being a shortage of reading material among his companions. His letter follows:

"Just a line to let you know that we New Bedford boys are well and safe. I just got through talking to Victor Bolduc who wrote to you a short while ago and I read the piece you sent him from the Evening Standard. I certainly was glad to read a piece from our New Bedford paper and would you be kind enough to see if anyone has some of the old editions of papers and magazines that they have discarded and have them send them to me and I will pass them to the boys.

"There is a lot of boys here from New Bedford. I soldiered at Fort Rodman four years or a little over and was put on the reserves. I used to work for Jack Haran (Hiram Wheaton & Sons) as a driver on one of his trucks.

"I write to my wife and parents in New Bedford twice a week but have been here only a short while and have not got any mail yet. We have got a lot of German prisoners here and get a lot every day.

"Recently I met Sergeant Harris who used to be my first sergeant at Fort Rodman, also Sergeant Doyle and lots of others, too numerous to mention. I am now writing this letter with a pencil that came from the Continental Wood Screw company, New Bedford. It is hard to get ink around here. There is a lot of wine and beer here but they advise us not to drink it on account of the way it puts a man. The French soldiers drink a lot of it.

"Everything is green here and planted. Airplanes are flying overhead all the time."

William C. Card, Jr.

Word has been received from William C. Card, of 109 Main street, Fairhaven, a member of the 148th Aero Squadron that he has sailed for duty overseas. Mr. Card enlisted October 19th and was sent to Fort Slocum. From there he went to Fort Sam Houston then was later transferred to Kelly Field, Texas. From there he was sent to Evorman, Texas and from there went to Camp Benbroke in the same state. Previous to going across, Mr. Card was stationed for a short time in Garden City, Long Island. He writes that he enjoys the work and although he met with a slight accident while in training his enthusiasm for aviation is as great as ever.

W. C. Card, Jr.

William Beaumont.

Some of the sensations that the boys of Battery D felt when they reached the front are described in a letter written by William Beaumont to his mother in this city:

I suppose that by this time you will know that we are in the trenches. It is different than I ever expected. I am now writing down in a dug out. It has been very quiet the past few days. We have fired a few shots and so have the Germans. I had to laugh yesterday, the Frenchmen were having a football game and the Germans must have seen them for they started shelling them. You ought to have seen them scatter. We all laughed at them.

I am in good health and I am feeling fine, the best since I joined the army. You know all the battery does not go to the front at once. It feels quite funny living under ground, but it is pretty safe. I had my first lesson in being under shell fire Saturday. We were going up to the front and had got to a small village when all at once we were shelled by a German battery. We were at a halt when it happened and the order came through to run at a gallop. So I got down there to take off the brakes and the drivers started the horses. So I was left alone and they certainly did go. I started running and believe me I certainly pounded that old earth. I never went so fast in my life, and I was in heavy marching order too. But any way I got out of the range of the fire and sat down and watched the shells explode. The shells never bother me now. They go whistling over our heads and we always look to see where they are going. It is a very exciting life and yet it is dreary for you are always under suspense, because we do not know what is going to happen next. But I like it all right. When a German aeroplane appears we all duck for cover and the anti aircraft guns begin firing at it. The Germans have begun firing now but they are not shelling us as they are on some other part of the line.

Henry Adams.

Private Ellsworth Rogers.

Another glimpse into the life of Battery D is given in Private Rogers' letter:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and hope these few lines will find you the same. How is everything down that way? Haven't heard from you for about two months. Am seeing some of the great sights of the —at the present time. Of course where we are there are no civilians, nothing but soldiers and Americans . There isn't much doing here just now so I thought I would scratch you a line to let you know that I am still among the living. Of course when we go to bed we don't know whether we are going to wake up or not. We have to sleep with our gas masks already to put on in a minutes notice. Take it on an average this isn't a very bad war after all. Of course the big guns do a lot of hollering and when the airplanes aren't dropping bombs everything is pretty quiet. The guns are roaring tonight somewhere along the front. Well I can't think of anything else to say at this writing, except to say that I am waiting to hear from you in every mail. I suppose I will be one of the lucky boys to be in the spring drive, and I hope and pray that it will be the last battle of the war. And that we will march into Berlin with the stars and stripes unfurled to the breeze.

Ellsworth B. Rogers,
1st C. Priv. Co. M.

Adrian and Edmond Blain.

Joseph P. Collins.

Collins Brothers.

Both sons of Mrs. P. Collins of 336 Davis street, Alfred and Joseph P. Collins, are in the military service of the United States in France, the former as a member of Battery D, 102nd regiment United States field artillery corps, 26th division, 51st brigade, and the latter of Troop H, third regiment United States cavalry, of the American expeditionary forces to the western war front. Both write that they are contented and thriving on their treatment in the army.

Alfred Collins.

Three Chums in Service.

Three chums who have entered the army service are Matthew F. Fisher, whose home is at the corner of Nash road and North Front street and Adrian and Henry Blain, whose home is in Acushnet. Fisher and Adrian Blain are at Camp Green, N. C., having been transferred from Camp Devens. Henry Blain is now in the depot brigade at Devens.

Private Albert Sherman.

From Fort Adams comes this chatty letter from Private Albert Sherman.

A reception and banquet was given in the mess hall of the Ninth Company, C. A. C., N. B., at Fort Adams, in honor of Captain Mitchell and the officers and men who are going to leave the fort soon. The banquet was held at 6 30 p. m. with a fine spread that more than pleased the boys. The menu consisted of celery, olives, pickles, roast turkey, dressing, French peas, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, giblet gravey, cranberry sauce, apple, mince pies, cakes, oranges, apples, cigars, cigarettes, ginger ale, and ice cream. The supper was followed by speeches from the commissioned officers who did not fail to praise and encourage the boys for their excellent work which has been shown by all members of the company. After the speeches were made the members of the company gave an entertainment which was enjoyed by all present. The 9th company quartet sang "Ching Chong Chow" and "The Whole World Is Calling You." Private Garahan with his novelty songs and sketches made a real hit and caused many hearty laughs. Private Govermont also did his bit as vocal soloist. The 9th company orchestra made the hall ring with popular marches of the army. Musician David ended the entertainment by playing the Star Spangled Banner. The following men are all formerly from New Bedford:

Major Edgecombe, Captain Mitchell, Lieutenant Bhahana, Lieutenant Cox, officers or former officers of the company not of New Bedford. Lieutenant Rohbrough, Lieutenant Anderson, Lieutenant Roy, First Sergeant Grosse, Providence, Corporal Hamilton, Providence, officers and former officers of the company. Privates Bernard, pride of north end; Worcester, State street; Giolioza, 60 Hazard street, Gauthier, 111 Eugenia street, Benoit 18 Washburn street; St. Germain, 129 Holly street; Saucier, 24 Bentley street; Joseph Sylvia, 9 Waverly street; Enos, 218 So. Sherman, 17 Tremont street; John Sylvia, 251 First street; Barriteau, 2 Willis street.

Private Sol Cohen.

Private Cohen is at the front with the Battery D boys and writes as follows of his experiences:

"I am now at the front and will not be able to write you so often as the Germans are keeping us busy. We got our first surprise from the Germans on our way to the front. We were riding along peacefully and looking at the fine country places when all of a sudden a shell exploded 10 feet away. Maybe we did not let our horses out and we were soon far away. We are having plenty of excitement at times and at other times it is pretty dull. Only yesterday I saw an observation balloon shot down; then the attacking aeroplane was sent down. But we are getting used to the sound of bursting shells and aeroplanes. But do not worry as we will be home before long.

I am feeling fine and in good health. I am getting stout and am raising a moustache so you will not know me when you see me.

I am glad that I am over here because it is something awful the way the Germans have treated the French. Have seen a few villages and they are all in ruins, nothing left but the old people. The young people were either killed or carried away. What they could not carry off they blew to pieces. I do not wonder that the whole world is against them and I hope to get a few Germans myself."

Alphonse Goguen.

William A. Bulcao.

Conditions "over there" are clearly pictured in the following letter from William A. Bulcao of the medical department of the 14th Engineers.

Just a few lines to let you know that I am still alive but not as well as I would like to be. The weather has been fairly good lately but, previous to that it was very cold and damp. It snowed quite a little here but I am afraid not quite as much as in the states. Although the thermometer does not register as low as in the states I believe it is just as cold if not colder owing to the dampness in the air. When it rains, one can find nothing but mud. In some places it is exceptionally deep.

The old shack just rocked and shook from the concussion of the shell. At times the shock was greater than others owing to the size of the shells he was dropping. He sure does make a lot of noise when he gets loose. We are ready for him now and I guess he won't get loose for another good long while.

I will be going on furlough very soon but not to the states. I wish I was going, it's the only place in all the world. Few of us realized what home was until we got out here. I expect to go to Paris now or England later.

We have to be very careful on what we say in our letters owing to strict censorship. I don't think my mentioning the above two places is military information for others are writing about going to Paris and England. If it is considered military information it will be scratched out, but I doubt very much if it is.

I receive papers from home once in a while "The Evening Standard" and it seems rather a treat to be able to read the home news at this distance.

I have met already quite a few others in this regiment and others from New Bedford. We get together and we tell of the good old times we used to have back home.

I see that New Bedford is sending quite a few men away to be trained for the trenches. I wish them the best of luck. I wish I could meet some of them. Several names which I read in the paper I am well acquainted with. It would be just the thing to see them once more before they go into the lines. I suppose there will be many I will never see again.

le Feb 22nd 1918

Dear Brother Frank and Mamie, Since writing You last I have been very busy. As I told You in my last letter about moving to another Camp there is no need of me writing about it again, I was left behind to take care of the surplus baggage, so I only arrived at the camp where the rest of the Boys are last Sunday, travel, well You bet, clean across France then I had to take another route and retrace my journey half way back, left the baggage there, and then came to the front to join the Battery. The Boys are doing Splendid all are feeling fine all wanting to get a crack at the Boches I cant tell You what sector we are in STRAIGHT FORM THE TRENCHES—FACSIMILE OF LETTER FROM PRIVATE THOMAS J. TAFFE.

SHOT FOR SHOT

Is What Battery D Gives the Germans.

Sergeant Hyland is serving in the ranks of Battery D and he has written home of some of the experiences of the boys at the front.

"I received a letter from you the other day and it is the first I have received for some weeks. I have not written for two weeks for we have been moving about from place to place. We won't be here long they say. I am on the western front. I am writing this letter in a dugout right beside my gun. We are firing all the time at the Germans and they are firing back at us, but they cannot find us. The shots all go over us. Sometimes they throw gas shells and so we have to wear our gas masks all the time. When we turn in at night we have our gas masks ready to put on at a moment's notice, when the sentry gives the warning. The way we live is we dig into the side of a hill, everyone is underground. All we take off is our shoes and leggings so that we can get to our guns quickly. Tell George Moss that Battery D is on the firing line and that we are giving the Germans shell for shell and a little more and we are firing night and day. We are only able to wash up once in two days and change our clothes when and where we get a chance which is not very often."

IN AVIATION SERVICE

Lloyd Russell Writes Interestingly From France

March 9. 1918.

Dear Mother and Father:

Have just received your two letters dated Jan. 18th and Feb. 1st, and read every inch of them through and through. Have just returned from a concentration camp in the south of France, and now am back on my old job again, and will probably be here for a long time. You see when I first enlisted I filled out flying papers, but then I thought of my promise to you, mother, so I had them filed away for me. Somehow or other they got my name on the list, and that was how they happened to send me to the training camp. I was there a month before they found out differently, so have now been assigned to my old position. There are no more commissions to be given out until spring or summer, but am going to stick to it and try for one at least. The weather here at present is very mild and agreeable, and I hope that it remains so. You sure must have had some winter there at home, believe me. Have just met a bunch of "doughboys" (American infantrymen from the trenches) here on permission for seven days. They sure looked good with their steel helmets, rifles, packs, and all covered with mud, right from the front lines. They were given a hand everywhere, and it made me wish that I was one of them. They sure will get a hand when they get back to the States, won't they? Has Gregoire called to see you and talk over things? I hope so, for I told him many things to tell you. Am glad to hear that Russell Paulding is recovering, and if possible would like to be remembered to him. I am feeling fine after my month of "real life" at camp, and it surely did me a lot of good. You will have to explain to those to whom I sent cards that I have been requisitioned back to my old position. That's the trouble, if one is proficient on one thing you are liable to have to stay on it. However, I am not only doing my bit, but my best, I can't do any more, can I?

My pen keeps blotting, and am looking forward to Mr. Kennelty's gift as a deliverance. Will probably have to wind up writing to you in pencil. Now that I am here again as soon as I can get hold of a "French Poiler" will try and get two or three bricquets, one for Mr. Reed, and one or two for Mr. Langshaw, and your friends. Can't say when, but when I do will certainly be glad to do so. I have so much paraphernalia with me that I am going to store some of it with the Am. Exp. Co. until after the war. If we should move I am supposed to carry all of my belongings, and now it would surely be impossible. Will keep only what is necessary and check the rest. One can do anything in this line at the Am. Exp. Co. and it makes it most handy.

Have just experienced my first air raid here. At 8 30 last night the sirens started screeching, the searchlights were playing up in the air, and everything was on the run. Another chap and I were walking along the boulevard watching the commotion, when all of a sudden there was a terrific explosion, and the glass in all the store windows around us flew like so much snow or hail. We were near the Opera at the time, and it struck about three blocks away. We couldn't get in the subways as they were packed, so we just had to remain stationary. All you could hear was the roar of the anti-aircraft guns, and the buzz of the planes. It continued until midnight, and then it finally died away. The star-shells were brilliant and lighted the whole sky for miles. Bombs struck in several places, and there were about 20 killed and many injured. We went up again today to see the place where the bomb had struck and it sure ripped things up some. It was a very exciting and interesting experience, but I hope that they don't keep it up.

Frank Baylies has brought down his first Bosche and has been officially awarded the Croix de Guerre with a palm. I suppose the papers have given you all the particulars. It sure is great of him, and he deserves a whole lot of credit. I hope that he pulls through all right and not have any misfortunes.

March 13th. I mislaid the letter dated March 9th, which I am enclosing, and am continuing it on this date. The night before last the Bosche were over here again, and made one of their worst raids. They have got so now that they come over every other night. Am sending you clipping from the edition of the New York Herald printed here, which will give you some idea of it. We got the first alarm at about 9.30 at night, and in about twenty minutes they were directly over us, letting loose with their fiendish death-dealing bombs. At the first alarm another fellow and I went to the roof and sat there watching the bombs, the lights from the air-planes, etc. (one can tell the difference in the hum of a French plane and a Bosche. The French plane has a steady roar, while Fritz has little intermissions between his explosions). We had no more than got there when—one, two, three, four, Bang, Bang, Bang, Bang, it seemed as though they had hit right next to us. The sky was illuminated with the flare, and our building swayed to and fro. We beat it just as fast as we could for the cellar for protection. From then on it was one continual roar of bombs, anti-air craft guns, machine-guns, and the ratta-tat-tat from the planes in the air. They dropped gas bombs and killed many, who had taken refuge in a subway, in this manner.

Secretary of War Baker was given a grand reception on his arrival here. The minister of war's building was smashed to smithereens and that whole street was a shower of glass. The front line trenches have got nothing on this place now. Our place is only about four blocks away from the Place de Concorde where all this took place, and this is what they always make for as it is about the centre of activities. If they keep it up we'll all have to go around with steel-helmets and gas-masks.

Do you get reports promptly "over there" on these raids, etc? There are a bunch of our engineers, and doughboys, here at the hospital all wounded, and when one sees them it sure makes them realize that we are right in it for fair, but we are going to come out on top just the same. The boxes haven't arrived yet, and am still watching the mails eagerly. Especially want the one in which you say you enclosed photos taken of you two out at Long Pond by Dr. Pease. Hope that they haven't gone down on the way over. Am busy morning and night, and never worked harder in my life. Things are being rushed, and it means that I have to work nights very often, so the old cot and mess certainly go good, but I don't mind. Spring has come to stay here I guess, and the days and nights are wonderful. The days are warm, and in the afternoons the boulevards are crowded, as well as the parks, but since these last two raids one right after the other the streets are absolutely dark, and very few people are to be seen. What lights there are are dark blue, and everything has a sombre air. Maybe the Statue of Liberty and the good old U. S. A. won't look good to me, and a whole lot of others too, I guess. Well when I write again in a day or two maybe I'll have another raid to write to you about, but let's hope they don't come as close as they did before.

Remember I love you two better than life itself, and if ill should befall me you two will be my last thought. May God bless you and watch over you and me, too, and help us to join when the time permits. With best love and wishes to you, and remember me to all the folks.

Lovingly, Lloyd.

MEETS OLD CHUMS

Frederick Vogt Sees Battery D Boys.

In a letter to Rev. Henry Reumann, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, has received a letter from Private Frederick Vogt of the 103d M. G. B. in which he tells of meeting some Battery D boys in France.

Dear Friend:—Just a few lines to you know that I am well and as ppy as can be under the circumnces that we are in just at present. was very much surprised to get ir letter and you may be sure that was more than welcome. I also a number of letters at the same e last night and among them was tter from home and all the mail I got has made me very cheerful I cannot help but sing now and thank the good Lord for being so good and kind to me in the days of my great need. Perhaps I may get some more mail tomorrow and I am sure that it will be welcome. I met some of the New Bedford boys who belong to Battery D. I also met Frank Wunschell among them and I was mighty glad to see some of my old chums.

At times I feel rather lonesome and homesick. I try to attend church services every chance I get but you know how a soldier's life is, one moment here and the next he is on his way for somewhere else. But I am trusting the Lord for I knew long before I joined the army that Jesus is my very best friend and I know that I am one of his children and he is taking care of me as a good and kind father takes care of his only child. Today as I look back to the days that are gone I can see more and more of the kind deeds Jesus has done for me and since I came to France the Lord has taken a firmer and better hold on me. He has helped me to resist temptations and evils and I can always feel his hand no matter what I do or where I go. Yes, dear friend, I can confess that Jesus is my Redeemer and Saviour, that I am his child, and that he is my father in heaven. May his will be done on earth as it is in heaven and if it is his will that says that my body shall be buried in France my soul will go to heaven just the same. But I trust that the Lord will carry me through all danger and bring me back safe and sound to my dear ones at home.

We are having some nice warm weather here just now and I hope that it stays this way. I have seen a lot of things these three weeks and I will have a lot to tell you about in my next letter. Well I must close now with best regards and wishes to you all. May God bless and keep you all well and happy.

IS NOW SERGEANT

Joseph Rawlinson of This City at Camp Meade.

Sergeant Joseph Rawlinson of the sanitary detachment of the 312th Machine Gun Battery, who is stationed at Camp Meade, Baltimore, Maryland, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frank Rawlinson of 166 Irvington street, on a short furlough. Sergeant Rawlinson enlisted last July and was first sent to Joseph Rawlison.

Fort Slocum and was transferred from there to Camp Meade, where within a short time he was promoted to the rank of sergeant. Previous to entering the service Mr. Rawlinson was employed as a mercantile reporter with the R. G. Dun company.

W. Mark Redfern Helmsman in the Navy.

William Mark Redfern, member of Uncle Sam's navy, is enjoying a well earned vacation of five days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Redfern, 484 Summer street, after serving just a year without an extended lay-off from his strenuous duties. Mr. Redfern joined the navy just twelve months ago today, which is the anniversary of the declaration of war by this country on Germany. At the time of his enlistment, he was apprenticed to the drafting school in connection with the General Electric company at Lynn, and was one of about 200 apprentices who decided that their place was in the service of the country.

By steady application to his duties, young Redfern, who is but twenty years of age, has risen to the rating of helmsman, and has already crossed through the danger zone half a dozen times as a member of the crew of one of the vessels engaged in transport duty. He will rejoin his ship on Tuesday next, and in the meantime is visiting his many friends in this city.

Manuel Andrews.

Eli Gubellini.

Elia Gubellin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gubellin of 5 Delano street, Fairhaven, was home this week on furlough from the regular navy, of which he is a member. Thursday night he was given a party at his home and returned later to duty. He enlisted in the navy April 2, four days before America entered the war and has been across the ocean three times.

PRIV. HOUGHTON GIVEN SURPRISE

may 5-1918

Private Charles Houghton of 1804 Purchase street, stationed at present at Camp Mills, L. I., N. Y., last week spent a brief furlough in this city with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Houghton. During his stay, he was surprised at his home by a number of his friends and relatives. He received many gifts from his friends, among them a purse of gold. The following participated in making the surprise a success: Miss Dorothy Nichols, Miss Hilda Nichols, Miss Brothers, Miss Rose, Miss Jenson, Miss Olive Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. James Houghton, Milton Nichols, Harry Nichols, Walter Houghton, Doris Houghton, Mrs. Sarah Houghton, Mrs. Jenny Laduc, Celio Noon, Miss Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rivard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rivard, Miss Alice Rivard, James Dexter, Raymond Blackburn, Miss Alice Blackburn, Miss Sadie Perkerson, Benjamin Wood, Thomas Taber, John Grimes, Annie McGrath, Edna M. Prouix and Exzina Gravel.

Private Houghton left on the 9.45 train yesterday morning for Camp Mills. He enlisted in the United States army on July 17th, 1917. He joined the colors in Detroit, where he

May 6 1918

Miss Sophie LeBlanc Married to Napoleon Saulniers---Latter Hurried Home on a Four-Day Furlough.

Taking advantage of a four-day furlough, Napoleon Saulniers, a private in the national army now stationed at Camp Upton, came home the past week and took as his bride, Miss Sophie LeBlanc of 1111 South Water street. The ceremony was performed at St. Hyacinth's church by Father Clerk. The bride was attired in a gown of white crepe de chine and her bouquet was novel in that among the red roses were entwined the American and French flags.

Private Saulniers was sent to Camp Gordon where he stayed seven months during the winter, training in the infantry. He has since been transferred to Camp Upton, New York.

WEAVERS' UNION PAYS CASH FOR FIVE THOUSAND DOLLAR LIBERTY BOND

Apr. 21, 1918.

The weavers' union has shown its patriotism to the tune of $5,000 invested in third Liberty bonds. Incidentally, also, the union has shown its strong cash position, for when Abraham Binns, the secretary of the union, was snapped for the above photograph he was in the act of paying over the $5,000 check for the bond at the Institution for Savings. This is the first Liberty bond that the weavers' union, as an organization, has taken, but many of the members of the union have gone the limit with their subscriptions on the weekly payment plan. Secretary Binns has subscribed for a band of each of the three issues as they have come out, and has paid for them weekly. Mr. Binns has done his best to persuade the members of the union individually, and the union as an organization, to subscribe as liberally as possible to the Liberty bonds.

was employed as an automobile machinist. He was first sent to camp at Columbus, O., then to Gettysburg, then to Camp Green, North Carolina, and then to Camp Mills, N. Y. He anticipates an early call to cross the ocean. Before leaving for Detroit, Private Houghton was well known in north end athletic circles.

THE SUNDAY STANDARD SOLDIERS' LETTER BOX

Little Personal Stories of New Bedford Boys at the Front Or In Training Camps As Told By Themselves In Letters Sent Home This Past Week

Private E. Jackson.

Private E. Jackson has written to his friend, Miss Margaret Travers of 1 Lexington street of some of his experiences in France. The letter is dated Feb. 24, with a postscript on the first line trenches and are going now resting in back of the trenches in a large cave. I have a little time to spare, so I thought I would write your a few lines to let you know I am in good health, hoping this will find you the same and the rest of the family.

"I will tell you a little of my experience while in trenches. The place we are in was supposed to be a quiet sector, but believe me it was far from March 2. Private Jackson is a member of H. Company, 101st U. S. Infantry and writes from "Somewhere in trenches in France."

"Received your little basket kit and housewife and was very glad to get it, as it is a very useful thing to have in this life. We are in the trenches now, so I don't have the same chance as formerly to write to you.

"We we have just got relieved from being quiet as there were big shells bursting all around us and machine gun bullets whistling around, which sounds like a lot of mosquitoes buzzing around; but there were none of our fellows hurt, so we were lucky. One night, after being relieved, an attack call came, and when I reached the firing line, two bullets from a German machine gun whizzed by my head, and believe me, I was lucky I didn't get one of them. The worst thing up there was that we didn't get much sleep, as there wasn't much time for it. The dug-outs were very bad, just a hole dug in the ground and a tin roof, and it was very cold and damp.

"If you go into a dugout head first, you have to come out feet first, as there isn't room to turn around in there, but I suppose that is war, and we have to make the best of it. Don't be surprised when I tell you I am lousy with a capital L. There are two fellows next to me with their shirts off, playing cards for lice. It makes no difference who or what you are, these little playmates are with you, and they are good company on a cold night, because they keep you moving all the time.

"Just a few lines to let you know I am getting along fine and am well. As we are resting behind the lines now, I have some time to myself in which to write a few letters, and the first one is to you.

"After coming out of the trenches, after being in them for a short period of time, we lived in caves as a reserve force to either of the three lines we happened to be reserved for, and believe me it is some life. As I am writing this, there are two fellows reading their shirts, and are swapping little ones for big ones, and a fellow is scratching my back. I wish some one would invent some kind of a scratcher that is run by a two-horse power engine. I guess we'll all get rid of them as soon as we get to our rest camp."

Soldier Foretells Drive.

William H. Taylor, the son of Mrs. Daniel S. Taylor of 3 Court street, has written to his mother and family of conditions in France. The letter, dated Jan. 15, foretells the great German drive.

Somewhere in France,
Jan. 15, 1918.

Dear Mother and Family—A great surprise was in store for me today, when Mr. Good Fortune favored me with two letters and one of my Christmas boxes, the one with the cake and all the good things you so kindly sent me. You cannot imagine what a feeling of contentment a day like this gives you, and all the boys look forward to it. The mail orderly is the most harrassed man of the unit, and it is funny to see the fellows each in turn asking him if there is any for them. Of course he becomes mighty sick of having 200 fellows ask him daily, and it amuses me to see the look of worriment on his face as he sees us.

Our work over here is really in an embryo state yet, but still considerable headway is being made. The hospital is running, and up to date we have about 250 patients. They are all sick cases or operations now, but if a transport goes down the survivors are brought into this port, and the ill or wounded come to this hospital. Later, no doubt, when the spring drive is on in good shape we will get the cases sent back from the front.

Right now the inconveniences are too numerous to mention, and for that reason the work is hard and complicated. We have a first class operating room and some of the wards are not so bad. You see this place was a convent and has many rooms, which makes it inconvenient for us hospital corpsmen. In large rooms we have as high as 30 patients, but that is only in the main chapel and sort of auxiliary one. Most of the other rooms hold from two to ten. When we are filled up this building will probably hold seven hundred. The French, who had it before us, put nine hundred in it, but it could hardly be expected that Americans could stand such a crowding of people together, unless it is absolutely necessary, as was the case with the French.

In regards to the duration of the war, there is the same sort of speculation over here among the French as in the United States. The more conservative French look for two more years, while others tell you it can't last six more months. Personally I feel that two years is closer than six months, but as I say, it is mere speculation.

The supreme effort is certainly coming this spring. I look for the Germans to hit again at Verdun, bringing enough pressure to bear along the line to keep the English busy so they cannot send help. America has a substantial army over here, but not substantial enough to be much of a factor in an offensive movement. The French have a fine army yet, but the terrible drain on France is telling and the men that fought at the Marne and Verdun are not the men who are in the French army now. I believe the Germans with their guns and men relieved from the Russian front will be able to make a tremendous drive. I look for large gains by them, but notwithstanding the number of men the Germans will throw into it, I believe the Allied army will fight every inch if they have to fall back. I hope this never comes about, and that the Allies will not only be able to hold, but that they can make a counter-offensive which will be disastrous to the Germans.

If the Germans fail in their attempt this spring, they are absolutely done for. This spring I hope will be the high water mark of this terrible struggle. Resources, wealth, and men will surely bring about the end. I don't think the Hindenburg line will ever be penetrated to any extent. The end will surely come through a revolution —when the Germans come to realize that they cannot win, and that the continuance only means starvation and a sacrifice of lives for nothing.

Of course such a movement starts from the lower classes, because they cannot uuderstand the situation. The pan-Germans will fight to the finish, and the war party will never give in. The soldiers in the trenches are getting mighty tired of it you can bet, and between the two, many things can happen. For instance, while I have been here two German submarines have come into this port and surrendered. The crews killed the officers and brought the submarines in along. That shows that there is considerable unrest, but like other things of revolutionary nature, it takes a lot of undercurrent work. It will take a long while before it breaks out in a conflagration. But it surely will eventually.

Sergeant Joseph Thexton.

William H. Taylor.

Personally, I wish the whole thing was over now. I'm not ready to quit by a long shot, but the military life is a hard one. Plenty of give and take to it with you on the taking end all the time. Our officers are a fine lot and I like them. Incidentally it is not a bed of roses, as the posters would have it seem.

I guess I have bored you long enough for this time, so will close, thanking you for all the deeds you are doing for me. They certainly are appreciated.

As ever, your loving son,

Bill.

Sergeant Joseph Thexton.

A Westport boy who is making good in the army is Sergeant Joseph Thexton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thexton of Drift road, South Westport. Sergeant Thexton was drafted into the national army in October and was made a corporal in December. In January he was promoted to the rank of sergeant. At present he is stationed at Camp Gordon, in Atlanta, Ga. Sergeant Thexton is as well known in this city as in Westport, as he lived here for 15 years and was educated at St. Mary's school.

Lawrence F. Rooney.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Rooney of 93 Bedford street are today in receipt of a letter from their son, Lawrence F. Rooney, telling of his safe arrival at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, Private Rooney left Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J. (where he has been stationed since he enlisted in December), on Monday the 11th, arriving at Kelly Field on Friday the 15th. Private Rooney writes that the trip south was very interesting. They passed through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, and then into Texas, and wherever the train stopped for any length of time en route, the boys got out and took a short hike for exercise. In Philadelphia, which was the first stop, the train was met by the Red Cross society, who gave the boys cigarettes, and apples and stamped post cards to send messages to their friends. In Indianapolis, the people turned out in crowds and gave them a warm welcome. At Pine Bluffs, Arkansas, the people came to the train and brought candy and cigarettes to the boys. On the journey, coming south, the letter reads, I saw miles and miles of cornfields and cottonfields. The farmers are ploughing now; and in August, they tell me, the cotton fields are a great sight, white as snow. I'm anxious to see them. We finally arrived at Kelly Field, early Friday morning. There seems to be plenty of sand here and we are sleeping in tents. The most interesting sight is watching the machines and observation balloons in the air. We have a fine lot of officers here. Private Lawrence F. Rooney enlisted in the Aviation Section, Signal Corps and his present address is Line 325, Section F, Rct. Division, 1st Training Brigade, Kelly Field No. 1, San Antonio, Texas.

Harry Ashworth.

A tribute to the late Vernon Castle is contained in a letter written to Mayor Ashley by Harry Ashworth, a New Bedford man who was a member of Captain Castle's squadron. Accompanying the letter is a photograph of Captain Castle two days before he fell to his death. Ashworth, whose home is at 325 Earle street, is serving in the Royal Flying corps of the British army. He writes as follows:

"We are now stationed at Camp Benbrook, Fort Worth, Texas," he says, "and we are carrying on the work of training air pilots, both American and British. We have been here for the winter and expect to back to Canada in April. I enclose two pictures, one of some machines landing, and the other a picture of Vernon Castle taken two days before his fatal accident. You can see his pet monkey on his shoulder. Vernon Castle was a captain in my squadron and a whiter man never lived. It surely was hard to lose him, but it is all part of the big game."

George G. Davis.

George G. Davis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Davis of 54 Peckham street, has been "over the top" five times since the outbreak of the present war as a private of the 38th battalion, British expeditionary forces to the western war front. In letters to his parents here he tells but little of the part he has played in holding the firing line against the onrush of the Hun or of his harrowing experiences in the hell of No Man's Land, but begs that we who have remained at home do all in our power to forward the war work of the Young Men's Christian association, without which he declares it would be impossible for the fighting man to bear the terrible hardships to which he is subjected under fire.

Emile Corderre.

Emile J. Corderre, formerly of 145 Deane street and for the past six months a private of the 80th regiment United States field artillery corps, is stationed at Fort McArthur, Waco, Tex. He enlisted in this city and after a few days' preliminary training at Fort Slocum, New York, was trasferred to Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, where he remained several weeks before being shipped to Fort Arthur. He likes army life and is entirely satisfied with Texas and the treatment he is accorded there.

Two Brothers Enlist.

Robert Haworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haworth of 865 County street and chauffeur for J. W. Knowles, has enlisted as an ambulance driver in the medical department and will leave April 5 for Fort Slocum to await assignment for duty. He is not the only one of the family in the service, for his brother Everett enlisted four months ago in the naval reserve force and is now stationed as a second class seaman.

Peter Davis.

Thomas J. Taffe.

Private Thomas J. Taffe of Battery D. has seen what he had often read about, the dirty deeds of the Huns and his impressions are briefly written in a letter sent to a friend in this city. Taffe is right in the middle of the fight. He writes as follows:

"This is a great life. Nothing only work, work and then some more work. We don't know when we are going to be called out of our quarters at night to answer the fireworks of the Boches and you can bet they are some fireworks. They tried a surprise party last night, gained the point but you ought to see our boys come back, cold steel and they ran. The French don't know what to make of our boys. Worse than the bulldog, they say and the Germans won't stand for it.

"You can read about the cruelties and about the suffering of the unfortunate people of this section of France for the rest of your life and then you would have to see it, to realize the enormity of the crimes committed against them. Cities and villages in ruins, not a house standing. The other night in one of the villages (or rather what was left of it). I saw a cat and it ran as if it was afraid of a human face and at the entrance to each village or city, there is a crucifix erected, generally in the middle of the road. There He is (the Man on the Cross) looking in all His misery and His suffering at the so-called civilization of the twentieth century. Oh! the mockery of one and the grim horror of the other. And yet some people at home try to preach peace. It seems there was nothing too dispicable or mean that the Germans would do or try to do to accomplish their ends. They even took the people women and children, lined them up in front of them at the point of the bayonet, marched them toward the French troops and when near the troops laid down, so their own machine guns could play hell with the French. I could write you all night about different things in connection with these dirty deeds."

Sergeant Lewis R. Studley.

Frank L. Cuddy.

Frank L. Cuddy, whose home in this city is at 190 French avenue, and who is stationed at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, has written the following letter home concerning his experiences in the army:

Dear Folks:—Well, here I am sound and well with no kick about army life although everything here is not pie, but we are learning every day. I have been here since Friday but this is the first chance that I have had to write.

We had a fine trip across the country. We saw miles and miles of coal cars loaded that have been sidetracked all winter. We also saw miles and miles of corn on the stalks that could not be picked on account of the shortage of labor. The crop was a total loss. We saw farm fields so large that a horse could only walk two sides of the field in one day.

We left Boston at 12 30 noon Monday and got into St. Louis Tuesday night at 9 o'clock. We stayed in St. Louis over night at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. and believe me we were treated fine. We cannot praise the Y. M. C. A. enough both in St. Louis and here in camp. From St. Louis we took the Katie flier to San Antonio and arrived here about 9 30 a. m.

I never thought there was so much livestock in the country. We saw jack rabbits by the hundred. The natives chase them with clubs. We saw six deer while in the train and what seemed like a million prairie dogs. We went over mountains, rode along the Mississippi about 15 miles and did not see any snow after leaving Buffalo.

We rode across a desert where there was nothing to see but soft white sand as far as you could see.

On our way down here we traveled first rate. We came all the way in a Pullman sleeping car. The beds fold up out of sight in the daytime and we ate in the day coach.

I ate with the governor of Oklahoma, talked with him and smoked one of his cigars. He came over and sat down with me and asked all about us, how we thought we would like the army life and so forth. He was a nice chap.

We just got the call for noon mess. We had kidney beans, iced tea, bread, tomatoes and onions. I shall be able to eat anything when I get out of the army.

They just called us again for a three hours' drill, and gee! it was great. When the officer gives a command you must obey with a snap. The next time you see me you will not know me. All the fellows down here are all tanned or sunburnt except a few who are homesick. This is a rough life but I can stand it as well as any of them. I would not quit now if I could.

My eyes ache from looking at so many airplanes. I can count about 90 in the air now. There are lots of things that I would like to tell you about but we are not allowed to speak of them.

It is getting late now, and as I want to mail this letter tonight I will close with love.

We have to go to bed at 9 p. m. and get up at 5 30 a. m. I will write later and do not forget to write me.

Your loving son and brother,

Frank.

Chaplain John B. DeValles.

In a letter written to Dr. C. L. Pitta, Fr. DeValles, chaplain of the 104th U. S. infantry, tells of what Portugal is doing for the cause of the Allies.

My Dear Dr. Pitta:

At last I have found a few spare moments to pen you a few lines from far away France. While in Paris I mailed you a couple of postcards which I hope passed the censor.

Well, Mon Cher, as I already wrote you, your friend Dr. Vianna is a prince of good fellows and very well known in the beautiful city of Paris.

How your ears must have tingled during the hour of my interview with him. I promised him that on my next furlough in Paris I would be his guest. I am therefore under another obligation to you for getting me acquainted with such a splendid character.

Though an American chaplain of the American Expeditionary Forces I could not forget that Portuguese blood flowed in my veins.

I looked up some officers of the Portuguese army in France and made several inquiries that perhaps exposed me to the suspicion of being a German spy. I found that nearly 100,000 Portuguese troops are here, and that they are excellent fighters. The press, how[illegible] absolutely silent regarding the great help of the Portuguese allies. As usual, the British get the monopoly of credit. The limelight of favor never shines on poor Portugal or its valiant soldiers.

I called Mr. Homem Christo's attention to this fact at a luncheon he gave me in his elegant and refined home. This brilliant son of Portugal is editor of one of the Parisian daily papers and actual representative in Paris of Don Manuel and his "lost cause." I guess that I surprised him with my plea for public notoriety and credit for the Portuguese army in France. He asked me to give him an interview for publication, which I hope will help a bit to stir up some Portuguese confidence and national pride. All the other nationalities helping England are well advertised everywhere in Paris except our own benighted nation. No Portuguese Y. M. C. A. huts for the men's recreation, no Portuguese Red Cross ambulances. Really our poor nation, in spite of its 100,000 soldiers, seems to be conspicuous by the absence of all the things that the other people have here. A few days before I left a few Portuguese Red Cross nurses arrived in Paris. This, I believe, was due to the patriotic efforts of Mlle. d' Aurelles, a sweet Portuguese nun at the Pasteur Institute, who has taken a deep interest in the welfare of the Portuguese soldiers in France. If you believe that the translation of this in any of the New Bedford Portuguese papers will awaken some patriotism and help for the Portuguese soldier, I would indeed be glad to have you do so. You may use my name, and if any information I can send you will be a help I shall gladly give you the same.

I am now stationed with a Massachusetts regiment in the danger zone. Before many days we shall be in the trenches to give the Boches a taste of American fighting, which I feel sure will end this cruel war. Our boys are just aching for a chance to get at the Boches.

My dear friend, if you could see me

Sergeant Bertram Morency.

roughing it with this great regiment of 3,700 men in these lovely medieval valleys, you would wonder how I could do it after living in that luxurious St. John's rectory. True, we are suffering hardships and privations, but

A HUSTLING RED CROSS AUXILIARY

The Women of St. Martin's Church.

The Red Cross auxiliary of St. Martin's church is among the auxiliaries that are distinguishing themselves for conscientious, consistent work today. The auxiliary is composed mainly of members of the Girl's Friendly society of the church, and has a personnel of some fifty members. The meetings are held every Monday night in St. Martin's Church Home, and the average attendancee each week invariably figures forty. During the winter when the work could not be done in the home because of the scarcity of coal, the meetings were held at the homes of members. The officers in charge are: Mrs. E. G. Whitney, chairman; Miss Elizabeth Dana, secretary, and Miss Isabelle Bancroft, treasurer.

STATE GUARD IN BOSTON PARADE

Local Battalion Gets First Real Out-of-Town Tour of Duty---Left Here on the 8 33 Train.

The first out-of-town tour of duty for the local state guard battalion took place today, when the companies of this city, Fairhaven and Mattapoisett and Marion journeyed to Boston under command of Major Joseph L. Gibbs to participate in the mammoth parade being held there. The state guard troops met at their respective armories at an early hour and took the 8 33 train for Boston. The outfit expects to return this evening in time to take part in the Fairhaven Liberty loan parade to be held in that town at 8 o'clock.

AMUSEMENTS FOR SOLDIERS HERE

Red Triangle Secretary Plans Movies and Lectures in New Building.

Second Structure of Its Kind to Be Completed in the U. S. A.

The second fort hut to be opened under the auspices of the Red Triangle (the Y. M. C. A.) in the United States, and the fourth of the kind to be begun, will open at Fort Rodman on April 13th, with Secretary Frank L. Gray in charge. A group of patriotic women, including Mrs. William S. Anthony and Mrs. Oliver Prescott, are interested in assisting the camp to raise a Fort Rodman camp hut fund.

The hut at Fort Rodman is what is known as "type Z, fort hut." It contains one large room, with small offices partitioned off—these including a ladies' room, dressing room, office, counter and officers' lounging rooms. The main floor will consist of a hall, with a portable stage at one end, where lectures and entertainments may be given. At the ends of the room, beyond pillars which support the roof, will be reading and writing desks against the wall.

Over the counter will be a motion picture machine. Secretary Gray hopes to have moving pictures at the hut twice a week, an entertainment once a week, and various sports, which will include wrestling, boxing, gymnastic work, etc. A mid-week Y. M. C. A. service will be held, and on Sunday morning a communion service conducted by pastors from various churches.

The place is given an added touch of hominess by the construction of a fireplace. The hut is opposite the hospital steward quarters, facing the guardhouse.

NEW BEDFORD BOYS ENJOYING THE BALMY BREEZES OF THE SOUTHLAND

NEW BEDFORD GROUP AT CAMP HANCOCK.

If the photograph had not been so faint, you would be able to discern real leaves, green and summery-like on trees directly to the rear of this group of New Bedford boys at Camp Hancock, down in Georgia. That is one reason they are happy, for they write that the weather is balmy as one could desire, and that the men are fit physically and in fine spirits all the time. The men in the photograph are in the rear row, left to right —Ernest Marcotte, 335 Bowditch street; Alphole Ayotte, 138 Cedar Grove; William Ayotte, 138 Cedar Grove. In the second row are Gilbert Brightman, 101 Chestnut street; Joseph E. Roy, 34 Hillman street, and Albert Mathieu, 159 Bowditch. In the front row are Wilfred Gadbois, 247 North Front street; Ulric Boucher, 58 Dean street and Adrien Grasson, 247 North Front.

Mr. Aindow Found the New Bedford Boys All Well and Happy.

Abbott P. Smith Host at a Big Dinner for the Men.

"I've got a week's job ahead of me visiting wives, sweethearts and families of New Bedford boys at Camp Joseph E. Johnston and conveying to them the best wishes from the boys in that southern clime," was one of the first remarks made by Former Alderman John H. Aindow upon his return with Mrs. Aindow from a month's visit to Jacksonville, Florida. "But I promised the boys that I would convey these wishes and I am going to do it," he continued.

Mr. and Mrs. Aindow return to this city with wonderful impressions of what army life is doing for their son Harry, as well as for the hundreds of other young soldiers with whom they came in contact while visiting the camp. The New Bedford group comprises about 30 young men and when Mr. Aindow bid them good-bye on March 8, he left them all in good

NEW SCOUT EXECUTIVE HERE

Francis W. Fogarty Has Had Much Experience in Work.

April 7 1918

Is Native of Boston and Practiced Law for Several Years.

Francis W. Fogarty, who was recently appointed Boy Scout executive for New Bedford, has assumed his new duties. Mr. Fogarty brings to his position wide experience in Scout work. He is a native of Boston, was educated at the English High school, Francis W. Fogarty.

Boston college and Harvard Law school. He served for ten years as clerk of the Massachusetts state police. The Boy Scout movement aroused Mr. Fogarty's interest some years ago, and in 1915 he gave up law to devote his entire time to Scout work. He became executive field secretary for the Second Scout district in Boston, and then for the First Boston district, from which position he came to New Bedford.

The First Scout district in Boston, which included Boston proper, Charlestown and East Boston, is one of the most cosmopolitan Scout districts in the country. While executive of this district Mr. Fogarty had under his charge troops varying in nationalities from Chinese to straight Americans. On his Scout council were many of the most prominent men in Boston, including Charles E. Jackson, John Shepard, Arthur Winslow, F. L. Putnam, Adolph Ehrlich and Judge M. H. Sullivan.

CAPTAIN SAVED BUT CREW LOST

Apr. 21-1918

Schroeder of Schooner Eliza Jane on Board the Laksco, Wires Naval Base.

A. L. Sisko Drowned When Vessel Met with Accident--- Captain Believed Injured.

Part of the mystery of the finding of the abandoned two-masted schooner Eliza Jane of Fairhaven was cleared up yesterday afternoon when Miss Edith Schroeder, sister of Captain William L. Schroeder, received a telegram from the naval district base at New London to the effect that the captain was safe on board a government vessel but that Adam Sisko, the one member of the crew, had been lost. The message read: "Will is on board Laksco. Adam Sisko is lost." Up to the receiving of this message, the Schroeder family had no information at all about the captain and his one-man crew and the only consolation was in fact that certain circumstances about the dismasted boat brought here by the tug Westerly yesterday morning, indicated a rescue of some sort had been made.

A. L. Sisko.

The family of the captain was naturally glad that the son had been saved but were extremely sorry for Sisko, who is well known in Fairhaven and who had been examined for the draft but placed in class 5 because of deafness. Mrs. Lucy Shepard, the victim's cousin, did not even know that he had shipped on the Eliza Jane. With Mrs. Shepard lives her father, Edward Sisko and these two are the only relatives who live in this vicinity. The mother lives at Orange, N. J., and there are also three sisters and a brother, who survive him. He was 30 years of age. His real name is Abraham Lincoln Sisko. Mrs. McDonald, at whose home on Middle street, Fairhaven, Sisko lived, said yesterday that Sisko had shipped on the Eliza Jane, thereby leaving no doubt but that he was the man reported drowned. It is believed that it was his set of clothing which hung untouched inside the cabin when the vessel was found off Hen and Chickens light by the tug.

Captain Schroeder's sisters and mother said yesterday afternoon they felt that the captain must have been injured in the collision, for under no other circumstances would he leave his vessel, they believed. He was a mariner of ability and fearlessness, and had made several rescues of people who had gone overboard. Last summer he made a trip alone on the Eliza Jane, and with a infected hand at that.

A Valuable Find.

The tug Westerly and her prize remained at Merrill's wharf all day yesterday, Captain Robinson awaiting the arrival of his agent from Westerly. The captain would make no statement as to the disposition of the craft and cargo which he had picked up and brought to this port as salvage, except to say that he expected that a conference between his agent, Captain Schroeder and the owner of the thousand bushels of oysters would determine the percentage that would be granted for salvage work. He could not say how long the oysters would remain fresh.

The vessel, lying on the south side of the wharf, made quite a sight, and many people went to the wharf during the afternoon to see the wreckage. The two big masts and the sails, which were spread when the Eliza Jane was struck by another vessel, were floating alongside the boat, just as they were towed into port from Hen and Chickens. The boat has a thousand bushels of oysters on board, worth a dollar a bushel.

aspect of its habitues and the breadth of subjects there discussed and settled rivalled the marble shop of Thomas Thompson, died at his home, 76 Hicks street this morning after an illness of a year's duration. Mr. Dibb, who was just over 45 years of age, had failed steadily during the past few months, and it was only a short time ago that he called newspapermen to his store, told them that he believed he was not long for this world and handed them brief notes concerning his many activities.

Mr. Dibb was born in Wales, but came to this country with his parents when 10 years of age, and has made his home in New Bedford practically all of that time. He started in business in a small way several years ago, but gradually, through the excellence of his work and through his genial good nature, he had expanded his business until he became the leader in his line in the north end. He attracted people to him, and his backshop was the favorite "dropping-in place" for doctors and lawyers and policemen and business men, and in fact about every one of prominence in the northern section. He was at times a prolific writer to the newspapers on subjects of political interest, and was once a candidate for the state legislature. His defeat never dimmed his spirits or lost him a friend.

Mr. Dibb is survived by a widow and four step-children, Lydia B. and Harriet May Lewis of this city, and William C. and George H. Lewis, who are at present at war, the former in the army and the latter in the navy.

Mr. Dibb was a member and an active worker in Court Good Will, No. 128, Foresters of America.

He was the last known surveyor of General Sheridan's campaign of the Shenandoah Valley. Returning from the Civil war he settled in Fall River, becoming principal of the evening schools.

He came to New Bedford in 1886 and took charge of the Fearing House connected then with the Potomska mills, till 1897. He was a special policeman and assessor from ward six and had been a justice of the peace for the past thirty years.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. William Bradbury of Fall River; a brother, James England of Washta, Iowa; three sons, Frank, William and James H., two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Cuddy (Frances) and Mrs. Thomas Stone (Alice) and numerous grandchildren and a host of friends.

B. H. GROVES, U-BOAT HERO, IS KILLED

MET DEATH BY ACCIDENT IN FOREIGN PORT.

April 21- 1918

Brief Message from Navy Department Says Explosion of Three Inch Shell Was Responsible—Won Nation-wide Fame by Sinking a U-Boat.

Chief Gunner's Mate Benjamin Harrison Groves, of this city, whose heroic fight in sinking a German U-boat last January won him commendation from Secretary Daniels, and country-wide fame throughout America, has been killed at a French port, through accident. Shortly after midnight this morning, a telegram for his father, David O. Groves, of 199 Dean street, came from the navy department through the Western Union office here. Save for one operator the office was closed, and Mr. Groves's house has no telephone. A Standard reporter carried the message up to the Groves home.

"Read it for me," said the father, "I don't want to open it myself."

This was the brief line it contained:

Navy Department, Washington, D. C.:

David Groves, New Bedford:

Chief Gunner's Mate Benjamin Harrison Groves died while being taken to hospital, following the accidental explosion of a three inch shell on an American ship in a French port.

Palmer—O.

Mr. Groves took the telegram, sank down into a chair and buried his face in his hands. Mrs. Groves came from her room, read the message, stood as if dazed for a moment, placed her arm around her husband's shoulders and cried ever so softly.

"We have seen him once since the news that he had stood by his guns, saved his ship and sunk a U-boat was sent out by the navy department. We are never going to see him again, now. It can not be helped. It is the thing we feared and the thing that in our hearts we had fought against," said Mr. Groves. "I only hope he did not have to suffer," added Mrs. Groves.

Mr. Groves a moment later said that he had been depressed for a fortnight or so. They had not heard from the boy and they were beginning to be afraid that something had happened. That was why Mr. Groves would not open the telegram at first.

The family are at present without any further news. The wire was not even dated, and not even was given the date of the young man's death.

Chief Gunner's Mate B. H. Groves.

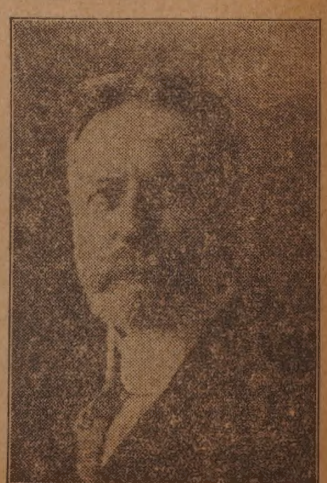
REPORT GIVEN TO THE MAYOR

Architect Provides for a Modern 16 Room School Structure.

Present Building as It Stands Is a Real Fire Menace.

Elimination of the upper story and attic, the erection of wings north and south, utilization of much of the building material now in the old structure and the completion of a modern 16 class room building with assembly hall and necessary administration rooms, etc., are the recommendations in the matter of the old High school on Summer street, made by Frank Irving Cooper, architect, who was engaged by the city to inspect the property and make report to the mayor. This report was rendered yesterday afternoon, and the cut reproduced on this page, will give the public an idea of what the renovated structure would look like if Mr. Cooper's recommendations were followed. The architect, who is chairman of the National Education association, standardization committee, estimates that the renovated building could be constructed at a cost of one-half of the same structure if erected new. Much of the material now in the building could be used and much of the present construction below the third story could be retained.

Mr. Cooper considers the upper stories a real fire menace at the present time and says the third story, attic and roof should be taken down at once.



Frank Irving Cooper, Consulting Architect.

GETS BEAUTIFUL PARCHMENT

Baylies Given Certificate for His Work in Aid of France.

Awarded to Aviator in Paris and Then Sent Back Home.

In recognition of the services rendered to France and her Allies for the cause of humanity, the Lafayette Flying corps has presented an etched certificate to Sergeant Frank Baylies, a member of the corps, and a New Bedford boy. The certificate a splendid piece of workmanship, was presented to him in Paris. It was then turned over by him to an American friend who was leaving Paris at the time and who mailed it from New York to Sergeant Baylies's parents in this city.

Sergeant Baylies is No. 91 in the flying corps, according to the certificate. The inscription is in the centre of the certificate. At the left is the figure of Lafayette, at the right that of Washington. At the top is a vivid drawing of the Allied planes downing a German, and at the bottom is shown a heavy gun firing across open land. In one corner is an Indian head, the emblem of the flying corps.

The inscription reads: "To Sergeant Frank Balies, who served during the European war in the capacity of volunteer in the French aviation. Thereby in a measure repaying the great debt which America owes to France and contributing to the victory of liberty and civilization over military autocracy and barbarism.

MINISTER COMES BACK TO PREACH

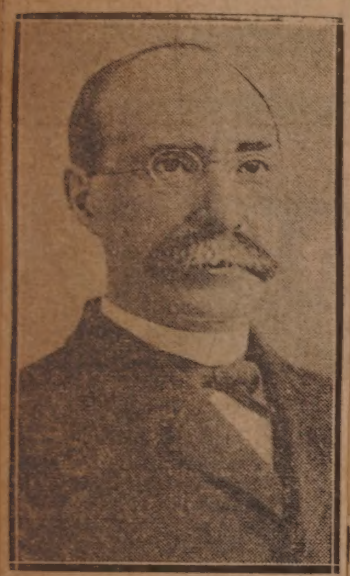
Dr. J. MacCalman, Nearly 11 Years Pastor of Old Middle Street Christian Church ---Preaches at Mission.

Dr. John MacCalman, pastor of the Starkey seminary, at Lakemont, N. Y., and for nearly eleven years pastor of the Middle Street Christian church, has returned to New Bedford upon invitation of his friend Rev. F. H. Peters, pastor of the White church on Purchase street to preach during the rest of the Lenten mission on meetings. He will be here about ten days. The object of these meetings as described by Dr. Peters, is "to help people to get a broader and deeper grasp of what Christ wants them to be and do."



Rev. John MacCalman.

Dr. MacCalman is well known in New Bedford. He began his minstry here in January, 1888, and closed the last of September, 1908, when on account of ill health, he went to Pennsylvania to recover his health. The doctors then told him he would never preach again.

Like many another man of a strong character, he has lived to prove them all false prophets.

Dr. MacCalman is a native of Scotland, and there cast his first vote—for William E. Gladstone. He is a deep thinker and a philosopher. He has been deeply impressed by the great world struggle, which has only made the firmer his faith in God's wisdom and the ultimate triumph of right over might.

His Copy of Rosa Bonheur's "The Plowing."

CLEMENT SWIFT, PAINTER, DEAD

March 20

"The Waif," in Free Public Library, One of Best Examples of His Work.

1918

Acushnet Painter Had Thrilling Adventures in France in War of 1870.

Clement Nye Swift, an artist widely known for his masterly full size reproductions of works of Rosa Bonheur and other great French masters, and for his own strongly individual and striking paintings, died at his home in Acushnet yesterday. He had been in ill health for some time.

Mr. Swift's work was widely known. For years he has not failed to contribute to the exhibitions of the New Bedford Art club some work of excellent technique. Examples of his best work are to be found in the Free Public Library and in the Acushnet Town hall. Perhaps the finest example of his own work at his best is the large canvas, "The Waif." The one which Mr. Swift presented to his home town in 1914 is a fine copy of Miss Bonheur's "The Plowing."

The artist was the son of Rudolphus Swift and was born at the Head-of-the River. He was a pupil at Friends academy. His early inclination was toward animal painting, and he applied to Artist Hinkley of Boston for instruction. Mr. Hinkley did not desire a pupil, but strongly advised going to France, for at that time the advantages for preliminary instruction—at present so numerous and adequate—were almost totally wanting. In France he began copying in galleries of the Louvere and Luxembourg, drawing in the school of Beaux Arts, and in the Atelier of M. Adolph Yvon. Later he became a pupil of the celebrated landscape painter, M. Henri Harpignies, and a regular yearly exhibitor in that largest and best exhibition in the world, the French Salon.

Mr. Swift went to Pont Aven in Brittany, and remained during the winter of 1870, while the French and Prussian war was in progress, and becoming interested by the artistic resources of the region, decided to make it a headquarters. Here he found much congenial society and formed one of the group of artists, all of whom have become well known, among them being Robert Wylie, H. Bolton Jones, Frank Jones, Burr Nicholls, Thomas Hovenden and W. L. Picknell. It was in Brittany that he painted all of the largest and most important pictures exhibited in France and afterward in New York and other American exhibitions. Among this group is "Wreckers," representing the wreckers lying in wait for a vessel which is drifting to the shore. This picture when sent to Paris elicited by return post a letter of congratulation from the masters.

France in 1870.

In the spring of 1870 Mr. Swift was studying in the Museum of the Luxemburg at Paris under the supervision of the French master, Harpignies. After pursuing his studies for some time Mr. Swift became impatient, went to his master one day, said that he would like to do something worth while, and asked his permission to make a copy of Rosa Bonheur's masterpiece. The master was very much surprised at his audacity and told him in a reproving manner that he must wait a month.

This reply, however, did not dampen Mr. Swift's ardor, and at the end of the month he asked again, only to be greeted with the same reply. After the second month had passed by his enthusiasm was so aroused that he ordered a canvas, on his own responsibility, and gave orders to the men to place it before the great masterpiece. After completing all arrangements he went up to his master once more, and insisted that he be allowed to paint the picture.

The master was so surprised that he gave his sanction. In speaking of the incident, Mr. Swift said: "If I had been a Frenchman and persisted the way I did, especially the second time, it would have been considered a serious breach of etiquette, but being an American it was very little thought of, as I was not supposed to know much.

"When I first started the painting I was given instructions to draw in the picture and to make the lights and the shades. After all the preliminary preparations had been made, as I thought, the master who was evidently not an impressionist, said to me in broken English, 'When I paints ze picture I give nine days to ze drawing and one day to ze painting.'"

Up to that time Mr. Swift's copy was the only one that had been made life-size, the dimensions being about 9 feet by 4 feet. While he was working on his painting the Franco-Prussian war broke out in 1870. He was forced to leave it unfinished and fled to Pont-Aven in Brittany, in the northern part of France, which he knew to be a congenial place for artists. From this place, moreover, he could, if necessary, easily cross the English channel.

Adventures in 1870.

He was in the company of two other artists when he started on the journey from Paris. At the railroad station he was obliged to stand in a long line while waiting for the train

PASTOR BIDS PEOPLE GOODBY

april 15

Rev. Walter S. MacIntire Preaches Farewell Sermon at the Pleasant St. M. E. Church.

1918

Rev. W. S. McIntire preached his farewell sermon as pastor of the Pleasant Street M. E. church, at the morning service in that church yesterday. There was a good-sized congregation. "Five years ago, he said, "a new relation was formed between us, by appointment of the bishop. We have spent five pleasant years together, and now the time has come for me to go to another field, and for another man to take my place as your leader and pastor.

"It is a time of great interest, both to the church and the pastor when the separation is made. No man can be so intimately related to a group of people without the formation of some strong ties. Never have I gone from any church without leaving groups of friends whom I have learned to love very dearly.

"It is not possible for one man to adapt himself to every sort of temperament and reach with his message all kinds of people. The advantage of our itinerancy is that it provides a variety of men for the church, and that in the end a larger growth of people are assisted in their religious life, because of the system.

"I regret that I have not been able to do better service here, and that my message has not appealed to a larger group; but I have done my best, and the Lord has blessed me in my efforts. I have had only one object, the exaltation of Jesus Christ, who is a minister to all conditions in life, and whose message and devotion are unceasing. If I have assisted in making people better acquainted with Him, I have not labored in vain."

A farewell reception for Rev. Mr. MacIntire and Mrs. MacIntire will be given in the vestry of the church this evening.

Announcement was made by Mr. MacIntire yesterday morning that, in addition to the use of the churches, club houses and halls or hospitals, in the event of a disaster in this city, it would be necessary to have people to render service in preparing food for patients, nurses or refugees. He stated that volunteer sheets, for the signatures of those willing to perform kitchen service in case of emergency, were in the church. Volunteers were also asked for, to agree to furnish single cots or beds, and bedding, for hospital use. A number signed the papers, at the close of the service.

Rev. Gilbert E. Edgett, who will probably succeed Rev. W. S. MacIntire as pastor of the Pleasant street church, is at present pastor of the M. E. church in Vineyard Haven. He came to this conference three years ago, from the East Maine conference, after holding pastorates at Holton, Bath, Paris and other places in Maine. He is in his 50th year, is married and has four children, one of whom, an officer in a British Kilties regiment, is now in hospital, suffering from wounds received in action.

"H. M. S." Club Formed at Jireh Swift School in Honor of Claude C. Smith, Who Has Been Ill.

A touching tribute paid by the children of the Jireh Swift school to their principal, Claude C. Smith, is attracting attention about town, because of the button badges worn by the children.

monia. Shortly after he was taken ill, Miss Stella McCarthy, one of the teachers, was talking with the children, who were very desirous of doing something to help their beloved principal. Miss McCarthy told them that the best way in which they could help Mr. Smith was by good behavior, and suggested that they form a "Help Mr. Smith" club.

The children were so enthusiastic over the idea that they formed an organization and adopted a button, with the blue letters "H. M. S." on a white ground. The spirit of the club is evident from the fact that every pupil in the school has joined it, and since its formation five weeks ago, the teachers have not been called upon to discipline a single pupil.

arrival of the card marks the second safe trip across the ocean that has ended safely for young Gill, who enlisted in the United States navy at Newport on September 19th, 1917. After a short stay at Newport he was transferred to the Brooklyn navy yard and from there he made his first trip across last February. His second trip was in April. He had the unique experience of seeing a U-boat on the first voyage, but the ship upon which he was stationed succeeded in avoiding the torpedo.

Gill is 18 years old and made his home in this city for 17 years. He attended the Lincoln school and after leaving school was employed as a mulespinner under his father in the Wamsutta mill. He was a member of the St. James Episcopal church choir.

Saxon Picks Up Stray Articles at Station and Helps Entertain All the Stray "Kiddies" That Are Picked Up.

The new central police station has already been found inadequate, for although it possesses accommodations for almost every officer of the force no arrangements have been made for the headquarters of the most important personage of the entire department—Saxon.

Saxon is the department mascot, and some mascot he is, too. A French bulldog, the property of Joseph V. Turgeon, foreman of the police barn, he has assumed charge of the station and force. Saxon's intelligence is human, at least. His presence not only makes rough-house on the part of prisoners decidedly inadvisable, but also serves as the means of amusing the dozens of children who are taken to the station as lost every week.

For reasons unknown Saxon's pet aversion are hammers and handkerchiefs. Let a hammer lay exposed while Saxon is about and when no one is looking it will soon disappear, to be found eventually under the captain's desk, behind a file cabinet or hidden in the cell room. Hold in your hand a handkerchief for any length of time longer than necessary, and Saxon will soon come nosing about to discover the why's and wherefore of your action.

Saxon has a particular fondness for having his picture taken, and when in front of the camera will hold any difficult pose for any length of time. One of his queer notions is his desire to be photographed when lying flat on his back with all four feet and his tongue sticking straight into the air.

I would not exchange the experiences for the best parish in the land.

I have also been to visit in a nearby village a large base hospital of 6,000 beds. This is in charge of the best United States hospital unit over here, the famous Johns Hopkins. The men look upon the chaplain's visit as that from heaven almost. The hospital itself, with its many buildings and streets, looks like a small city or town. I wish that some of our young doctors in America could see some of the wonderful operations performed here.

Robert Haworth.

But I must not tire you, my dear friend, by writing any more. Tell my New Bedford friends I am well and hope to return when the war is over, and that will be soon, I hope. If the Boche bullets get me as I go among the wounded and dying, well, I will be game and will be glad to have lived to do my part for the cause of humanity and the religious welfare of the brave men of my regiment.

Rats Are Big Fellows.

"The rats are so big that they take shoes and other articles all over the place," writes Corporal Eliott S. Vaughan of Battery D to a friend in Fairhaven.

"I am in my little dugout all tired out," he writes. "For instance, this is what I do: At 4 30 we get up; mess at 6 30; 7, polish up and clean up; 9 a. m., gun drill; 9 30, construction work, pick and shovel; 12 o'clock, mess; 1 to 3, pick and shovel; 3 to 3 30, gas drill and bombardment drill; 4 45, retreat and mess. Every night I do two hours guard, which breaks up the night's rest. And on top of this any minute to fire on the Huns. I feel great physically but rotten on the nerve part.

"Here we are within sight of the Germans. I am a veteran, being in a great battle last Sunday. The Germans fire at us, but as yet haven't found the range. War is hell. The shells burst overhead and nearby. In my dugout we have plenty of company. The rats are many and of great size. They run races over us at night. They take shoes and other articles all over the place. You can yell at them but that does no good. I guess I shall have to get used to them or shoot them. Well, such is life. No one hardly to see and nowhere to go. No. Y. M. C. A. here, and we got mail two months ago."

VETERAN OF THE CIVIL WAR DEAD

April 1st 1918

Wm. G. Sadler Also Sailed on a Number of Whalers---Was in His Eighty-fourth Year.

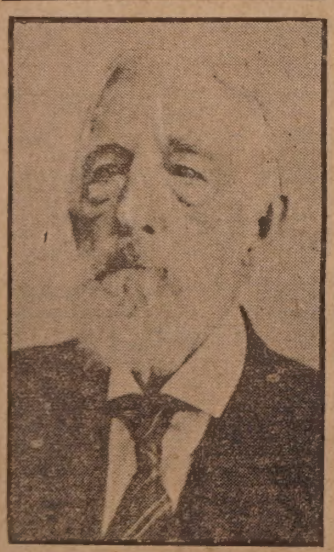
William G. Sadler, a well known member of R. A. Peirce Post 190, G. A. R., died at his home last evening in his 84th year.

Mr. Sadler was a veteran of two enlistments, one in the Third Regiment, and one on the famous Fifty-eighth.

He was born October 15th, 1834, in this city. He was the son of John Sadler, who lived at that time on Maxfield street.

He attended the New Bedford schools but was sent to work at an early age. At the time the war broke out he was working in the old cordage factory on Court street.

On September 23, 1862, together with two companions, he went down to the recruiting office in City Hall square and enlisted in Company E of the Third Regiment, under Captain John A. Hawes of Fairhaven. The company was entirely made up of New Bedford men and was enlisted for nine months. They were immediately sent off to Camp Joe Hooker. In October the regiment was sent south to Newbern, N. C., and went into camp at Fort Totten, being assigned to General Foster's command. In the early part of the winter they were sent out on a short campaign, and fought their first battle at White Hall. From there on for several days there was skirmishing along the railroad, and three days after that the battle of Goldsboro was fought.



William G. Sadler.

Later, after tearing up the railroad the command returned to Fort Totten where they remained until they were sent back up north to Camp Hooker, where they were discharged June 26, 1863, their term of service having expired.

Mr. Sadler returned to New Bedford, where he remained until January, 1864, when he enlisted again in the famous Fifty-eighth regiment, Company E, under Captain William E. Mason.

The company was sent to Readville, and went from there to Gallups Island in Boston harbor. While at the latter place Mr. Sadler was taken ill, and had to be sent to the hospital in Boston. He recovered so slowly that on July 26, 1864, he was discharged for disability and came back to New Bedford.

Mr. Sadler is an old whaleman and had sailed to all parts of the world on the whaling ships of New Bedford. His first voyage was made in the bark Platina, out of New Bedford, under Captain Thomas Lee. They cruised around Cape Horn, and across the South Pacific whaling grounds and returned in 1853 with a full cargo. Later he shipped again in the Champion under Captain Thomas Pease. This time they went further north into the Okhotsk sea and around Kamchatka. On their way south again Mr. Sadler had an argument with the captain which resulted in his leaving the ship at the Sandwich islands, where he re-shipped on the Jeannette of Westport, bound for home. Other vessels which he has sailed in are the India, Captain Flanders, and the Olympia, Captain Ryan. He was employed for 23 years in the shoe plant of Hathaway & Soule and served as housekeeper in several of the police stations here.

Mr. Sadler was married three times and leaves a widow, three sons, William, Walter and George Sadler, and three daughters, Mrs. Luella Merritt, Mrs. Josephine Brown and Miss Emma Sadler.

in China. He writes that southwest of China is fighting to defend democracy against militarism, just as the Allies are fighting for the same object in Europe.

"Until the provisional constitution is respected by all," he quotes from a Chinese newspaper, "it is not believed that the blessing of peace will be possible in China. Militarism cannat be sible in China. Militarism cannot be tolerated in the world. The fight in China is only another phase and in a smaller degree of the life and death struggle on the battle fields of Europe, Asia, and Africa, and seven seas of the earth. It is to make, as President Wilson pithily puts it, the world safe for democracy."

Found Pay Too Low.

A few collegians who thought they were going to receive $100 a month, and later found out that their pay here would be only that of privates, first class, $33 a month, dropped out because they said they had dependents and could not come in at that figure.

This school will be somewhat changed from the third camp. Others will be more open field work and always each course is "more intensive than the last." It really looks from the schedule as if this one was to be a "humdinger" so far as work goes.

OFFICERS SCHOOL GETS UNDERWAY

May 16-1918

Fourth Training Camp Was Opened Yesterday for Men at Devens.

Some of the Candidates from Colleges Were Forced to Withdraw.

Camp Devens, May 16.—After a shutdown of less than a month, the officer-making mill opened here again yesterday. Nearly 1000 soldiers and collegians were turned over to it and the wheels began turning smoothly again, under Lieutenant Colonel Edward Croft, Major Benjamin Joy and Major Ralph Lowell, the last two being well known Boston bankers.

Captain John C. Shaw.

The collegians from R. O. T. C. came in smiling, were told to wipe the smiles off and found out soon enough that they were "in the army now." Likely enough the captain of the company to which a collegian reported would be a college mate or a classmate of the captain, but it made no difference in the tone of the officer in snapping the candidates out of a shiftless position.

Many officers commented on the apparent lack of military bearing shown by the collegians supposed to have had military training. But they look bright and they'll learn soon enough. They couldn't be expected to be as much soldiers as the hundreds of men who have been training here more or less intensively since last fall.

Colleges Represented.

They brought the usual touches of unconscious humor. Captain John Shaw of the 4th company is going to tell his artillery friends of one candidate who told him he preferred to study to be an artillery officer.

"Why?" asked Captain Shaw.

"Well—I was raised on a farm," the candidate volunteered. If Captain Shaw had explained that horses don't go with all artillery regiments nowadays, the candidate would probably have replied that farms are being motorized, too. "Bobby" Gross, captain of the Harvard baseball team, reported in snappy fashion.

About 950 men from 20 colleges reported as follows: Harvard 71, Yale 57, University of Maine 30, Williams 29, New York Military academy 24, Amherst 23, Massachusetts Agricultural college 19, Brown 18, Bowdoin 15, Union college, New York, 12, University of Vermont 12, M. I. T. 11, Norwich university 8, New Hampshire State college 7, Rhode Island State college 7, Dartmouth 5, Hamilton 4, Connecticut Agricultural college 1, Wesleyan 1 and University of California 1, the last being John Kalonsidian, who is credited to his university, but has been working in Mass-

SOLDIERS' LETTER BOX

WALTER D. BROWNHILL AND HIS BUNKIE IN BATTERY D.

Mechanic Walter Brownhill.

Walter Brownhill, serving as mechanic with Battery D of the 102d field artillery in France, writes to his mother in this city that he is well and feeling fine, and that the boys from New Bedford are busily employed on the fighting line against the Hun.

His letter in part is as follows:

I write these few lines just to let you know that I am well and feeling fine, and hope all at home are the same. As I am writing, the guns are all in action, so that I have but a few minutes to spare; you will, I know, excuse me if the note is of necessity of a brief nature, but I do not want to get away from the weekly letter I promised myself to send you. Our boys are certainly in it now, and the nearer we get to the front the more interesting it becomes to us. At the present time it is like a game of hide and seek of a grimmer nature than what we played as kids.

I have not had a letter for three weeks now, but suppose that is on account of our present position, and I am in hopes that in the course of the next few days I shall receive quite a number. Let me know if sister Dolly got the little present I sent her, and also the package sent to you. Do not think for a minute that I am down-hearted; far from it, as the boys are well taken care of with the shows and games provided for us behind the lines. Some of the rats visit us without a formal invitation, and they certainly are big fellows. Must close now, as duty calls. Give my love to all the family and tell them to write, as a letter goes good now.

Walter.

Joseph Hemingway.

Daniel Carrier.

Daniel Carrier of Shawmut was th first man drafted in division 42 to g into action on the western front i France. He is at present serving a sergeant of the motorcycle squad d livering soldiers' mail over there. I letters to relatives here he says h conditions is all that could be desire and that he is accorded the best c treatment by his superior officers. Th food given the American fighting ma abroad, he says, is of the best an there is plenty of it.

Joseph de Mello.

Joseph DeMello volunteered as private of the United States army la in July at Fort Slocum. After pr liminary training at this post he w assigned to duty at Syracuse, N. but was soon transferred to Cam Greene, Charlotte, N. C., where he at present stationed awaiting his tu to enter action overseas. He like army life and all that goes with and is thriving on his treatment as

Robert Stewart.

Robert Stewart of this city enlisted in the United States army at Fort Slocum, New York, last September and was attached to the 19th ambulance corps at Camp McClellan, Ala. During a brief furlough in this city recently he was presented a handsome shaving set and safety razor, a plentiful supply of cigarettes and tobacco and a purse of gold by O. P. Bertram, who is serving in the fighting forces of the country at Newport, R. I., on behalf of a large number of his friends in this city at a reception in his honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Porter at 92 Mt. Vernon street.

Robert Stewart.

Corporal Joseph Castagnoli.

The terrible desolation wrought by the retreating Huns is told of in a letter received by Mrs. John Giusti, of 27 Lindsey street, from her brother, Corporal Joseph Castagnoli, of Battery D, now at the front, "somewhere in France". Corporal Castagnoli was formerly one of the best known pupils of the Swain school and won many prizes as an artist and sculptor. His letter was dated February 14 and reads as follows:

"I am now at the front though the front is not so bad as it is thought to be. I much prefer the front to a training camp. We are in a very quiet sector so there is not much danger. Gee! I wish you could see all the damage the Germans have done. One can not dream the immensity of this great battlefield. It will take years to restore the land back to a normal state. Village after village, town after town, you see on all sides smashed to pieces right to the ground. But the Germans will have to pay for it all. I am sure that the United States never will give up until they are made to pay for all the damage they have done.

"I am feeling fine. We get the best of food now. All the fighting men of the Allies are very well fed. I do not see how Germany can ever dream of winning this wear. When we think of the immense resources of the United States we know we will never be beaten. I have a nice dug-out. I have decorated it so it would be as home-like as possible. We are real cave men now. Everyone has very deep dug-outs in the earth. In some of the officers' dug-outs are furnishings like those in real homes. I sleep with the telephone men. Our dugout is very comfortable. We have a stove in it which keeps it dry.

"I hardly ever receive any letters from you folks at home, I am sure if you knew how much pleasure I get in receiving mail you would all write more often."

Archie Lindsay.

Private Archie Lindsay of the 3d Co., 101st Ammunition Train has written to his mother in this city. His letter deals in large part to a description of the allotment of pay of t soldiers to their families. He has written, in part: "I've moved again and had ag reat trip, seen wonderful sights and country. On the trip we passed towns where there had been great fighting and also where the greatest battle was fought in past years." He also writes of receiving a cake from his mother, which he shared with fellow soldiers. He also receives the Standard regularly.

Fred Kruger.

Fred Kruger, who until his entrance upon his military career was one of the most widely known and universally popular young men of New Bedford, is attached to Company M, 325th regiment, infantry, at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga. In a letter to friends in this city he explains the manner in which the United States soldier manages to keep from becoming a bloated millionaire on his salary of $30 a month, the largest pay received by any private soldier in the armies of the world, as follows: "Fifteen dollars go for allotment, so we only have $15 left; $6.50 goes for insurance, so we only have $8.50 left; $5 goes for a Liberty Bond, so we only have $3.50 left; $2 goes for canteen checks, so we only have $1.50 left; $1 goes for the company fund, so we only have 50 cents left; 50 cents goes for the barber, so we only sign the payroll. And we never have a damned cent." But he says that army life agrees with him, and that he is well and happy.

Arthur Therrien.

Arthur Therrien of 121 Coffin avenue, enlisted in the old Fourth company two years ago, but when the state militia was federalized he was transferred to the regular army coast artillery corps and is now stationed at one of the New Jersey posts. He is delighted with military life on active service and is doing well in the army.

Fred Thibault.

Fred Thibault is a private of th Second Veterinary detachment of th Depot brigade at the nationual arm cantonment at Camp Devens, Aye He was drafted from this city an went into service among the firs contingent from New Bedford.

Home on Furlough.

A welcome home party was held in honor of Anthony Morris, who is home on a furlough from Camp Greene, North Carolina. Mr. Morris enlisted at the age of 17 and is now a first class private. Among the guests present were: Misses Ethel Morse, Edith Morse, Nora King, Enid Brooks, Edith DeMoranville, Edna MacDonald, Ada DeVaney, Annie DeVaney, Mary Luciar, Eunice Grundy, William Morris, Private Anthony Morris, Manuel Morris Martin, Private William Hogan of Camp Devens, J. WRITES TO SISTERS

William F. Nolan Is Overseas in Medical Corps.

William F. Nolan of 160 Merrimac street is serving overseas in the Medical Corps. He has written the following interesting letter home telling of his experiences:

My Dear Sisters:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am still "somewhere in France" and it is, as I have written before, a great place. I am in charge of the Pharmacy Department. Tell Jim that we carry a pretty good sized drug store on our train.

What do you think of my writing paper? It cost me three franc and ninety five centime a box which is about eighty cents in our money but everything is high especially if the fellow has an American uniform on and there is no candy or soda sold over here, it all hot chocolate, beer, wine, or cognac, and the confections are figs, dates, english walnuts or almonds plain, and it is almost impossible to buy cigarettes. over here, bum us fellows for their smokes as they like the American tobacco.

I'd like you to see these hospital trains; it's some place; we sleep and eat on the trains, there are 16 cars to each train. O, I only wish you could see them, they are the last thing in comfort for the wounded boys, and believe me nothing is spared for their comfort, and they carry everything a drug store or hospital could need.

Now at meal time we sit down to some fine feeds, just like home, the kitchen police wait on us, and when the meal is over they wash our dishes (pretty soft ha) and we have nice beds to sleep on, everything is first class, our mattresses on our beds are covered with leather.

But when I get back I can say I have sure seen France and maybe (Germany).

All the houses here are made of stone. I have not seen a wooden one yet. The boat we came over on must be the same one that carried the Batt. D boys, because on one of the life belts I saw a fellows name, it was Smithurst, he lives on Bowditch street.

I have not learned to speak Franch yet, perhaps in about fifty years from now I will know how, but I go shopping twice a day for all the boys and I come pretty near getting everything I go after.

Well, Mary, give my best regards to all, and I will be home soon if this war ends right away. By the way that the papers read our boys are showing the others how the fighting ought to be done, and it's no wonder that we are beating them when we have the men with both brains and power.

Will close now sending fond love to you all. I remain your loving brother, Bill.

Armand Fournier Has Exciting Voyage.

Mrs. Armand Fournier has just received news of the safe arrival "over there" of her husband, Armand Fournier. This makes his second successful trip across aboard an American transport. He spent a few days with his wife at 43 Calumet street about a month ago. After a dangerous and exciting trip, although made in safety, and a stay of four months in France, he had many experiences to relate. He is 21 years old and has served in the navy eleven months, formerly on the U. S. S. South Carolina and U. S. S. Ohio.

MOSES JACKSON

Going Over but He "Should Worry" He Writes

Private Moses Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson of 132 Bullock street, writes his parents from Halifax that he expects soon to be on his way across the water. He is a member of B Company, R. C. Battalion of the Canadian Engineers, and a brother of Jim Jackson, who is at the present time is in the fighting line. His letter in part is as follows:

Dear Mother:—I do not think I shall be allowed any furlough as expected. Our company has left Quebec and crossed the St. Lawrence river on our way to Halifax. You will know what that means. "We're going over," but I should worry. I am feeling fine and with many more New Bedford boys. I hope to see brother Jim over there, so do not worry.

Your son Moses.

Moses Jackson.

Robert Forsythe.

Robert Forsyth of this city, a well known member of the New Bedford Power Boat club, is a member of headquarters company, 15th U. S. Engineers Battalion, American E. F., France. In a letter to this city, he writes that he is in good health and wishes to be remembered to his friends.

PROUD TO FIGHT

So Writes Wesley G. Mills, Now in France.

A New Bedford boy who is proud to be doing his bit for the cause of the Allies is Private Wesley G. Mills, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs B. B. Mills of this city. Private Mills enlisted in the First Connecticut infantry in April, 1917. He is now a member of Company M of the 102d infantry of the American expeditionary forces. He has written the following letter home:

Dear Parents:—Just received your letter and believe me I was mighty glad to hear from home again after so long a time. Your letter was dated Dec. 26, so you see there is something holding them up somewhere.

I am awfully sorry you had such a lonesome Christmas but never mind mother, both Wilfrid and I will be with you next Christmas I hope, and we will more than make up for it.

Do not worry about us at all for everything will come out O. K. I am feeling better than ever and have gained fifteen pounds in weight during the last three months.

I heard from Will a couple of days ago. I certainly am proud of him. I would like to tell you something about my experiences over here but our censor is mighty strict. However, I am able to say I have been in action and am looking forward to going in again. Wilfred has also been in action. I have not seen him yet but expect to within a few days. Now, mother dear, don't either you or father worry about us boys. We'll do "our bit" over here and come home all the better for it. I will write every chance I can get now, but don't be uneasy if they don't come regularly as we are going to be busy for a while with the Huns, and believe me we'll give them all they are looking for and then some. All our boys are in fine shape and anxious to get into action again.

Remember me to all my friends, especially Mr. and Mrs. G. and little Mildred and ask them all to drop me a line once in awhile.

As ever, your loving son,

Wesley.

IN MEDICAL CORPS

Gamaliel Ripley Enjoys Life in the Army

Gamaliel Ripley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ripley of 1683 Acushnet avenue, enlisted in the Medical Corp last October. He is 20 years of age, and following his enlistment here he was sent to Fort Slocum. After a few days at the latter place, he was sent on to Washington, D. C., where he is serving at the General Hospital. He has been over on furlough during the past week, and reported to his parents that he had been advanced to a first class private. He is full of enthusiasm [illegible] army life and has gained much [illegible]dence in the medical department.

G. Ripley.

"I would hate to be wearing civilian clothes these days," he remarked in reply to a question as to how he liked being a soldier.

WITH CANADIANS

James Jackson Is Enjoying Life Overseas.

James Jackson is serving with B company of the Second Central Ontario regiment. He writes home as follows:

Dear Mother:

I wrote you a letter last week telling you of my leave and I hope you received it for it took me about a week to write it. We have a lot more work now than we had, for we have to be ready soon to do our share "somewhere in France." We are told that we shall be over in about three weeks. I am glad that my brother Moses has signed up, don't blame, for he would not have the blood in him that I know he has if he stayed out now. This year I think is going to decide who is best, and it is up to us who is going to win. I think the man who hesitates now will live to regret it later. Excuse me for not writing any more at present, as I have to clean up. So good bye for a while.

From your son, Jim.

James Jackson.

THANKS THE STANDARD

Arthur Rousseau Sends Note of Appreciation.

A note of appreciation for the Standard has been received from Arthur Rousseau of the U. S. S. Wisconsin. He writes as follows:

Sir:—Although I am not accustomed to writing letters, and hoping that these few lines will not take too much of your time, I would like to say that three boys, also myself, who are on the U. S. S. Wisconsin and come from New Bedford, wish to thank you very much for your kindness in sending us the "Evening Standard." We appreciate it very much, and the first chance we get to get ashore we will have our pictures taken, and a great pleasure to us will be to send you some.

We've also expressed our thanks to Mr. Lewis, who is the chaplain on board the Wisconsin, and who is the one we get the paper from. He has done us a great favor, and so again I wish to thank you for the great favor you are doing us.

ARTHUR ROUSSEAU.

JOINS THE COLORS

James Orcutt, Out of the Draft Age, Enlists.

Among the New Bedford men out of the draft age who have recently enlisted in the service of Uncle Sam is James Orcutt of 994 Pleasant street. He joined the colors several weeks ago, and after spending two weeks at Fort Slocum was sent to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. Mr. Orcutt is attached to the ordnance department of Company M. He is expecting to be sent over to France in the near future. He is one of four sons all over draft age, and enlisted because he felt one must go.

Joseph Morin.

Joseph Morin, stationed at Camp Devens with the drafted boys from this city, sends word to his sister, Miss Lea Morin at 361 North Front street, that he has just paid a visit to his folks at Skowhegan, Me. He left this city September 5 with Division One draft, and writes that he is anxious to be sent across the water. He wishes to be remembered to his friends in the north end of the city.

ENLISTED EARLY

Everett E. Young Joined Navy First Day Office Opened

Everett E. Young, eighteen years old, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Young of 13 Willow street, is a member of Uncle Sam's navy stationed aboard the U. S. S. Manhattan. He has been spending a well earned furlough with his parents during the past week, and is due to return to his vessel today. He enlisted in New Bedford the first day the recruiting office was opened here last April and spent several months at Newport. Was called for active service last December, and transferred to New London, and later to Wilmington, Delaware. He has been promoted to first class seaman, and comes of fighting stock, as both of his grandfathers took part in the Civil war.

SOLDIERS' LETTER BOX

TWO SONS IN SERVICE

Cotter Boys Are Enjoying Life in Army.

Word has been received from Edward K. Cotter of 564 County street who is now serving in France with the quartermaster's corps. He enlisted July 19, 1917, and was stationed at Sackett Harbor, N. Y., previous to going overseas. He writes that he finds France very interesting and that the people treat the American soldiers well.

He has a brother, Joseph W. Cotter, who was formerly with the Fourth company but who is now in the navy. He is now stationed at the state pier, New London, Conn. He is now stationed on the Hildegard. Both the Cotter boys are nephews of Captain John J. Cotter who is stationed at Camp Greenleaf, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

LETTER TO ELKS

Fred C. Calnan Says He Likes Army Life.

Fred C. Calnan of this city, who is at Kelly Field, South San Antonio, Texas, has written to his brother Elks a very interesting letter of army life in the south. He is with the aviation corps, and he tells humorously of his duties with aeroplanes, which up to the present time is mostly of picking and shoveling. However, he likes the army life and is enjoying good health. Fred says that as long as he is in he mostly desires just now an opportunity to get across where he can get into the game for fair.

HEAVENS ALIGHT BY GUN FLASHES

Herbert Dexter, in France, Writes to Secretary of Moose Harding---"Living in a Cave."

Of interest to the members of the Moose and to other friends here is the letter just received by Secretary Clarence M. Harding from Herbert Dexter of Mattapoisett, a member of the order now in medical department of the 183d field artillery in France. The letter, in part, is as follows:

"I am living in a cave 60 feet deep, the land is all plowed up by shot and shell, just as far as you can see there is nothing but desolation. Heavy timber land has been shot to pieces and laying on the ground, and in the evening the heavens are lit up by the flash of the big guns and star shells which last quite a few minutes.

"I have seen quite a few boys in Battery D from New Bedford. It seemed like home to meet them. I see by all the papers that I received that it was dreadful cold in the states and a lot of snow. The poor people must have suffered being so cold. I hope the war will be over soon and we can all be home again, but it looks now that it will be a long time before it ends. One of our lieutenants was saying the other day that we would be going home in the spring of 1920. It is the worst war that I was ever in."

BACK FROM EUROPE

William H. Gifford a Lieutenant of United States Navy.

Lieutenant William H. Gifford of the United States navy has returned to his home here from Europe. Lieutenant Gifford is descended from an old New Bedford seafaring family and boasts of an exceptionally large force of relatives in both branches of the federal service.

He was born in Tiverton, the son of Annie J. (McKim) and the late Albert F. Gifford, both natives of this city and grandson of the late William McKim, who settled in 1842. His younger brother, Harry W. Gifford, is in the coast guard service in Delaware. Both young men in civil life were chief engineers in the coasting trade.

ANOTHER COINCIDENCE

The Standard to the Front in Unexpected Ways.

When Robert Hayes, a recently enlisted New Bedford boy serving with the regular army at Fort Slocum, New York, was having his hair cut a la army the soldier-barber simply wrapped a small towel about his neck and got busy, but Private Hayes objected and insisted that a newspaper be lain across his knees to prevent the hair from falling on his trousers. There was some difficulty in securing a newspaper, the only man in the barracks boasting possession of one refusing absolutely to surrender it until he had learned to what purpose it was to be put and for how long it would be out of his hands.

When at last Hayes gained temporary possession of the paper he found it to be none other than The Standard, and was easily able to realize why the man had been so reluctant to give it up. Incidently, he understood that this man was another from his own home town and made a fast friend.

the theatre of war, according to advices received by his mother in this city. He writes that he is in the best of health and prepared to undertake his share of the task of forcing the retirement of the Hun.

HEAR CRY OF COYOTES

Is Experience of Boys at Camp Stanley.

Dear Sir—Having seen your results from the soldiers' and sailors' letter box I thought I would write and let you know how things are down here in Camp Stanley. I enlisted in December with Roger McIlwain, who is also a New Bedford boy. Outside of coyotes waking you up at night, and a few sand storms, we like the place very nice, as for army life it is O. K. if you don't weaken.

We get The Standard quite often and will be much obliged if you will put our letter in the Sunday Standard's soldier column. Among the New Bedford boys in this camp, are Clarence Rushton of 267 Weld street, and James Crowley of Brock avenue.

Enclosed find snapshot of myself and McIlwain and closing with our best regards we remain two New Bedford boys.

Soldier Defends Y. M. C. A.

E. T. Whitney, the son of E. G. Whitney, who has an apothecary shop on the corner of Acushnet avenue and School street, has written to his father a defense of the Y. M. C. A. huts in France. His letter (with personal matter omitted) is as follows:

March 7, 1918.

Dear Folks—I am writing in a Franco-American Y. M. C. A. foyer. Now I have seen attacks on the Y. M. C. A. so I'll just show you what they are doing right on the front and then you can judge for yourself. First there is a large room for reading and writing which is always packed. This is the only warm place the men can use for writing their latters, etc. Games can be had of many descriptions: French checkers, chess, French whist cards, ordinary whist cards and those chance games like parchesi. Many magazines and the daily papers can be had also. In a side room hot coffee and chocolate can be had at two sous or two cents a cup. This is great on cold days when one is chilled to the bone from hanging around in the wind and rain or tramping from one cantonment or post to another. Then another room called the salle de concert always has a graphophone going and frequently has entertainments and concerts. Every village where enough soldiers are quartered has a foyer (lounging room) which always has all these combinations. On bad fronts these foyers can be found right up in the third line trenches in big dugouts, where the man can get warm and write, etc., when not "out front" or "la-bas," as they say. One American is always about and he has a hard job too, getting supplies, planning concerts and entertainments, etc., with so little to do with. What the front was without foyers, must have been pretty bad.

E. T. Whitney.

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

Old Ballad Is Most Odious Tune at Army Camp.

The most unpopular pest who ever infested a military cantonment several thousand miles removed from home, writes Thomas Newsham, of this city, a member of the first training brigade of the United States aviation corps at Kelly Field, South Antonio, Texas, to friends here, is he who insists upon playing "Home, Sweet Home" just as a crowd of recruits have become accustomed to their strange surroundings.

There are a number of local men at Kelly Field, and many of them have taken their musical instruments to camp with them and play nightly for the entertainment of their comrades, but "Home, Sweet Home," most odious of ballads to the soldier who has no hope of revisiting his until many many moons have waxed and waned.

Private Newsham states in his letter that Texas is well called "God's Country" by the natives of the state. Spring has come and is giving place to summer, he says, and although the days are warm the nights are delightfully cool with perpetual breezes.

FORM BASEBALL TEAM

Number of New Bedford Boys at Fort Hancock.

Fort Hancock, New Jersey,
April 1, 1918.

To His Honor, the Mayor:

I have taken the liberty of writing to you to let the New Bedford people know we are doing our bit over here in New Jersey.

We have made up a baseball team here composed of all New Bedford boys, and have started the season by defeating the 4th company 8 to 0.

We are all in the 2nd company and our lineup is as follows: L. Provost, cf; B. Coyle, fb; A. Benoit, ss; S. Higginbottom, lf; H. Morin, rf; L. Ackley, 3b; J. Murphy, 2b; H. Besse, c; W. Bowled, p.

You can let the people of good old New Bedford know we will accept with pleasure cigarettes, cigars and tobacco if they have any to spare. We are all well and brown as berries. If any one cares to write, address all letters to Recruit Howard Besse, Battery Granger, Fort Hancock, N. J.
